Alumni Association
University of Southern Indiana
8600 University Boulevard, Evansville, IN 47712

By Tina M. Kern, President

In the previous issue of 8600, I outlined the changes in the Alumni Council composition, committee structure, and long-range goals, and encouraged all Alumni to become involved in the Alumni Association, to contribute by participation. As with any undertaking, results are what counts, so I'd like to fill you in on some of the Council and committee activities.

One topic of great concern to the Council is developing greater Alumni participation in Association- and University-sponsored programs and activities and a broader base of input in the planning and development. During one discussion, it was pointed out that a fair number of such folks already have expressed an interest in becoming involved; we'd just never asked them!

We found that letters and response cards to surveys, 8600 articles, and fund-raising communications or just general conversation at University or Alumni functions often included comments that an individual "cannot serve on the Council but would like to become involved" or "would like to help with Homecoming" or "fund-raising" or "finding lost alumni."

The committee chairs were quick to enlist these individuals to augment their respective memberships beyond Council members only, and have had great success in involving Alumni from a variety of professions and disciplines.

The Communications and Special Events committees have for several months been planning Homecoming 1988, which is scheduled for January 30. Their guidelines were to develop activities that would encourage Alumni to come back to the University for Homecoming and also be of interest to spouses and family members. With this in mind, the two committees have designed a Homecoming celebration truly representative of the Council's emphasis on increasing Alumni participation and strengthening ties to the University.

The theme for Homecoming 1988 is "Come Home to USI;" the whole affair is for Alumni and their families. Activities will include campus tours, a "Country Fair," buffet dinner, the basketball games (it's a "Pack the PAC" night!), and post-game reception. The committees also have contacted USI clubs and organizations, inviting them to schedule pre-game activities for Seniors and Alumni, hoping to encourage more student awareness of and participation in the Alumni Association.

I invite you to attend as many of the events as you can and encourage you and your family to "Come Home to USI" for Homecoming 1988.

The Fund-Raising Committee also has been very active, preparing for the 1988 Alumni Telefund to be held from February 1 through February 14. Chairman John Schutz has rallied scores of volunteers who have been busy laying the groundwork for this year's campaign, which they have christened, "Help Us Build A Great University."

The committee has pored over class lists, researched the whereabouts of "lost alumni," and met with University divisions and student and Alumni groups. The purpose of all this activity is to make this year's fund-raising effort the most successful ever by making it the best organized ever.

The Programs and Activities Committee is one of the "new" committees, but has lost no time in developing an impressive agenda, meeting with University officials and representatives of Alumni groups to gain insight into the kinds of programs and activities that would interest and benefit USI Alumni. Their current project is to develop an Alumni Career Assistance Program in conjunction with the University Placement Office.

The University Support Committee — another "new" committee — is pursuing a less visible but no less important agenda, that of carefully monitoring administration of Association funds. Their aim is to ensure a solid financial base from which to meet our scholarship and pledge commitments and develop a growth strategy that will allow us to continue to expand the support offered Association members, University students, and the University itself.

USI ENROLLMENT CONTINUES TO CLIMB

Student enrollment at the University continues to grow and an intensified recruitment program also is attracting more minority students. Enrollment for the fall semester was 4,624, up 6.7 percent from last year's 4,333. The total includes 2,698 full-time students, a 4.3 percent increase, and 1,926 part-time students, a 10 percent increase. The number of minority students has nearly doubled the past two years, and reached 135 this year compared to 115 last year and 70 in 1985-86.

USI has 1,892 freshmen, 847 sophomores, 698 juniors, 606 seniors, and 542 special undergraduates, a classification established in 1986 that includes students who are not seeking a degree or who are enrolled in special courses of study that do not necessarily lead to a degree. These include college graduates now seeking teaching certification or courses allowing them to take certified public accountant exams. USI also has 39 graduate students enrolled in master's programs in secondary education and industrial management. The enrollment total does not include the 123 students enrolled in the joint USI-UE MBA program.

An enrollment jump of 6.7 percent was recorded this fall, bringing the total number of USI students to 4,624.

NURSING PROGRAM APPROVED FOR USI

The State Budget Committee and Indiana Commission for Higher Education have approved a baccalaureate nursing program that will be available at USI in the fall of 1988. The state committee approved $358,000 to begin the program, regarded as a priority based on an October 1987 Commission study which projects a nursing shortage in the state and nation by the year 2000.

The USI program will offer Bachelor of Science or Associate of Science degrees with a major in nursing, and will fully articulate with associate degree programs at Indiana Vocational Technical College and Deaconess Hospital. USI has offered the academic course work for the Deaconess nursing program for several years. The addition of the baccalaureate program at a public university will increase advancement opportunities for nursing practitioners who already hold associate degrees or diplomas from hospital nursing schools. Students in the program will gain clinical experiences at area hospitals.

STATE BUDGET COMMITTEE APPROVES FUNDING FOR NEW GENERAL CLASSROOM BUILDING

The Indiana General Assembly's State Budget Committee approved a funding plan for USI's $7.8-million classroom building in late September, paving the way for a spring construction start. The building, which will ease overcrowding, is expected to be complete by the start of classes in the fall of 1989 and will be used for general-purpose classrooms by all teaching departments. It will be built with bonds that will be paid off by the state beginning in 1990. The architectural firm, the Odle Group, Incorporated, of Bloomington, Indiana, is working on final plans for the new building.

USI DESIGNATED BICENTENNIAL CAMPUS

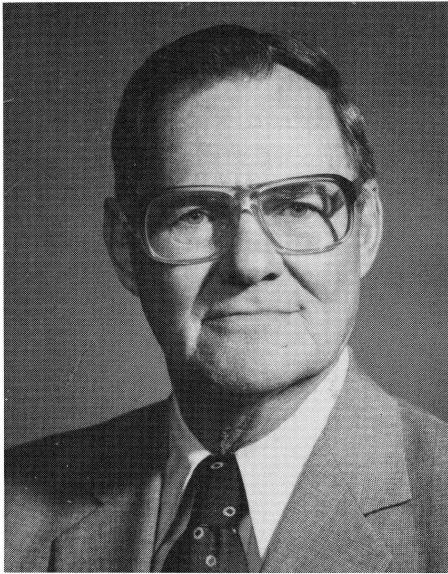

USI has been named a Bicentennial Campus by authority of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution in Washington, D. C. Word of the designation was received in mid-September by Dr. Darrel Bigham, professor of history and Evansville area coordinator for Bicentennial activities. The University is the first in Indiana to earn the official designation. Mark Cannon, staff director for the commission, said the recognition allows the local committee to use the official Bicentennial logo and to approve the use of the logo by campus organizations; in addition, USI may use the logo on its stationery and official publications. "We are committed to making the Bicentennial commemorations in the years 1987-91 a rewarding educational experience for all Americans," Cannon said. "The nation's colleges and universities have an important role in leading this effort."

The budget committee action "is certainly a salute to the commitment and effectiveness of our local legislators, to be able to make the project possible," USI President David L. Rice commented. "It took a lot of commitment and effective work on their part to get it accomplished."

A subcommittee of the Board of Trustees has approved the design development phase plans for the building, allowing the architects and engineers to move forward with final specifications. Bids are expected to be let in mid-April and awarded by mid-May. Construction is projected to take 18 months.

USI has participated in two major events this year that were Bicentennial commemoratives. The University was host in April for the Magna Carta exhibit, becoming one of only two Indiana communities visited by the traveling exhibit. The University also was the host for a mock constitutional convention September 19, co-sponsored by USI and the Evansville Bar Association. Coincidentally, 39 persons — the same number as the signers of the Constitution on September 17, 1787 — assembled at the University Center for discussion of three proposed amendments: abolition of the electoral college, institution of the line-item veto, and eliminating the provision allowing two-thirds of the states to call a constitutional convention. Delegates ranged in age from mid-teens to the early 80s and came from varied backgrounds — attorneys, business leaders, high school and college students, educators, labor leaders, and community volunteers.

DR. DANIEL A. MILLER WILL RETIRE THIS YEAR

Dr. Daniel A. Miller, chairman of the Division of Social Science and professor of history, plans to retire from the University in May 1988.

Dr. Miller has held his position September 1966, a year after the University was opened as a regional campus of Indiana State University. He was the recipient of the first Distinguished Professor Award in 1983. Four of his six children are graduates of the University.

Dr. Miller graduated from Hanover College with an A.B. degree in 1940. He earned both the M.A. and the Ph.D. degrees from the University of Michigan. A World War II veteran of duty in the Pacific, he previously was a teaching fellow at Michigan, then served as an educational consultant at Camp Breckinridge, Kentucky, during the Korean conflict mobilization. He was a store manager in his home community of Princeton, Indiana, from 1951 to 1962, when he returned to education, serving as a professor of history at Oakland City College until joining the USI faculty. He is the author of three books.

Dr. Miller's community involvement has included serving on the boards of directors of the Project for Law-Focused Education, financed by The Lilly Endowment, and of the Second Chance Halfway House for convicts returning from prison.

DR. RICE HONORED BY LOCAL BOY SCOUTS

Dr. David L. Rice, president of the University, was honored by the Buffalo Trace Council of Boy Scouts on August 27, when he was presented the council's Distinguished Citizen Award. The award recognizes community involvement, which for Dr. Rice has included membership on the Board of Directors of Buffalo Trace Council. Among those paying tribute at a recognition banquet were Indiana Governor Robert D. Orr, Evansville Mayor and USI alumnus Frank F. McDonald II, and Joseph E. O'Daniel, vice president of the USI Board of Trustees and a long-time University supporter. William D. Burleigh, former editor of The Evansville Press and now senior vice president for newspapers/publishing for the

C. WAYNE WORTHINGTON ELECTED NEW CHAIRMAN OF USI FOUNDATION

C. Wayne Worthington, chairman and chief executive officer of National City Bank in Evansville was elected chairman of the USI Foundation Board of Directors. Other new officers include first vice chairman — Ted C. Ziemer, Jr., an Evansville attorney; second vice chairman — Rolland M. Eckels, director of public relations at Bristol-Myers USPNG, Evansville; and treasurer — Richard A. Schlottman, president of Old National Bank, Evansville. Bettye McCutchan, an Evansville civic leader, was re-elected secretary.

Suzanne A. Nicholson, USI director of Development and Alumni Affairs, was reappointed executive director of the foundation. Dr. David L. Rice, USI president, and Sherrienne M. Standley, vice president for University Relations, were named administrative advisors and Byron C. Wright, vice president for Business Affairs, was named assistant treasurer.

New directors elected to the Board include Robert Alworth, general manager of the General Electric Plastics Group, Mt. Vernon; John Bolger, a 1980 USI graduate and president of CrediThrift Financial, Inc.; Ronald Bongor, a 1983 graduate, immediate past president of the Alumni Association, and an account executive at Creative Press, Inc.; Michael A. Deshies, communications manager at Alcoa Warrick Operations; H. C. (Bud) Farmer, executive vice president of Evansville Concrete Company, Inc.; Robert Griffin, president of Escalade, Inc., and Indian Industries, Inc.; Robert Hartmann, president of Hartmann Publications and publisher of The Evansville Press; William Mazick, plant manager at PPG Industries, Inc.; and Alan Shovers, an attorney. All but Alworth and Deshies are from Evansville.

Holdover directors are Walter R. Brunton, a 1973 USI graduate who is president and chief executive officer of Posey County Bank; E. Donald Elliott, retired vice president of Mead Johnson & Company; Dr. Edward E. Fritz, retired president of Chayes-Virginia, Inc.; Kenneth J. Hahn, president of Hahn, Inc.; former Mayor Frank F. McDonald, Sr., a public relations consultant; William H. Mitchell, owner of M & M Oil Company at Albion, Illinois; Joseph E. O'Daniel, chairman of the board of O'Daniel-Ranes Oldsmobile, Inc.; and Schlottman. All but Brunton and Mitchell are from Evansville.

Scripps Howard communications company, gave the keynote speech.

In O'Daniel's tribute, he recalled the history and growth of the University and pointed to the important role President Rice has played in USI's development. He said there was no way to place a value on the investment made in the more than 6,000 graduates of the University who play key leadership roles in business, industry, and government. "All this progress occurred because of David Rice's 'can do' attitude, his willingness to find 'way where there was a will,' and his unwavering dedication to the philosophy that 'the bottom line' is delivering the programs students need," O'Daniel said.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES APPROVES NEW TEN-YEAR PLAN

Improvement or inauguration of programs ranging from a certificate in Early Childhood Education through the Master of Business Administration, with emphasis on cultural, professional, and vocational development in surrounding communities, are highlights of a revised Higher Education Services Plan approved by the USI Board of Trustees at the September meeting. The 10-year plan was submitted to the Indiana Commission for Higher Education, along with requests for implementation of the plan's proposals for the immediate future.

USI's Higher Education Services Plan continues to outline the University's efforts to meet curricular and development needs that have been identified for southwestern Indiana by a Commission for Higher Education study. The plan approved by the Board Thursday emphasizes:

- * Locally-based master's degree programs in secondary and elementary education and business administration.
- * Wider access to public higher education for older and minority students and those previously unserved in southern Indiana.
- * Continued efforts to reduce the part-time faculty to a level of 20 percent of the instructional staff.
- * Continued support for economic development programs, including the Southern Indiana Development Center, the Management Diagnostic Center, and the Labor-Management Forum.

The Higher Education Services Plan notes two actions are needed to fully implement an M.B.A. program now offered cooperatively with the University of Evansville. The University will need increased funding to achieve accreditation standards of the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business. The authority for USI to confer an M.B.A. degree also is needed to resolve legal issues. Students who now complete studies in the program earn a degree from UE.

New degree programs in the plan — an associate degree in Early Childhood Education and a baccalaureate major in German — are designed for implementation in the fall of 1988. The Early Childhood Education program is not available now in southwestern Indiana. Students would be prepared to teach young children in private and cooperative nursery schools, day-care centers or homes, church-affiliated programs, or in Head Start classrooms. Completed coursework could be applied toward a bachelor's degree in elementary education, with an endorsement in kindergarten. The German major would accommodate education students and others, such as business majors, who want to broaden the scope of their education. A formal exchange program established in 1986 with the University of Osnabruck and the Technical College of Osnabruck, both located in Evansville's sister city in West Germany, would enhance the USI program.

DR. SINGER'S BOOK REVIEWED IN NEW ENGLAND JOURNAL OF MEDICINE

Dr. George E. Ruff of the University of Pennsylvania wrote a favorable review of The Heredity of Behavior Disorders in Adults and Children in the February, 1987, issue of The New England Journal of Medicine. The book was written by Drs. Steven G. Vandenberg, Sandra Manes Singer, and David L. Pauls and was published in 1986 by Plenum Press of New York. Dr. Singer is an associate professor of psychology at USI and director of the Evansville Graduate Studies Center. Dr. Ruff calls the book a comprehensive, up-to-date review and repeats a foreword assessment that it "can serve as a textbook of both genetics and behavior, including well-considered discussions of psychiatric diagnosis, biology of illness, and the role of life events in psychiatry."

GOVERNOR APPOINTS PATRICK LEAHY TO BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Patrick Leahy, 21, a junior majoring in electrical engineering technology, has been appointed by Indiana Governor Robert D. Orr to a two-year term on the USI Board of Trustees. He succeeds Eric Williams, the first student to serve on the USI Board of Trustees. Leahy is a 1984 Castle High School (Newburgh) graduate who originally came to USI to pursue soccer. His first year proved disappointing and he left the team "because I promised myself that when soccer wasn't fun anymore I'd quit. I love and respect the game too much to learn to hate it," he said in an interview in the campus newspaper, The Shield.

Leahy became involved with campus activities after his wife Andrea invited him to an Activities Programming Board meeting. He and fellow engineering technology students decided that their Institute of Electric and Electronic Engineers club needed reorganizing. Leahy was elected vice president and under his leadership, club membership has doubled and activities such as field trips to industrial sites and seminars have been organized.

As University trustee, Leahy sets aside time to be around the students in the UC lounge, as well as being at Friday morning Student Government Association meetings and spending Tuesdays and Thursdays in the SGA office. "The most important part of being trustee is to be accessible to the students," he said. "I like for people to share their concerns with me anytime." His major concerns are the new $7.8-million classroom building, representing the students' thoughts to the board, and seeing the University continue to grow "in programs as well as numbers . . ."

Leahy is employed as a Citizens National Bank teller monitor. He also coaches the boys' reserve and girls' varsity soccer teams at Harrison High School (Evansville). Leahy and his wife, a junior majoring in communications, has a daughter, Sarah.

USI ALUMNA HAS SERIES OF SHORT STORIES PUBLISHED

Barbara Haas, a 1980 USI English graduate, is the author of "When California Was An Island," a series of short stories published this year by Story Line Press in Santa Cruz, California. The timely series of eight stories is set on the seismologically unsettled soil of southern California. The instability of the landscape pervades the lives of Haas' central characters, each wanting to change her life even when those attempts only lead to further disillusionment. Haas, who doesn't believe it is possible to construct new lives in new environments, remains fascinated by the impossibility of her characters' dreams and the challenge of presenting them in moving, penetrating images. "I love the struggle. I love the trying," she said in a recent interview published in The Evansville Courier.

Haas received her master's degree from the University of California-Irvine in 1982. She has been a visiting professor at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee and now is assistant professor at Iowa State University in Ames. At 30, the Evansville native has seen her work published in a dozen literary magazines from Georgia to California to Alaska. She recently won a $20,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts to continue work on another series of stories that she hopes to see published.

NEW LANARK, SCOTLAND, TO BE SITE OF COMMUNAL STUDIES CONFERENCE

The USI Center for Communal Studies will co-sponsor an international conference on social reform and communitarian experience July 18-21, 1988, at Robert Owen's historic milltown of New Lanark, Scotland, in a picturesque valley of the Clyde River. Other sponsors are the New Lanark Conservation Trust, the International Communal Studies Association, and the National Historic Communal Societies Association.

The conference will open with a dinner on Monday, July 18, at the University of Edinburgh, where conferees will be housed and some sessions will be conducted. The restored buildings where Owen experimented with the infant and adult education that became principal features of his New Harmony, Indiana, community in the 1820s will be the setting for addresses by scholars and communitarians from Europe, Israel, Japan, and the United States. Dr. Donald E. Pitzer, USI professor of history and director of the USI Center for Communal Studies, will present a paper titled "Developmental Communalism: An Alternative Approach to Communal Studies."

A tour of New Lanark will include Owen's famous Institution for the Formation of Character, his office and home, the church, workers' "row houses," and the home of New Lanark founder David Dale, whose daughter married Owen. A concert of Owenite period music will be presented by the New Harmony Golden Raintree Singers and the Harmonist Chorale.

Several days of optional touring in Scotland, England, and Wales, to be offered following the formal meetings, will include the ancient monastery on the island of Iona, which has two points of interest for New Harmonyites. Art work there includes a twin to Jacques Lipchitz's mystical sculpture, Notre Dame de Liesse (also called Descent of the Holy Spirit), which is on display in the Roofless Church in New Harmony. (Another casting of it can be found in Assy, France). In addition, MacLeod Barn Abbey is a retreat and conference center being built at New Harmony to honor the Rev. George MacLeod of the Iona Community.

Those wishing to share in this educational and recreational experience in Great Britain should contact Dr. Pitzer at the USI Center for Communal Studies, University of Southern Indiana, 8600 University Boulevard, Evansville, IN 47712, or call (812) 464-1719.

Graduates and faculty of the USI engineering technology program gathered for the group's first official reunion. Tom Peck, '81 engineering technology graduate, and his wife Helen, '81 psychology graduate, enjoyed memories presented in photo albums.

NATIONAL CROSS COUNTRY CHAMPIONSHIPS BRING COUNTRY'S BEST RUNNERS TO SOUTHERN INDIANA

The University of Southern Indiana was host to the NCAA Division II Cross Country regional and national championships in November. The men's and women's teams competed on 5,000 meter (women) and 10,000 meter (men) courses at the Oak Meadow Golf and Country Club just north of Evansville. USI Cross Country Coach Bill Stegemoller mapped out the challenging course on the club's rolling hills. Perhaps the most difficult part of the course was the demanding uphill run to the finish line.

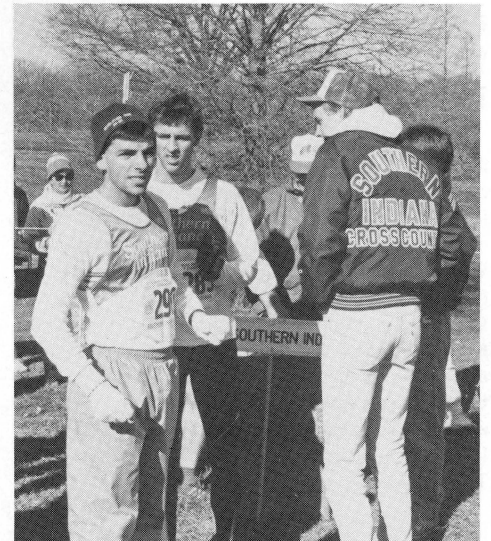

The USI men's cross country team qualified for the national competition by placing second in the Great Lakes Regional competition held November 7 at Oak Meadow. James Little, a USI senior, led the USI team in the regional by finishing sixth overall. Mike Orban, a junior, was ninth. Sophomore Troy Ward was 10th, junior Christopher Ward was 17th, and sophomore Dennis Griffin was 18th. First place regional honors went to Southeast Missouri. USI does not have a women's cross country team.

With a history of competing well in national events, USI entered the November 21 national championship event with optimism. The Eagles finished third nationally in 1982 and fifth in 1983. Last year they finished 11th, and with six of the top seven runners from that team returning, there was reason for optimism.

The race was held on a chilly morning with temperatures in the low 30s, but the sun was shining brightly and warmed competitors and spectators later in the morning. Teams were drawn from throughout the country, with many from the middle and far west. Included in the competitors were two runners considered top contenders for the 1988 Seoul Olympic Games — Kenyans Peter Rono and Charles Cherviyot from Mount Saint Mary's College. As it turned out, they dominated the race. Cherviyot won the men's competition in 30:42, an average of 4:57 minutes per mile. Rono was only one second behind him.

The USI men's team finished in 11th place overall, with 250 points. Top-ranked Edinboro State, with 95 points, finished first in the 17-team field. Mankato State was second, with 113 points. Only Eagles freshman Troy Ward finished in the top 40 runners. Coach Bill Stegemoller said the team was disappointed in its performance. "We were in a good position early in the race . . . it just wasn't our day," he said.

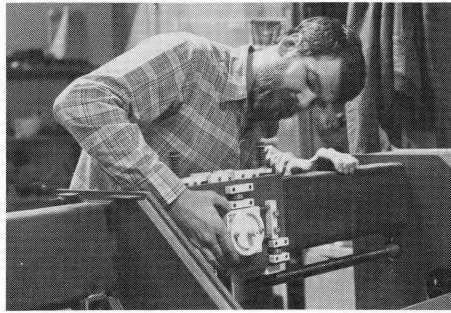

The event was USI's first opportunity to host a national NCAA event. Numerous volunteers — students, faculty, staff, and fans — were enlisted to assist with race day activities as well as planning and entertainment.

USI GRADUATE IS TOP MECHANICAL ENGINEERING STUDENT IN NATION

Keith Benedict, a 1987 mechanical engineering technology graduate who now is laboratory supervisor in the Division of Engineering Technology, was selected as the 1987 Charles T. Main Student Section Award Silver Medalist by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. The award, presented at the ASME Winter Meeting December 13-18 in Boston, recognizes at the national level a student member whose leadership and service qualities have contributed over a period of at least two years to the program and operation of a student section of the society.

Benedict was recognized "for unselfishly serving your community, school, and profession in civic projects including aiding in the restoration of the Evansville Old Courthouse Bell, serving as University of Southern Indiana Student Section chairman, and continued participation in Regional and National Old Guard Contests."

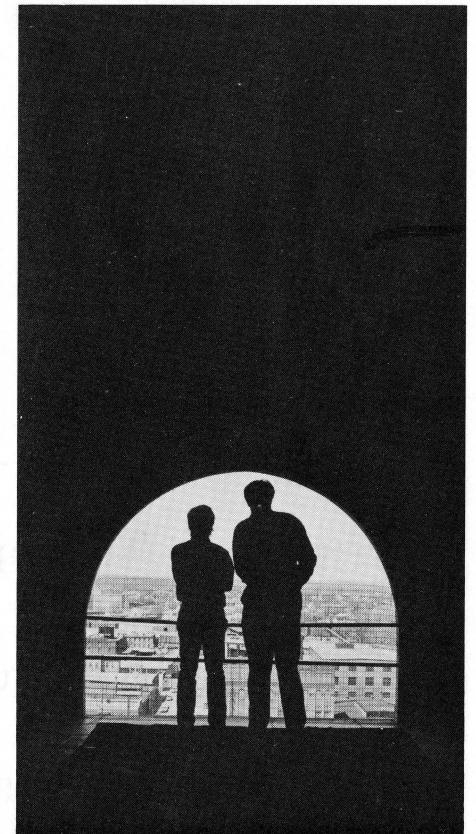

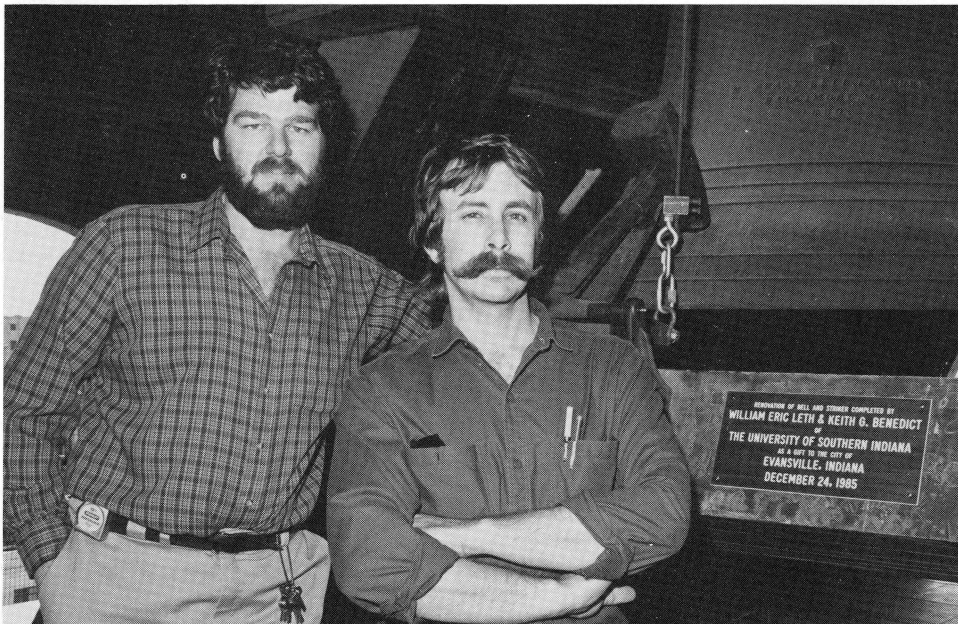

Benedict is an affable 33-year-old who spent nine years out of high school working as a machinist at the old Bucyrus-Erie Company in Evansville. He entered USI after the plant closed in 1982, having learned he no longer needed his brawn to make a living; he learned he could use his brain. Now, he is thinking about getting a master's degree because he would like to teach.

Benedict won first place last spring in ASME's regional student competition at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, giving him an expense-paid trip to the Boston meeting for the national student competition. His winning project — "Dragon Breath The Pipe Slayer: A Numerically Controlled Pipe Profiler" — involves computerized control of a pipe-fitting machine that allows for more precise pipe connection. He is applying for a patent on the computer formula.

This is the fourth year that Benedict has had a winning project in the ASME regional competition. He won first place in 1984 with a flower cart design; second in 1985 with an inexpensive bolt-threading tool; and fourth in 1986 with the Evansville Courthouse bell project. He is believed the only student to have achieved this record of consecutive wins.

Benedict and William Leth, supervisor of the USI Art Workshop, worked together on the restoration of the Old Courthouse bell, a project of volunteer work and materials that saved at least $1,500 for the Conrad Baker Foundation which operates the historic building. Benedict now is a leader in the community project to restore an old P47 similar to the aircraft that were built at Republic Aviation in Evansville during World War II. The restored plane will be on display at Evansville Regional Airport.

The common objective underlying all this activity is to develop an organization that can offer something to all USI Alumni. The Alumni Association is for you, whether you're an alumnus who graduated or one who has not yet received a degree; whether you were a student who participated in student activities or one whose years at USI were filled by studies and work; whether you came to USI right after high school or as a nontraditional student.

The success of the events we plan and the programs we develop may only be measured in the number of people who attend or the dollars we raise, but the true success of our effort will be the degree to which we achieve our objective to build the Alumni Association into an organization that can offer something of value to all Alumni of the University of Southern Indiana.

Get involved, be an active Alumnus, and bring your family to Homecoming. Then, when we call or write you in February, let us know how you think we're doing.

FORMER TRUSTEE ALBERT A. WOLL DIES

himself abreast of current thinking in his fields of interest and aware of University needs. Woll was a native of New York City who came to Evansville to live in 1951. As head of Woll Enterprises, Inc., he was an independent oil producer and farm manager. He was a member of the Evansville-Vanderburgh School Board from 1959 to 1971, serving as president for two terms. He was a student in an American Issues Forum at the University when he was appointed in 1976 to the Indiana State University Board of Trustees and became a champion in the drive to establish a separate state university on the site of the Evansville campus. When that occurred in 1985, he resigned from the ISU Board and Governor Robert D. Orr made him an honorary member of the USI Board.

USI President David L. Rice said: "Al Woll's death is a great loss to the University. He was a zealous proponent of higher education and worked for several decades to ensure that people of all ages and circumstances could avail themselves of excellent public education, from kindergarten through college. He was key to assuring the future of USI as a separate state university and always was mindful of the trust he was given in nurturing the development of this institution."

The family has established the Albert A. Woll Memorial Fund with the USI Foundation. Memorial contributions may be sent to the Development Office.

The University community deeply mourned the loss of a long-time friend when Albert A. Woll died August 8 while on a trip to Boston. Woll's devotion to education had been a part of his daily life for 30 years. He not only served on the governing boards but also enrolled in USI classes to keep

FIRST USI FINANCIAL AID DIRECTOR DIES

Elmer E. Sander, USI financial aid director emeritus, died September 3 in Boca Raton, Florida. Before entering business for himself in 1946, he was an auditor for the State of Indiana and claims deputy and office manager with the Indiana Employment Security Division. He also was an auditor for the U. S. General Accounting Office. It was after his business retirement that he became the University's first financial aid director. He also was a founder of the USI Varsity Club. Mr. Sander is survived by his wife Rayburn, his daughter Nancy Cox, and his son Steve Sander.

Memorial contributions may be sent to the USI Memorial Fund of the USI Foundation and cards may be sent to Mrs. Sander at 800 E. Camino Real, Apt. 207, Boca Raton, FL 33432. In a recent note to the University, Mrs. Sander wrote, "Elmer and I spent many happy hours reminiscing about the enjoyable years we were associated with the University and I shall always treasure those memories."
