Dear Fellow Alumni:

On August 13, 1981, President Reagan signed into law the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 (ERTA). The ERTA, in part, specifies that individual income tax rates are to be reduced by specified percentages each year beginning in 1981.

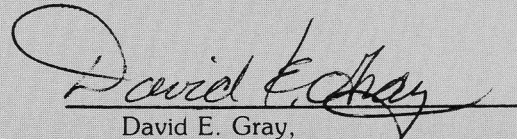

The cumulative percentage reductions through 1984 are: 1981—1.25%, 1982—11%, 1983—19%, and 1984—23%. In addition, the ERTA reduces the maximum marginal rate of income tax for individuals from seventy (70) to fifty (50) percent effective January 1, 1982.

As a result of these reductions, a deductible contribution made by an individual in 1981 will offset greater tax liability than the same deductible contribution will if made in 1982 or thereafter. The amount of the tax savings will vary depending upon the individual's marginal tax rate. In some cases, the tax savings from a deductible contribution in 1981 may be substantially greater than the same contribution in 1982.

For this reason, you may wish to accelerate your annual contribution to the ISUE Alumni Association for 1982 and your deduction therefore into 1981 by sending your 1982 contribution in before December 31, 1981. The Alumni Association will consider all contributions received after December 1, 1981 as "1982 contributions" for membership purposes. If you have been contemplating a larger than usual contribution, 1981 is the year to make it. Checks should be made payable to the ISUE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION and mailed to:

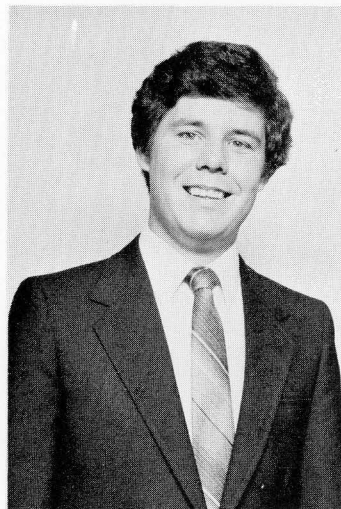

ISUE Alumni Association
8600 University Boulevard
Evansville, Indiana 47712

The annual Alumni Association Telethon will still be held sometime in March 1982. If you prefer, we would be happy to take your 1982 contribution at that time.

ISUE STUDENT NAMED TRUSTEE

Greg Hall

For the first time in ISU's history, a student from the Evansville campus has been named student trustee on the ISU Board of Trustees.

Greg T. Hall, a 20-year old sophomore political science major, was appointed to the Board by Governor Robert D. Orr. In addition to being a full-time student, Greg has been vice president of Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity, a student senator in ISUE's Student Government Association, and a Student Union Board chairperson. He also has been a Republican precinct committeeman in Evansville.

Jim Cox, senior communications major, rewrites wire service copy for WSWI's Morning Report, which airs at 7:30 a.m. Monday through Friday.

WSWI: A DREAM COME TRUE

by Diana R. Thomas

A young man yawns, stretches and then begins typing. He is seated at the center of the media services desk in the Technology Center. The darkness outside at 5:00 am is no incentive to inspired news rewriting. Out of dozens of stories that came over the wire service during the night, he must decide which ones are most interesting to the listening public.

He is the gatekeeper—and test anxiety has been working on him for weeks. This is it—November 3, 1981 when WSWI signs on with the morning news, and Jim Cox gets his first experience at being 'on the air'.

This experience with broadcast is exactly what John David Engelbrecht had in mind for communications students at ISUE when he offered WIKY AM82 as a gift to the University. He recalled his days as a college student and how working at a college station helped him.

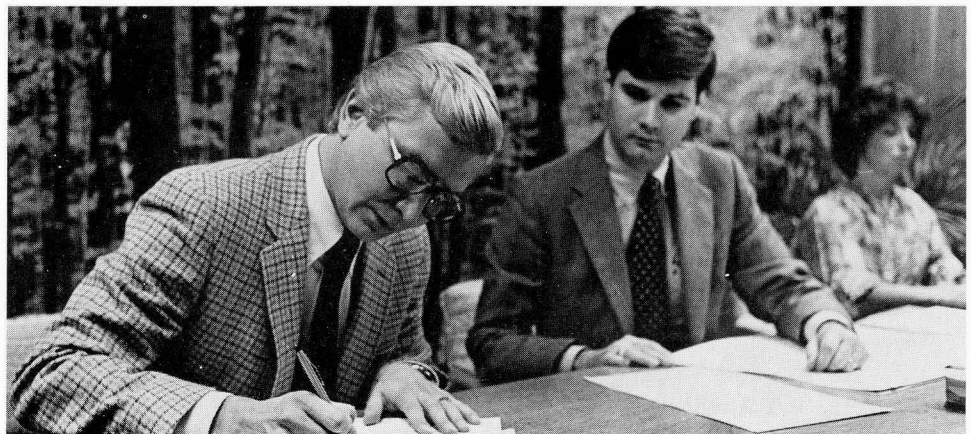

"Professor Seymour Brodsky and his broadcast students dubbed their practice station for class as WSWI, which stands for South Western Indiana. WSWI suited us better than any other suggestion. These call letters were available from the FCC, and within three months of filing for our license, dreams became reality in one of the fastest license transfers in history," said Dr. Kenneth Creech, Assistant Professor in Communications who will serve as General Station Manager.

Dr. Creech set high standards for the ISUE radio station format and staff. His goal for broadcast students is a well-rounded program which allows them to obtain a complete picture of radio station operations. There are five paid staff members—Jim Cox, News Director; Andy Birkhead, Music Director; Dale Carter, Production Director; Terry Ricketts, Promotions Director, and Theresa Wolf, Traffic Director. These students have the opportunity to coordinate and select music, work with pre-packaged programs, produce public information programs, and actually manage a radio station with the knowledge that persons within a 50-mile radius hear what goes over the air waves. Students produce quality programming that fills the need for news, information, and classical and jazz music format in the greater Evansville area.

To continue the high quality programming which WSWI has begun, donations and program underwriting will be necessary. A fund has been established through the Foundation called "Friends of WSWI". Currently the station is underwritten by the Foundation and the Alumni Association. According to Creech, "The funding is adequate to start. The University gave me what I asked for, but obviously to continue we will need more."

Persons wishing to underwrite programs or make contributions should contact the Development Office about these tax deductible opportunities.

WSWI became a reality on Monday, November 2 when John David Engelbrecht, pictured above, signed the papers donating WIKY-AM to ISUE.

Assignment In Germany

Becky Hadley, Class of 1977, and her husband Jim have returned from a three-year military assignment in Frankfurt, West Germany. Jim was stationed at 32 Signal Battalion in Hoechst, a part of Frankfurt, and both Becky and Jim say they thoroughly enjoyed their three years there. At our request, Becky has written an article sharing her experiences, as a Hoosier abroad, with her fellow alumni.

Neither Jim nor I knew any German prior to going to Germany, although Jim did pick up a few words and phrases before I joined him. Soon after I arrived, we took a "Head Start" class. It was a week-long class designed to acquaint newcomers with the country, its language and its customs. We were taught basic language skills and use of the transportation and monetary systems. We also went on field trips to put some of our lessons into practice, and took a six-week course in beginning German. Basically, we learned how to order food, ask directions, get tickets for transportation, and shop in German stores. Our final class was a trip to a nearby "Gast haus" or restaurant where we could speak only German while dealing with the waiter and employees. Many Germans understand and speak English, which was helpful. More than once we would use our stilted German only to have a waitress or ticket agent repeat our order in English.

We did not have a car the entire three years we were there, but that did not stop us from getting around. Several places were within walking distance (Jim's job for instance) so we got plenty of exercise. The Army ran a shuttle bus three times a week from most housing areas to main American points in Frankfurt—the bank, hospital, Post Exchange, and Commissary. We also used public transportation frequently. The Germans have a fantastic government-run system, which includes buses, trains, and "strassenbahns" (streetcars). It is a reliable system and not very expensive. Frankfurt has one of the largest train stations in Europe, so we had access to several trains going in all directions. We also had access to USO-sponsored trips which were reasonably priced.

We lived in U.S. military housing in Hoechst, about a 20-minute walk from Jim's job. It was an all-American community consisting of five apartment buildings and two duplexes and housing about 90 families in all. Since we lived in military quarters, we did not feel the economic fluctuations as did those who lived in German apartments. The state of the U.S. economy did, however, affect the buying power of our dollars when we went outside U.S. installations.

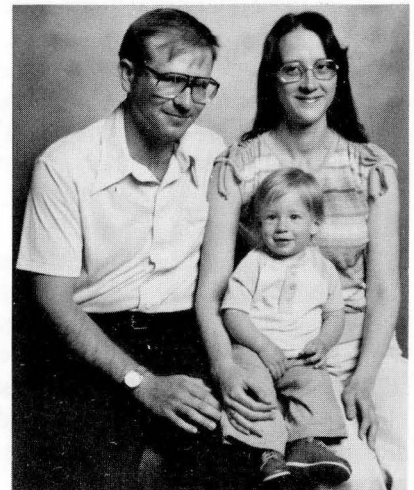

We visited areas around Frankfurt extensively. Our favorite (or one of them) was the beautiful town of Bad Homburg. This is where Kaiser Wilhelm lived during his lifetime. The palace has been beautifully kept throughout the years and for around 50 cents, we were able to tour the palace with its rich furnishings. In another part of town are the king's magnificent gardens and his bath. Remember, in those days they went to baths to drink and bathe in mineral water—to cure their ills. They still have mineral springs where people come to fill jugs with the water to take home. The gardens were always well kept and planted in flowers of that particular season.

The only other country we visited was Austria, on a one-day tour. We had taken a four-day USO trip to Bavaria. The hotel where we stayed offered the tour to Innsbruck, Austria. It was April, and there was still snow on the mountains. It was the most beautiful countryside I had ever seen. Other than the mountains, the most impressive sight was the ski jump used in the 1964 and 1976 Olympics. We were taken to the top to see the breathtaking view seen by the skiers as they prepare to make their jump. It is an awesome sight including the mountains, a church and a large cemetery. Fortunately, the skiers are concentrating on their jump and not on what is below.

The bulk of our friends were other military personnel and their families. I have some German cousins who live in the Frankfurt area and in the small town of Biblis. We only saw them once or twice, but it was interesting to visit a German family in their environment. The best part of our experience in Germany was all of the friends we made there. The majority of the people in our housing area were friendly and helpful, and with our families so many miles away, we really needed friends. We look forward to returning if the Army is willing.

Becky and Jim are now stationed at the 233 MP Detachment at Carlisle Barracks, PA 17013. They have a 2½ year old son Jimmy.

VARSITY CLUB HELPS EAGLES TO SOAR

by Douglas Claybourn

Entering its second decade of service to the University, the "Screaming Eagles" Varsity Club is a group of loyal and dedicated friends of ISUE who support the total intercollegiate athletic program. From its humble beginnings in the fall of 1971, the Varsity Club has grown to more than 400 supporters with membership increasing each week.

The purpose of the Varsity Club is to provide financial assistance to deserving student athletes through the University's grant-in-aid scholarship program; to unite the students, faculty, alumni, and friends of ISUE; and to recruit outstanding prospective students who have the ability to contribute to the athletic program.

There are many benefits of membership in the Varsity Club, but most importantly, members have the satisfaction of helping young men and women who are proficient in sports, and who wish to excel in higher education. Since its inception, the Varsity Club has offered three different membership classifications. The initial level of giving, Screaming Eagle member ($25-$99), entitles the donor an invitation to all social functions and outings as well as a tax deduction. The second level, Golden Eagle ($100-$499), which makes up the largest part of the Varsity Club, enables the donor to use the facilities of the school's new Health, Physical Education, and Recreation Complex; to receive special ticket privileges; use of the Hospitality Room; informational newsletters; and a certificate of membership. Until this year, the highest level of giving has been the Regal Eagle ($500-$999). This level includes all the benefits of the above-mentioned categories, plus a family soccer pass, specially-designed plaque, and a complimentary copy of the men's basketball press guide.

This year, for the first time, a fourth level of giving, All-American Regal Eagle ($1000 and above), has been created for those who wish to do more for the University. In addition to all benefits accorded the other levels, the All-American Regal Eagle member receives admission to all ISUE athletic events, and an invitation to a special recognition banquet.

In his second term as chairman of the Varsity Club, Steve McCullough sees even more growth ahead for the organization.

"We have really picked up a lot of new members this year," McCullough said, "what's more, a lot of our older, established members are increasing their contributions and moving to higher levels of giving. Overall, this looks like it will be one of the best years we've had in the history of the Club."

He continued, "We're busy planning a lot of new and different activities and hope to offer more bus trips to away basketball games this year. We have an active membership and everyone participates by donating their time, as well as their money. Our aim is not only continued improvement of the athletic program at ISUE, but also continued improvement of the University as a whole."

In regard to ISUE's new level of giving, All-American Regal Eagle, "We've had good response, so far" McCullough replied, "We've added a couple of new members, but we'll always be looking to expand in that category."

"We are hoping to interest more corporations and corporate people," athletic director and head basketball coach Creighton Burns added, in reference to the All-American Regal Eagle prospects.

"Of course we would certainly welcome membership from individuals, as well. I think it was important to add the new level of giving, because it underscores our need to continue to offer quality education to young men and women while the cost of doing this continues to increase."

It goes without saying that ISUE would be hard pressed to field intercollegiate athletic teams without the tremendous support of the Varsity Club. Burns is a little more specific, "Without the support of the Varsity Club, we would probably have only men's and women's basketball. However, with the Varsity Club, we are able to field eight other men's and women's sports and be competitive within our Great Lakes Valley Conference.

"In short," he summarized, "the Varsity Club is the lifeblood of our athletic program at ISUE."

Foundation Report

MESSAGE FROM ISUE FOUNDATION PRESIDENT E. DONALD ELLIOTT

The ISUE Foundation's role in the on-going success and development of the University is one of service. Through the efforts of its officers and directors, the Foundation experienced a 40% increase this past year in the giving levels within the ISUE Foundation.

This increase will permit the Foundation to approve its largest budget ever in support of many University needs and projects. With the expected cutbacks in state and federal funding, these contributed amounts will enable the University to maintain its high level of scholarship support to students and to further assist in the development of many faculty and student activities.

The Foundation is proud of its record, but challenged by the needs of the future. With progress comes the responsibility for providing the necessary tools for nurturing the imagination and intellect of tomorrow's students.

Another Foundation Special Project . . . A University Home

A University Home has long been a topic for discussion among many of our business and community leaders. The Foundation Board of Directors, at its summer 1981 meeting, unanimously approved plans for the project and its construction on Foundation-owned property adjacent to the western boundary of the campus.

The University Home is a project not funded through state appropriations. The Foundation, with Evansville realtor Don Cox serving as chairman of the fund drive, has been contacting individuals and businesses for contributions to this project. The Foundation is totally committed to making the University Home a reality.

A Leader's Residence - The University Home will provide an on-campus residence for the University President and the First Family.

A Symbol of Community Pride - The University Home is visible evidence of the pride a University and community have in their campus.

A Center of Social Awareness - The University Home will provide a warm and comfortable setting for a variety of social functions. It is not uncommon for a University to host groups ranging in size from four to two hundred in a University home many times a month.

An Assurance of Quality Leadership - The University Home will insure that this campus will be able to continue to attract the highest quality of University and community leadership.

A University Home will be the center of many functions for students, faculty, alumni, and friends of the University. It adds a special personal touch to a campus atmosphere and provides an opportunity for the University's First Family to truly become an integral part of all campus activities.

Schlottman, an Evansville native, joined Old National Bank in 1949 and has held various positions there. He has been director of the bank since 1976 and was elected president in 1980.

He attended University of Evansville and holds a Graduate Certificate in Commercial Banking from the American Institute of Banking. He also is a graduate of the School of Banking at the University of Wisconsin.

An active civic leader, Schlottman is a director and past president of the Metropolitan Evansville Chamber of Commerce and holds directorships in the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce, Evansville's Future, Inc., the Evansville Industrial Foundation, and Channel 9 public television. He is a

He formerly was a chairman and member of the Salvation Army Board, crusade chairman of the Vanderburgh County Cancer Society, and held presidencies of the Evansville Philharmonic Orchestra, Evansville chapter of the Administrative Management Association, Junior Achievement of Southwestern Indiana, and Evansville Clearinghouse Association. He and his wife Dody reside at 2525 Knob Hill Drive.

Mitchell, a native Illinoisan, is owner and operator of the M & M Oil Company of Albion, Illinois. He has been active not only in his home community, but in the Evansville area as well. He is a director of the National Bank of Grayville, Illinois, and of B & K Energy Limited of Wayne City, Illinois. He also is active in the Deaconess Hospital Foundation and the West Salem Lodge No. 866 A.F. & A.M. He holds memberships in the Petroleum Club, the Evansville Country Club, and Oak Meadow Country Club. He and his wife Trudy reside in rural Albion.

RICHARD E. MEIER DIES

Richard E. Meier, honorary doctor of laws, 1972, died in Evansville of a heart attack October 8. One of the early and ardent supporters of public higher education in southwestern Indiana, Meier was a member of the board of directors of Southern Indiana Higher Education, Inc. Through his involvement in this organization, he was instrumental in the establishment of the Evansville campus of Indiana State University.

Meier was the retired chairman of the board of Credi-Thrift Corporation, an organization which he helped to build from a single office in 1920 to operations in 591 offices located throughout 25 states in the U.S. In addition to his years of service with Credi-Thrift, he was well-known for his efforts in civic, industrial, and religious circles and received several awards for his civic endeavors.

Thanks to Foundation for Scholarship Support

by Harold Calloway
ISUE Director of Financial Aid

Over the past few years, student financial aid has been a significant factor in making it possible for many qualified citizens to obtain a post-secondary education. Few persons would deny the importance of having a strong system of post-secondary education for our society, for it is clear that the United States would not be able to continue its position of world leadership without a well trained and educated citizenry. Thomas Jefferson, one of the great spokesmen for education, stated, "The Commonwealth requires the education of her people as the safeguard of order and liberty". Today's problems and tensions make this requirement even more important.

Student financial aid at Indiana State University Evansville has made it possible for many students to realize their potential and make significant contributions to our community and society.

Federal and State student financial aid has experienced a drastic reduction this past year and future cuts are inevitable.

The ISUE Foundation has played an integral role in filling the financial aid gap for those students suffering from State and Federal cuts in student financial aids.

It is our anticipation that the need for Foundation-supported student financial aid will be more critical in the next three to four years than at any other time in the University's history.

A Student Responds

"I sincerely appreciate the renewal of my Kathleen Wardner Memorial Scholarship for the 1981-82 school year. Thank you for helping me meet my college expenses."

ATTORNEYS CO-CHAIR ALUMNI TELEFUND

David A. Bunner, Class of 1972, and David E. Gray, Class of 1974, will co-chair the 1982 Alumni Telefund. The annual fund drive of the Alumni Association is held in March and raises money for operating expenses and special projects of the Association.

The 1981 campaign generated $20,490.50, including a challenge grant of $7,500. The co-chairmen are hoping to increase the alumni fund by approximately 25 percent in 1982. Proceeds from the Telefund, the only fundraiser of the Association, were used last year for several programs including the annual Teacher Education Breakfast, Homecoming, Indianapolis Alumni Reception, Alumni Banquet, Alumni Reception at the opening of the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Building, and the Betty Rice Tribute. In addition to these programs, the Association gave $3,000 in scholarships to deserving ISUE students, and responded to requests for financial assistance from the Mid-America Singers and WSWI Radio, ISUE's new noncommercial educational radio service.

Bunner and Gray, who are organizing alumni volunteers for the annual telefund, are both optimistic about their project. "While we fully recognize the difficult economic situation at this time, we are confident the ISUE alumni will fully support the Association in reaching its goal again this year," Bunner remarked. The 1978 graduate of Drake University Law School is in private practice in Evansville and serves as corporate counsel for the city. His wife Lana Gee Bunner is a 1972 graduate of ISUE.

Gray graduated from the Indiana University School of Law in 1977 and is associated with the Evansville law firm of Bowers, Harrison and Kent. He is married to the former Cathy Dwyer who attended ISUE.

Gray urges alumni to respond to the Telefund, saying, "ISUE continues to grow and prosper each year; as it does, the goals and demands upon the Alumni Association also grow. Please help meet these goals by contributing."
