EDITOR'S NOTE

PURPOSE: As a continuation to the ten-year Faculty & Staff Scholarly and Creative Works 1996-2005, this is the first compilation of an annual publication that will be printed to recognize the outstanding accomplishments of the faculty at USI. We will continue recognizing these achievements in a yearly report of faculty works, which will be merged into a single compilation every ten years for use in the reaccreditation process.

INFORMATION COLLECTED: The information in this report was supplied by colleges based on individual faculty members' annual evaluations. Corrections and additional entries were provided by individual staff and faculty members after the release of two drafts. The first draft was distributed in print form at the April 10, 2008, Reception for Scholarly, Creative, and Professional Achievement at USI. An electronic distribution to colleges followed on April 17. The second draft was distributed electronically in June 2008.

WHAT IS INCLUDED: This report is limited to scholarly and creative works completed in the calendar year 2006. In keeping with USI's broad definition of scholarly and creative works, the report includes listings of books, book chapters, book and journal reviews, encyclopedia entries, published articles (i.e. newspaper, magazine, journal, website, etc.), conference presentations, performances, exhibits, patents (issued date in 2006), and projects. The name of the USI producer of each work is bolded, and when there are multiple USI authors in different departments the entry has been duplicated under each name. Entries, in which there are multiple USI authors in the same department, are alphabetized under the first name appearing in the entry. Grants are listed together in a separate section following the college listings.

WHAT IS NOT INCLUDED: While this is an inclusive list, it does not include many aspects of professional activities that are nevertheless valued and rewarded at USI. This report does not, for example, include service activities, leadership roles, guest lectures, or organizing, facilitating, moderating or participating in workshops or conferences, regardless of whether or not such roles were the result of invitations. No items that are forthcoming or accepted for publication or presentation are included; such items will be included in the report for the year in which they are published or presented.

FORMAT: This publication implements a consistent formatting and documentation style modeled after The Chicago Manual of Style, which is the most common citation style for interdisciplinary bibliographies.

ARCHIVE OF WORKS: Rice Library maintains an archive of all faculty publications and presentations. Copies of your work submitted to Rice Library will be gratefully received and cataloged. Furthermore, all books donated for archiving are also ordered for the general collection. Materials should be addressed to Jennifer Greene, Rice Library.

CALL FOR CORRECTIONS: We apologize in advance for any omissions or inaccuracies. When we have been able to identify missing information, it has been marked with a question mark. We would like to get it right for the ten year publication, so please send corrections and omissions to the Center for Academic Creativity in the Rice Library, Room 2026.

CIRP FRESHMEN SURVEY – 2007 RESULTS

The CIRP Freshmen survey is designed to capture the characteristics and expectations of incoming students before classes begin. During the fall 2007 Welcome Week, 776 freshmen completed the survey. For many, USI was their first choice with cost and academic reputation being very important factors in that choice.

NSSE / FSSE SURVEY – 2007 RESULTS

The National Survey of Student Engagement (NSSE) measures student participation in programs and activities provided for their learning and personal development. Its companion survey, the Faculty Survey of Student Engagement (FSSE), measures faculty perceptions of student participation in these activities.

The survey items represent empirically confirmed "good practices" in undergraduate education, reflecting behaviors associated with desired outcomes of college for 5 benchmarks:

- ❖ Active and Collaborative Learning
- ❖ Enriching Educational Experiences
- ❖ Level of Academic Challenge
- ❖ Supportive Campus Environment
- ❖ Student Faculty Interaction

NSSE 2007 – USI students versus other institutions

- USI freshmen are significantly more engaged than our seniors on all 5 benchmarks relative to students at other universities.

Changes in level of engagement 2003 to 2007

- USI freshmen tend to be more engaged in 2007 than 2003, and are increasingly more engaged.
- 2007 seniors, as a whole, tend to be less engaged than the 2003 senior class.

Efforts to improve the level of engagement among our juniors and seniors are a priority at USI. A new initiative, 'The Major as Home', is being developed by the Provost. This initiative is designed to increase our upper division students' connection with the academic department and faculty of their major. In addition, USI is making significant strides in providing more co-op, internship and study-abroad opportunities.

NSSE vs. FSSE: The student-faculty disconnect

USI freshmen and seniors say they...

- Ask questions and participate in class regularly.
- Integrate ideas and concepts from various sources for assignments and in class discussions.
- Regularly prepare multiple drafts of assignments prior to turning them in.
- Rarely come to class unprepared and spend a significant amount of time preparing for class.
- Give themselves high marks regarding gains in knowledge and skills including writing, speaking, and critical thinking, among others.
- Typically spend less than 16 hours a week socializing and relaxing, but at least that many hours preparing for class.

Faculty generally believe the opposite is true for each of these items.

ASSESSMENT DAY 2007

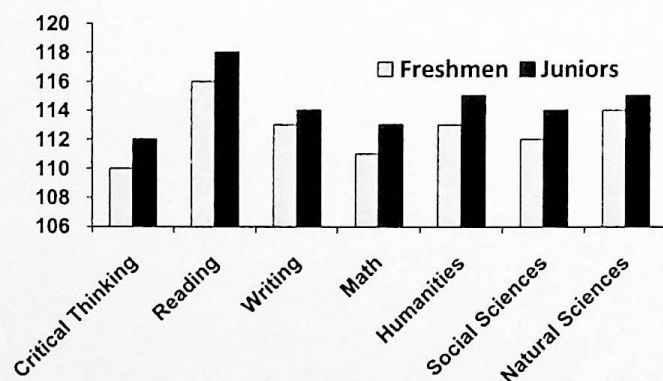

USI Assessment Day occurs each year on the 2nd Tuesday of November. On this day, new freshmen and continuing juniors are tested using an integrated academic skills assessment exam, designed by Educational Testing Service (ETS). USI uses the results to measure 'value added' over time. In 2006, ETS changed the exam from the Academic Profile to the Measure of Academic Progress and Proficiency. It is unknown at this time if the dip in USI scores is due to the change in the test, or an actual decrease in USI students' knowledge/skills base.

Academic Profile/MAPP
USI versus National Average

USI students consistently show improvement between the freshmen and junior years in all of the MAPP sub-areas. In addition, USI student scores mirror the national average in each of these sub-areas.

THE UNIVERSITY EXPERIENCE STUDENT SURVEY

Also during Assessment Day, freshmen and juniors are asked to complete a 'University Experience Student Survey' that includes questions on a variety of topics. Confidence in various skill sets and experience with advisors at USI are two sets of questions asked annually. The results for those questions from the 2007 surveys are provided below.

Student Evaluation of Teaching

Course evaluations are surveys of student opinions regarding the instructor and the course and are intended to help faculty members improve their teaching. At USI, course evaluations are processed by the Office of Institutional Research and Assessment.

Course evaluations are created for every course except student teaching, internship programs, and independent study courses. Instructors have the choice of paper (in-class) or online evaluations. Courses are evaluated during the two weeks prior to finals week. After grades have been submitted, each faculty member receives a statistical summary of their course evaluations for a particular class.

During the fall 2007 semester, 1,450 courses were evaluated. Of those, 53% were traditional paper and 47% were conducted online.

For more information and a calendar of important dates regarding course evaluations, see: http://www.usi.edu/ir/course_evaluations.asp

Assessment Day 2008 – Tuesday, November 11th

All first-time/full-time freshmen and juniors who started their academic career at USI are required to participate in USI's assessment day testing. These students are contacted by regular mail as well as email with information about the test and the time of their test. In addition, this year students will be able to find their testing time and place online.

There are no make-up exams allowed. If a student fails to take the test on November 11th, and is unable to provide documentation of a medical or legal emergency, he or she will be denied priority registration privileges for the following spring, summer, and fall semesters. These students will be able to register for classes only during open registration.

All classes are cancelled on Assessment Day, and it is requested that no faculty meetings or other events be scheduled on this day as faculty and staff are needed to assist with proctoring the exams.

For more information on Assessment Day, see www.usi.edu/ir/assessment.asp
