We're on the go! In our previous issue of 8600 University Boulevard, I indicated the Alumni Council's thrust this fiscal year will be to provide more and better services to our alumni. We feel we can best accomplish our mission—that of promoting the University, its staff, student body, and alumni—by providing the type and quality of services logically afforded to an affinity such as ours.

The first of our services to be unveiled this year is our new credit card program. After a bidding process, Citizens National Bank was selected to develop the program in conjunction with the Alumni Council. By using the handsome silver USI Alumni Association MasterCard or Visa, our affinity group can help support ongoing alumni programs and scholarships. Our Alumni Association actually receives a percentage of the gross volume of all transactions using our credit cards. What easier way to support the USI Alumni Association?! But, more importantly we are providing a service to our alumni, university staff, and students. The interest rate for card usage is favorable and the annual fee (none in the first year) is low. And, all students within one year of graduating who have no negative credit history will be approved for the program. Absence of credit history will not preclude such an applicant from being approved.

We will have other major service projects unveiled as we progress through the year. Our various Alumni Council committees are hard at work to provide the very best services possible to you, our Alumni. We're not sitting still. We're on the go!

Show your university support for our annual fund solicitation in February. You can use your new USI Alumni Association credit card to make contributions to the Alumni Association. We need your help because we are on the go!

ON THE COVER

Delays in shipments of steel for the new classroom building have affected its progress, but the contractor hopes to get the building back on schedule. University officials are hoping to be able to use the classrooms in the new building for fall semester classes, even though the remainder of the building will not be finished until second semester next year. Spiraling enrollments have made the need for space even more urgent than previously anticipated.

$45,000 IS GOAL OF 1989 ALUMNI FUND

The sixteenth annual USI Alumni Association Telefund drive was held February 1-15. Hundreds of alumni, students, faculty members, and University staff volunteer to telephone thousands of alumni during the two-week campaign.

This year's campaign headquarters was held in the WNIN-Channel 9 television studio. Telefund chairman John Schutz, 1982 graduate who is a stockbroker at Hilliard-Lyons, said the central location and the fine studio facilities will be a great benefit to the campaign and the volunteers.

"Our 1989 goal is to raise $45,000 to provide assistance to students through scholarships and grants and to fund alumni programs and services," added Mr. Schutz. The goal is a 10 percent increase over 1988 pledges.

The Association has begun a Scholarship Endowment which will fund future student scholarships and grants. "When the balance is $100,000, scholarships will be funded from the interest. At this time there is more than $50,000 in the account," reported Mr. Schutz.

"Being a part of USI's continuing growth is exciting," said Nancy Johnson, 1983 graduate and director of Alumni Affairs. "The new student enrollment figures total 5,265—another record. Our total number of graduates will exceed 7,000 with Commencement in May. The Alumni Association is proud to be helping build this great University!"

The annual Telefund provides more than 80 percent of the Alumni Association budget. Restricted gifts can be designated by alumni to support a specific school, department, or program.

"If Alumni are not reached by phone, pledge forms will be mailed so everyone can make their annual gift. Please say "yes!" to the Alumni Telefund. Your support is vital," urged Mr. Schutz.

CELEBRATE YOUR NEXT NEW YEAR IN THE BAHAMAS

January 1-8, 1990

USI alumni, Varsity Club members, and friends are invited to join the Screaming Eagles Men's Basketball Team when they travel to Freeport, Grand Bahamas. The team will play three tournament games in the 1990 Freeport Sunshine Shootout.

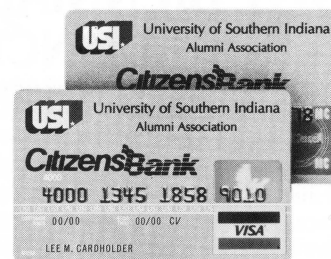

Freeport is one of the liveliest shopping ports in the Bahamas, with shops, cafes, and restaurants stretching over ten acres. When you're not cheering the Eagles you can enjoy the beach, go out in a glass-bottom boat, or enjoy the colorful scenery at the bird sanctuary.

So start planning now to join in the fun! Package details to follow. For further information, call the USI Alumni Office (800) 444-1965.

Introducing USI Credit Cards

Now it's easy to support the University of Southern Indiana

The USI Alumni Association in cooperation with Citizens Bank is offering you an easy way to show your support—the USI MasterCard and VISA credit cards.

You can take advantage of some very special credit card benefits and help support scholarship funds and important alumni programs at USI. Each time you use your card for a purchase, the USI Alumni Association will receive a portion of the purchase amount from Citizens Bank—all at no cost to you!

A Great Deal for you—No Annual Fee For One Full Year

In addition to supporting your school, there are many other benefits to using your USI MasterCard or VISA. First of all, there is no annual fee for the first year!

After the first year, the annual fee will be just $16 for both cards. If you prefer to have just a MasterCard or VISA, the annual fee for a single card is only $10.

And There's More

The new USI cards offer even more. You'll enjoy:

- * A special 16.95 percent interest rate.
- * 25-day grace period when you pay your balance in full. If you pay off your balance by the monthly due date, you will pay no interest on your retail purchases.
- * 24-hour ATM access at more than 16,000 PLUS SYSTEM* machines around the world.
- * Convenient check access to your credit card account.
- * $250,000 travel accident coverage when you purchase your common carrier tickets with your USI credit card.
- * Other valuable benefits include a nationwide, toll-free customer service number; a free second card for joint accounts; and a flexible payment schedule—as little as 4% or $20 per month, whichever is greater.

It's Easier Than Ever to Help USI

As you can see, the new MasterCard and Visa provide outstanding benefits to you as well as the University. To apply, look for the credit card application in the mail and return it to Citizens Bank.

1989-91 BIENNIAL BUDGET REQUEST REFLECTS CONCERN FOR STUDENT AND COMMUNITY NEEDS

The University of Southern Indiana Board of Trustees approved a 1989-91 biennial budget proposal that reflects a continuing effort to accommodate greater than anticipated enrollment and the academic programs sought by the students and surrounding communities, some of which have been projected as needs in studies of the Indiana Commission for Higher Education.

The 1989-90 base budget in the biennial proposal was an increase of more than $3 million over USI's current operating budget of $15.2 million.

University officials explained that attracting and retaining faculty members remains a top priority, given the University's goal of academic excellence and the pressures placed on faculty by the continuing enrollment climb. The student population has increased more than 20 percent in the past two years. The added enrollment brought additional classes and neutralized the University's effort to reduce the number of classes taught by part-time faculty. University officials at the same time are establishing and improving academic programming to reflect the following objectives:

—Make excellence in undergraduate education USI's primary goal and develop effective methods of measuring attempts to improve the teaching and learning process. Budget items which address this goal include funds for attracting and retaining faculty, improving the part-time/full-time faculty ratio, academic success initiatives to enhance student advisement and development, and the creation of a Center for Teaching and Learning to assess the University's impact on students and graduates.

—Enhance the participation rate of part-time, minority, and older students and meet the demand for locally-based public graduate programs. Budgetary items in this category include a credit outreach program to take University courses to surrounding communities; a Gateway Project to take programs to the inner city and address the need for college preparation, child care, and transportation that are common problems of the disadvantaged students; and expanded master's level offerings to include master's degree programs in liberal studies, psychology, and business administration.

—Support much-needed economic development in southern Indiana. Included in this goal are requests for funding to strengthen the School of Business, establish and operate the Southern Indiana Development Center which has as major components a technical assistance program, management services program, the Historic Southern Indiana project to develop tourism, the Small Business Development Center, and the Southern Indiana Labor-Management Education Forum.

Specific programs for funding in the budget include the new School of Nursing and Health Professions, a new associate degree program in early childhood education, and a baccalaureate degree program in German. Funding also is sought to place USI in a three-institution cluster for the University Library Automation project, a statewide initiative in resource sharing. The Library would be clustered with Vincennes and Indiana State universities.

FALL SPORTS FARE WELL

The men's soccer, cross-country, and golf, and women's volleyball and tennis teams represented USI well in their 1988 fall season. The men's cross-country team finished 15th in the NCAA Division II national competition. The men's soccer team won the Great Lakes Valley Conference competition and had five players named to the all-conference team. Senior Andy McCullough and freshman Eric Schoenstein are first-team members, seniors John Heerdink and Paul Kumar as well as sophomore Chris King are second-team members. All-conference honors in women's volleyball went to senior Angie Handel for the third consecutive year. USI's men's golf team finished third in the GLVC, and the women's tennis team tied for fifth-place conference honors.

PRESIDENT RICE JOINS CST BOARD

USI President David L. Rice has been named to the Board of the Indiana Corporation for Science and Technology, a statewide organization which brings together resources of industry, government, and academia. The CST annual report emphasizes the urgency for the Indiana economy to base its future on a firm foundation of advanced technology. The Corporation awards grants for research and development activities which incorporate state-of-the-art technologies into the operations of Indiana's businesses. Many of the research and development activities are joint ventures with the State's universities. Thus far, the CST has awarded more than $50 million to the State's science and technology program.

SIHE AND MASH ELECT NEW OFFICERS, SALUTE KOCH'S LEADERSHIP

Southern Indiana Higher Education, Inc., and its subsidiary corporation, Mid-America Student Housing, have elected Joseph E. O'Daniel as chairman, Chris Melton '72 as president, and Richard Schmidt as treasurer. Officers continuing in their positions include Frank F. McDonald as executive vice president, Joel Lasker as secretary, and James E. Fields as assistant secretary. The Board of both organizations accepted with regret the resignations from leadership positions of long-time Chairman Robert Koch and President Rolland Eckels and lauded their leadership, which has extended for more than two decades.

Koch was the first chairman of SIHE when it was established in 1966 as a nonprofit foundation to support the development of public higher education opportunities in southern Indiana. The group raised nearly a million dollars and acquired the 1,400-acre tract of land known as the Mid America University Center. USI occupies 300 acres of that land, and SIHE holds the remaining 1,100 acres in trust for future development. Since 1966 SIHE has undertaken many projects in support of the University, including establishing scholarship endowments, donating land for a fraternity row and assisting Sigma Tau Gamma with plans for the first fraternity house there, and developing student housing.

The student housing was developed by SIHE's subsidiary corporation, Mid-America Student Housing (MASH), on land owned by SIHE. Today, 950 students live in the nonprofit apartment complexes, and MASH has plans to develop housing for 64 more students by the fall of 1989. These student apartment complexes were developed without any tax dollars.

ENROLLMENT JUMPS 13.8 PERCENT

A total of 5,265 students registered for the fall semester at USI, pushing enrollment up 13.8 percent over the 1987 fall enrollment of 4,624.

Degree-seeking freshmen led the categories with 1,141 enrolling in the fall compared to 876 in 1987, a 30 percent increase. A preliminary analysis of registration data indicates the increase resulted from both new student registration and the retention of current students. The number of high school graduates enrolling from southern Indiana continued to climb, reflecting USI's efforts to increase access to higher education in the region. Other figures of interest include:

- Women students—up 16.67 percent to 3,164
- Men students—up 9.88 percent to 2,101
- Students over age 25—up 19.51 percent to 1,887
- Students under age 25—up 10.94 percent to 3,378
- Full-time students—up 13.60 percent to 3,065
- Part-time students—up 14.23 percent to 2,200
- Graduate students—up 22.45 percent to 60

Some of USI's enrollment increase can be traced to its new nursing program and courses USI is teaching for Ivy Tech's nursing program. USI also is being discovered by students from areas in Indiana outside the southern Indiana region. Enrollment of Indiana students from counties other than southern Indiana climbed by almost 47 percent to 280 students, although southern Indiana students still account for 89 percent of USI's enrollment. The number of out-of-state students declined by 12 percent this year.

First Annual Presidential Scholarship Luncheon Brings Together Donors and Student Recipients

Over 115 donors and recipients of the USI Foundation's prestigious new Presidential Scholarships attended the first annual luncheon on November 3rd in the University Center. USI Trustees, who were on campus for their regularly scheduled board meeting, were special guests.

The USI Foundation recognition luncheon will be held annually to provide an opportunity for donors and student recipients to get better acquainted. Donors who make gifts of $100 or more receive invitations to the luncheon.

The luncheon also was the first occasion for all 24 Presidential Scholars to meet each other. They are USI freshmen who were valedictorians or salutatorians of their Indiana high school graduating classes. The unique scholarship program was established in 1988 to help attract some of the state's brightest and best students to USI.

More than $210,000 in gifts and pledges was raised in the first Campaign for Presidential Scholarships, chaired by Ted C. Ziemer, Jr., Foundation first vice chairman. The spring fund drive received solid support from Evansville area businesses and individuals, including many USI faculty, administrative, and staff members. Each scholarship is valued at $4,500, which pays for tuition, books and fees, as well as room and board.

Special plaques were presented at the luncheon by USI President David L. Rice and Foundation chairman C. Wayne Worthington to recognize each of the individual and corporate donors who has made a financial commitment totaling $18,000 to sponsor one full scholarship for the four-year period, 1988-1992. Top contributor, Bristol-Myers USPNG, is supporting three four-year Presidential Scholarships with their contribution of $60,000.

Other principal donors, for whom Presidential Scholarships are named, include Margaret Henderson Blair, president of Research Systems, Inc., Citizens National Bank of Evansville, Escalade, Inc., National City Bank of Evansville, and Old National Bank in Evansville.

Additional contributors through December 31, 1988, include Dr. and Mrs. George S. Abshier, AMAX Coal Company—Ayrshire Mine, Anchor Industries, Larry W. Arp, John E. Baburnich, James H. Bandoli, Donald D. Bennett, Darrel E. Bigham, Thomas R. Boyd, James W. Browning, Timothy K. Buecher, Aldo F. Cardarelli, Karin VanTuhl Chess, Coca Cola Bottling Works, Ann S. Cooper, Ann Cromwell, D-Patrick, Inc., Sherry B. Darrell, Melvin W. Denner, Jean M. Devine, Howard E. Dunn.

Also, Emmet D. Edwards, Helen J. Emerson, Rebecca J. Englert, Cindy L. Eskew, Evansville Concrete Company, Evansville Sheet Metal Works, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Frederking, Augustine J. Fredrich, Stephanie R. Fuelling, Judy A. Goen, Mary L. Griggs, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice H. Hart, Deborah C. Henry, Sandra J. Hermann, Walter Jermakowicz, Joan M. Jost, Kahn, Dees, Donovan & Kahn, Gordon E. Kelley, William J. Kirsch.

Others are Anthony B. Kissel, Nancy J. Long, Timothy B. Mahoney, Jack L. Marr, Patricia C. McReynolds, John L. Moore, Rachel P. Muller, Suzanne A. Nicholson, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph E. O'Daniel, Geo. S. Olive & Co., Jack R. Oliver, PPG Industries, Mary S. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. David L. Paulson, Peerless Pottery, Janice Y. Perkins, Victoria M. Pohl, Red Spot Paint & Varnish Co., Rosemarie Investments.

Also, Mary Lue Russler, Carole and Robert Rust, James A. Sanders, Beatrice L. Schmitzer, Rick Schuster, Marlene V. Shaw, Sandra M. Singer, South Central Communications Corp., Sherrienne M. Standley, Sunbeam Plastics, Marwan A. Wafa, Bette K. Walden, Judy A. Wells, Michael W. Whipple, Whirlpool Corporation and Mr. and Mrs. James L. Will, Sr.

The second annual Campaign for Presidential Scholarships is planned for early spring. Community volunteers will be asked to assist Foundation board members in contacting area businesses.

Additional contributions may be made to the Presidential Scholarship Fund at USI Foundation, 8600 University Boulevard, Evansville, IN 47712. If you have any questions, please call Suzanne Nicholson, USI Director of Development, at 464-1918.

GLA ANO'I

by Janice Perkins

The New Year arrived filled with world hopes that a budding era of U.S.-Soviet friendship will continue. The Russian terms of "glasnost" (openness, discussion) and "perestroika" (economic reform) are key words in the regime of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and are becoming catchwords in America.

But the USI campus harbors a skeptic. Dr. Walter W. Jermakowicz, assistant professor in the School of Business, says of President Gorbachev, "I personally think he is a good guy. I think he wants to change things."

But that is about the extent of any praise he might have for Russia and the Soviet leader who seems to have eliminated the ogre-ish Red Bear from Russian relations with the U.S. And Dr. Jermakowicz ends his plaudits with a "but" — "I don't think he can" reform the Soviet Union.

The 44-year-old Jermakowicz is a native of Parafianow, Poland, now a part of the USSR. He received a Bachelor in Economics, Bachelor in Sociology, and Master in Economics from the University of Warsaw, and Ph.D. in Economics from Warsaw Technical University. He also spent a semester in the mid-'70s as an exchange student at a Moscow university, studying international relations. He has taught in Warsaw institutions and in Salzburg, Austria; Giessen, West Germany; and the United States.

In an effort to flee the oppression of martial law imposed in Poland to control the Solidarity movement with which he was affiliated, he left his homeland in 1983. Since his arrival at USI in 1985, he has been invited to meetings around the nation and overseas to participate in discussions about the Soviet Union. Last year, he was invited to share his theories with the staff of the U.S. National Security Council.

He opened this interview with "I'm not sure I'm the best person for this, or maybe I'm very good . . . it depends on your viewpoint," as he made clear his skepticism of Russia, based on 400 years of Russian-Polish relations.

It is from that vantage point that he views glasnost and perestroika as a temporary means to an end — which he believes will be a return to the old feudal system, to central control.

Dr. Jermakowicz does not believe the Soviet Union can be reformed. "You can change some aspects," he said, "but generally the old philosophy of a feudal system can't be altered by evolution."

He admits to amazement at some things Soviet journalists now are writing, but he said a close look indicates to him the changes are in glasnost only, not in perestroika. He cites the fact that 97 ministries oversaw Soviet industry and economy when Gorbachev came to power in 1985, and in 1988 there were 104. In a nation where local enterprise is controlled by ministries, local organizations, the Union of Enterprises, chief administrators, the Trade Unions Organization, the local authorities . . . he finds that "in practicality, it really hasn't changed much."

Professor Walter W. Jermakowicz

SNOST: HER VIEW

"They can give the responsibility (to initiate or operate an enterprise), but they won't give authority," he said of the reports of new efforts for individual enterprise to provide some of the products needed in a lagging economy.

"The Russians have a joke about perestroika," he notes. "They say perestroika is like the Taiga Forest in Asia — loud (a lot of wind) on top, but very quiet down at the bottom."

Dr. Jermakowicz likes to cite an example of the pickle as the "beginning of the end for the Russian economy." He says the ministries issue books ordering the annual production of goods and, in 1953, someone forgot to order pickles. The importance, he explains, lies in the fact that a typical business transaction includes the sharing of a bottle of vodka and, since Russians don't drink vodka without pickles, the lack of pickles crippled their ability to negotiate the flow of goods.

He adds that Russians use alcohol the way Americans use the lie detector, believing that a drunken person will tell the truth.

In his numerous lecture trips, Dr. Jermakowicz finds two groups of people — the American academics who study Soviet economic and management systems and are optimistic about perestroika, and European emigrants like himself who believe their background gives them a different perspective and are less optimistic.

He suggests he's fortunate that he found his way to the conservative Midwest, because he doesn't think his skepticism would be as easily accepted in the liberal East.

His studies — and skepticism — tell him that:

* Historically, Russian reforms started with a change of power during a relatively stable economic period. Since the Russian system cannot accommodate leadership changes in the manner familiar to the American political system, the "reforms" were the method of changing the people.

* The tragic Armenian earthquake, in which more than 25,000 people lost their lives, gave the Russians an opportunity to ask for badly needed economic aid they otherwise would not have sought, and the opportunity to impose martial law to quiet the unrest in the Baltic states.

* The pre-earthquake unrest in the Baltic, viewed by the U.S. as a fight for independence, may have been instigated by KGB officials who want to remove Gorbachev because they fear that glasnost will break up the Soviet Union within 20 years.

Looking at a history in which the KGB and military have vied for control of government, Dr. Jermakowicz reasons, "There is no reason for Gorbachev to behave any way other than he is." With the continuing economic instability, the openness of glasnost is needed to support the changes he wants. The 10 percent cutback the Soviet President announced for the military gives Gorbachev, who came from the KGB, the image of a peacemaker and, at the same time, gives him the leeway to use the resources for products needed to bolster the economy, Dr. Jermakowicz explains.

He views it as public relations easily acceptable in the United States, where "Americans are very personal . . . they believe if you are smart, if you want to achieve, you will achieve. The system is not important; the person is." Europeans are system oriented, tradition oriented, however, says Dr. Jermakowicz. "One person can't do anything because of the feudal restrictions. If you are born poor, you stay poor; if you are born into a family, you stay part of that system; it's much more important than the people."

"If you were born in this beautiful country, you really cannot see how that system operates," Dr. Jermakowicz comments, noting it is easy for Gorbachev to influence his American image. "Americans look at Gorbachev as a person and think it is important that he has good public relations and a pretty, well-dressed wife. But Europeans look at Gorbachev and ask, 'Can he change the system?' 'We don't think he can,' Dr. Jermakowicz says.

Measuring by Russia's last biggest reform, which started in 1965 and lasted until 1969, Dr. Jermakowicz said it might be reasonable to suggest the Gorbachev reform will end in 1989, but he thinks it will take longer because the situations are different.

He compared Russia of today with Hungary of 1968, when reform was imposed. He said Hungary was more developed then, but had a larger economic problem, and it has taken Hungary 20 years to progress. "I'm not sure the Russians have the persistence to continue reforms for 20 years," Dr. Jermakowicz said.

SENIOR RECEPTION AND DINNER SCHEDULED

Plans are under way to celebrate the 1989 graduation May 12, the night before Commencement, with a Senior Reception and Dinner sponsored by the USI Alumni Association. Graduates are welcomed into the association during this annual event.

1989 graduates and their families, alumni, faculty, and staff are welcome to attend.

First in School of Nursing FOUR NEW SCHOLARSHIPS ESTABLISHED

Four new scholarships, established through major gifts to the USI Foundation, will provide support for USI students majoring in nursing, pre-med, and construction, and special minority students.

A generous $10,000 gift from Mr. and Mrs. Fred Trautvetter has endowed the School of Nursing's first scholarship. The annual award of $500, approximately one-third of tuition costs, will aid a full-time nursing student as the Fred and Elise Moutoux Trautvetter Scholarship recipient. The scholarship is renewable.

Dr. Nadine Coudret, Dean of the School of Nursing and Health Professions, told Mr. and Mrs. Trautvetter "there is always something very special about being first. Our enrollment will be up next fall in the new nursing school, and most of our students rely on financial aid. But, your scholarship award places important emphasis on scholastic excellence as well."

The Herschel Moore Memorial Scholarship, a gift of Susan Enlow, was established to help provide self-sufficiency to a USI student who is a single black woman from Evansville and one who demonstrates high potential for success. The annual $2,500 award is named for the popular security guard at National City Bank's downtown Evansville location, who died in 1983.

More than 100 memorial gifts helped establish the Albert A. Woll Memorial Scholarship fund as a special tribute to the late University trustee and Foundation board member. Mr. Woll's family has asked that the scholarship support go to a junior or senior pre-med student who demonstrates scholastic merit and financial need.

USI student Beth Ann Cook, who along with her mother owns and operates an Evansville construction firm, has designated their annual CCC of Evansville Scholarship for minorities or women studying for a career in construction. The annual $500 award will be made to a Tri-State resident demonstrating financial need.

INDY ALUMNI ORGANIZE

Nearly 200 USI graduates reside in the Indianapolis area. This is the largest concentration of alumni who live outside of the Evansville area.

Biology and accounting graduates make up the largest percentage of Indianapolis alumni. Many biology alums attended the Indiana University professional schools in medicine, dentistry, optometry, and physical therapy, and some remain in practice there. Many accounting graduates have been hired by leading accounting firms.

The remaining Indianapolis alumni are representatives from all the USI disciplines. They have something in common. All want to stay in touch with each other and their alma mater.

John Elliott, a 1972 graduate and stockbroker for Paine Webber, has been working with fellow USI alumni and the Alumni Office to coordinate events and develop an alumni network in Indianapolis.

Alumni gathered for pre-game and post-game activities when USI played the University of Indianapolis in the capital city February 25. The evening's highlight was the Alumni and Friends Reception at the Holiday Inn South Holiday.

Alumni interested in being a part of the Indianapolis/USI network are urged to call John Elliott, (317) 843-5918 or 849-4521, or the USI Alumni Office, (800) 444-1965.
