Abstract: This collection consists of artifacts, ceramics, textiles, and other items from the African Cultural Diversity Showcase project at the University of Southern Indiana in Evansville, Indiana from 2014 to 2017.

Historical Notes: The African Cultural Diversity Showcase is a visual display of African cultural artifacts. The first showcase was in 2013 at the University of Southern Indiana. The showcase was envisioned and developed by Joseph Uduehi with the assistance of Dr. Michael Ndemanu and Dr. Amanual Beyin. Other contributors included Dr. Sweet Ebeigbe, whose cultural artifacts from Benin-City, Nigeria have enriched the collection, and Provost Ronald Rochon and Professor Michael Aakhus both of whose collections have made a valuable impact on the showcase. The goal of the African Cultural Diversity Showcase is to educate the public about African culture through African artifacts that are physically available in a public place. This public place is the USI Rice Library, which houses these African visual artifacts. The artifacts are available to teach basic elements and principles of art as they pertain to lines, color, shape, form, texture, etc. at the elementary to college level. The artifacts are also to showcase the common elements of cultural similarities across the African continent. The USI African Cultural Diversity Showcase uses the loan program where individuals can loan these artifacts for educational purpose. These artifacts can be used or loaned out to USI professors, students, and the public for educational purposes. It is to be noted that the African artifacts are not a collection for religious use, and they do not have any religious intention or association with them. The showcase also accepts artifacts from individuals who would want to contribute to this body of knowledge. Dr. Joseph Uduehi coordinates the educational section, making sure that the aim of the loan program stays as intended; Jennifer Greene of the Rice Library is the librarian who ensures that the artifacts are cataloged and loaned out professionally. Other interested faculty members, like Dr. Cacee Hoyer of the History Department, contributed to the cataloging of the artifacts and made sure the artifacts were used in her class in the Spring 2017.
