VOL. XXX, No. 3 - September 15, 1995

New housing, University Center expansion gain approvals

Following reports by USI administrators of a three percent enrollment increase for Fall 1995, the USI Board of Trustees at the regular meeting September 7 authorized the sale of student fee bonds to help finance the $4.7-million University Center expansion and the construction of three more apartment buildings in student housing at a cost of $2.7 million.

USI President H. Ray Hoops said University officials are responding to the enrollment growth with the University Center expansion, plans to construct three new apartment buildings in student housing, and the continuing effort to move a proposed classroom building ahead on the state calendar. In the 1995 legislative session, bonding authority was given for the classroom building in 1999.

Construction bids for UC expansion had come in higher than expected. The Board authorized Dr. Hoops to seek approval from the Indiana Commission for Higher Education (ICHE) and State Budget Committee to increase the UC project cost from $4.1-million to $4.7 million and get a fall 1995 construction start on the housing. ICHE agreed to recommend both requests to the State Budget Committee, which approved the UC funding increase on September 8 and may act on the housing request in October; approval would allow bidding and a construction start yet this fall so the housing units could be ready for occupancy in fall 1996.

Dr. John W. Byrd, vice president for Student Affairs, announced a 22 percent increase in this year's freshman class and an overall three percent enrollment increase. He said 92 percent of the 7,666 students are from Indiana. Dr. Byrd noted the quality of the freshman class has increased, with SAT scores averaging 936 overall. Full-time students increased by 7.3 percent and make up 60 percent of the student population.

Dr. Byrd also reported the Student Finan-

13 to be honored at Founders Day

Eleven current employees and two retirees will be recognized at the 30th anniversary Founders Day reception at 3:30 p.m. Friday, September 15, in Mitchell Auditorium. The University community is urged to stop by and enjoy the roasting and kudos that will review the 25 years each spent at USI.

Mr. James T. "Champ" Douglas has the distinction of being the first of the clerical/support staff to join the ranks of 25-year veterans at USI. For him, the "good old days" came when Mr. Wayne Boultinghouse coached the basketball Eagles and Mr. Douglas not only volunteered his time during home games, but accompanied the team on the road as a "member" of the coaching staff. Long-time fans will remember the drum he brought to the games for many years to provide a little emphasis for fan reactions; he said he hasn't used the drum in a couple of years, because a "misunderstanding" developed among game officials. Less active these days, he still is a familiar face at Eagles' home games.

Mr. Douglas started as a custodial worker in the Science and Administration buildings, then worked at the Watch your driving!

Mr. Barry Hart, Safety and Security director, said a number of complaints have been registered about sly driving practices on the entrance ramp and Eickhoff Road during peak traffic hours.

It seems, he said, that impatient motorists pass the sometimes long line of ramp-access traffic on the right, make a right turn onto Eickhoff, then a U-turn that gives them a straight shot into campus -- but causes longer traffic tie-ups and short tempers for those who patiently wait their turn.

Vanderburgh County sheriff's deputies checked out the driving habits, agreed there is a problem, and began issuing citations last Friday morning. If you want to avoid a traffic ticket, be advised:

- * It is illegal to pass ramp-access traffic on the right.
- * It is illegal to make a U-turn on a divided highway.

Mr. Hart said county police will continue to monitor the situation and write tickets. So stay in line and wait your turn. (Note: Mrs. Sherrienne Standley, vice president for Advancement, has been monitoring the time in line; it ranges from three to five minutes -- ease up!)

cial Assistance Office administered more than $11.8 million and served more than 6,500 students in the 1994-95 program. Funding for financial assistance increased by nine percent over the prior year. State funding increased but federal funding through Pell Grants decreased by 11 percent. The number of student loans and the amounts of the loans both increased for the year.

In other business, the Board received a report from Mrs. Joanne Wright on a proposal to establish a Volunteer Service Corps, a program to attract volunteers to help in a variety of University projects. The program is expected to benefit both the volunteer and the University. Mrs. Wright, a retired Ivy Tech administrator, heads the task force investigating the volunteer program. They visited colleges with successful programs and drafted a report listing program goals and mission. Short-term and long-term opportunities would be available for volunteers, depending on personal schedules.

The board also approved a resolution of appreciation for three members who have served on the board with distinction. The resolution recognized Mr. Brent A. Auberry, immediate past student representative (1993-95); Mr. J. David Huber, Tell City attorney; and Mr. Robert W. Swan, Evansville CPA who was the alumni representative. Mr. Huber and Mr. Swan had served since 1991.

Two new board members -- Mrs. Louise Bruce of Tell City, chairman of Can-Clay Corporation of Cannelton, and Ms. Nicole Cable, the new student representative -- attended their first meeting. Mrs. Bruce is active in the Perry County Community Foundation and Leadership Perry County and is a national leader with the Daughters of the American Revolution. Ms. Cable is president of the Student Alumni Association and active in the Student Government Association and several other campus organizations. She holds the Fred Newman Presidential Scholarship.

Welcome:

The University community welcomes Ms.

Glenda J. Crites, assistant in biochemistry. She has an A.S. degree from Olney Central College and a bachelor's in microbiology from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

Thank you:

The Admissions Office would like to thank the entire University community for helping to make the 1995 orientation and registration very successful. Special thanks go to those who gave so much time and effort to ensure this success.

Congratulations....

to Dr. Sheila D. Melander, assistant professor of nursing, and her husband Chuck on the birth August 25 of their second son, Matthew Taylor.

Sympathy:

The University community extends sympathy to Dr. J. Eliseo DaRosa, professor emeritus of economics, in the death September 2 of his wife Doris. Sympathy notes may be sent to their retirement address, library prior to being sent to Central Arena in downtown Evansville in 1976 as the sole housekeeping employee for the former ISSUE basketball facility. He was back on campus with the opening of the Physical Activities Center in 1980. "I surprised myself," he notes of his 25-year tenure. "I hadn't planned on being here that long." Now he expects to stay until retirement about seven years away. The father of seven has been a sports enthusiast since his youth, picking up his nickname from his welterweight championship in Golden Gloves days.

The following faculty members are observing the 25-year mark:

Dr. Darrel E. Bigham is a USI history professor with a continuous involvement in University, community, region, and state activities among education, historical, community, and governmental agencies since joining the faculty in 1970. In the late

'70s he helped establish Leadership Evansville. In 1986, he became director of Historic Southern Indiana Project, a program to preserve, promote, and develop historic sites and resources across the southern third of the state. Through HSI, he is spearheading an effort to make Indiana history a part of elementary/secondary curriculum across the state.

Dr. Bigham was chosen by his colleagues for the 1990 National City Bank Distinguished Professor Award. He graduated magna cum laude from Messiah College in Pennsylvania, studied theology at Harvard Divinity School for a year, then went to the University of Kansas to work on his Ph.D., completing it in 1970. He is the author of two books on Evansville area history: We Ask Only a Fair Chance: A History of the Black Community of Evansville, Indiana, 1812-1945 and An Evansville Album: Perspectives on the History of a River City, 1812-1988, published by IU Press in 1987 and 1988, respectively. He and his wife, Polly, have two children.

Mr. James P. Brown is USI golf coach, physical education instructor, and academic advisor for student athletes. He joined the staff in 1970 as assistant basketball coach, head baseball coach, and director of intramurals and has enjoyed the positive experiences in a quarter century of transition, watching many come and go in athletics and the University. In 1975, he became the men's golf coach and recently added women's golf to his duties. He became the academic advisor six years ago.

He received a B.S. from Emporia State Teachers College in Kansas and a master's from Indiana University. He has served on various University committees and been active with golf and other organizations in the community. He and his wife Anita have a son and daughter who are USI graduates.

Dr. Jane A. Davis-Brezette is a Hoosier product -- a southern Indiana native who earned a B.S. from Oakland City College, master's from Indiana State, and Ph.D. from Indiana University. She began at USI as director of Student Activities and a physical education instructor and has served in the Division of Education, as tennis coach, and for several years now as associate professor and chair of the Physical Education Department.

Dr. Brezette has been involved with most University committees and is a board member and vice president for sports for the Indiana Association for Health and Physical Education. "I have the very best life," she noted, "and the University has provided me the opportunity to grow up and grow old, and to appreciate all the wonderful things I have."

Dr. Susan L. Donaldson came to USI as an instructor for Summer II session in 1970, then began the work of organizing a Psychology Department at the University. She was chair of the department for 17 years. In addition to serving with most University committees, she has been active in the community with Planned Parenthood, the Mental Health Association Board, Southwest Indiana Psychology Association, and has received awards for her work from most. She also is very active with the local humane society and is a board member with the National Organization for the Ethical Treatment of Animals.

Dr. Donaldson received a B.S. from Kent State University and a master's and Ph.D. from Purdue, prior to joining the USI faculty. She has earned recognition as a stand-up comedienne, an avocation that developed primarily from benefits for the various community organizations with which she is affiliated.

Dr. John H. Gottcent, professor of English, is coordinator of the University Core Curriculum, a program instituted University-wide this fall after 10 years of study and planning. It coincides with the nationwide effort to reinforce the value of a bachelor's degree and turn out students with the skills to compete in the 21st century -- including the communications, critical-thinking, and decision-making skills that coincidentally turned up at the top of needs lists devised by both educators and employers. Dr. Gottcent also is a biblical studies scholar and author of The Bible as Literature: A Selective Bibliography (1979) and The Bible: A Literary Study (1986). He hopes to reinstate the Bible as Literature course that fell into suspension as he worked on the Core Curriculum effort.

Dr. Gottcent also is state faculty representative with the Indiana Commission for Higher Education, an appointment by Governor Evan Bayh that has been stretched from one to two years by the legislature. A native of Brooklyn, he received his bachelor's degree from Harpur College, New York, and earned his Ph.D. in literature at the University of Wisconsin in 1971. He has taught English at USI since 1970. He and his wife JoAnne have three children.

Dr. William J. Kirsch, associate professor of political science, received a B.A. from the University of Evansville and his master's and Ph.D. from the University of Illinois at Champagne-Urbana. He taught at Arizona State in Tempe five years before joining the USI faculty. He said the most striking thing about the University over the 25 years has been its growth in quality and students.

Dr. Kirsch was chair of the Political Science Department for 10 years, starting in the mid-'70s, and has been on most University committees, including serving as chair of the Faculty Senate and the Curricular Committee. He and his wife Karinmarie have three daughters.

Mr. John W. McNaughton, professor of art, notes that in his profession, grants and visiting professorships are the more prestigious things that come along, but "I think one of your proudest moments has to be when you are invited to serve as visiting professor and the person in charge is one of your former students." He enjoyed such an experience recently when he spent a week at Notre Dame University. The years have been good, he notes, as he recalled joining a campus with one building and 1,200 students in 1970; now his area in the Technology Center — one of eight campus buildings — boasts "some of the finest woodworking equipment in the country" and he's watched many of his students go to graduate school, with many going on to become educators, like himself.

Mr. McNaughton has woodworking creations on exhibit in Los Angeles, Chicago, and Cleveland which could bring him the same types of honors as the $20,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts in 1992, the recent $5,000 grant from the Indiana Arts Commission, or being selected by the NEA a couple years ago to serve as a visiting professor on a six-week lecture tour in Mexico. Recent invitations have taken him to the Atlantic Center for the Arts in Florida and the Arromont School of Crafts in Gatlinburg; in October, he will be a visiting professor at Brevard College in Asheville, North Carolina. Mr. McNaughton received a B.S. and M.A. from Ball State University, and an M.F.A. from Bowling Green State University, Ohio. He and his wife, Kathie, have two daughters.

"It's been a good time," says Ms. Martha Willett Niemeier, who has been a part of 25 years of growth at the USI library — book collecting, cataloguing, purchasing and processing, the computerization of local files and going on-line with libraries statewide to provide expanded services for faculty, students, and the community, and the name change to the David L. Rice Library. Ms. Niemeier joined the staff as catalogue librarian and for some time has been collections, development, and technical services librarian. This year, her duties were expanded to include acting director. "My job never stayed the same for a whole year," Ms. Niemeier noted with a chuckle.

She received a B.A. in modern languages and M.A. from the University of Evansville, and an M.L.S. from Indiana University. She and her husband David have an 8-year-old son.

Dr. Daniel C. Scavone joined the USI faculty in 1970 after teaching history at Loyola College in Montreal, Rosary College, Niles College of Loyola University, and Elmhurst College. He earned the B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. in history from Loyola University of Chicago and held the Mellon Fellowship in Renaissance and Reformation (1983) and in Post-Modern Studies (1984-86) at Vanderbilt University. His special interest in ancient and medieval history has culminated in publication of three books and more than 60 articles, and numerous presentations. His long-time study of the Shroud of Turin also has been the theme for numerous presentations.

Dr. Scavone has sponsored 17 annual Classical Heritage Day programs at USI for Tri-State high school students and was vice-president and president of the Indiana Classical Conference in the mid-'70s and 1982-

Over 280 attend President's Associates Dinner:

Appreciation for the generous gifts received by the University was the feature for the 1995 President's Associates Dinner, held September 7 at the Evansville Country Club.

More than 280 attended and saw honorary degrees bestowed on those who were involved with major contributions to the University -- Henry and Helen Ruston of Evansville, for generous estate plans benefiting the University and its students; posthumously to Alma Schullien Baker, for creating a charitable trust from which the USI Foundation will benefit; and Harold Ashley of Jacksonville, Florida, for naming the USI Foundation as a principal beneficiary of the Baker Trust.

Eleven USI medallions recognizing perpetual membership were awarded. The recipients were Dr. Ashley and Bruce Baker for naming the USI Foundation as principal beneficiary of the Alma S. Baker Charitable Trust; Stanley B. Atkinson for an endowed presidential scholarship; The Evansville Courier Company for the gift of 150 trees on campus; Kenneth P. McCutchan for the gift of a portion of his fine collection of Indiana paintings; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. O'Daniel for an endowed presidential scholarship; James A. Sanders and Doris Sanders Halwes for the Roy and Adelaide Sanders scholarship; and Mr. and Mrs. E. Harvey Seaman for a scholarship endowment to benefit the School of Business. Perpetual membership is extended to those who make single gifts of $25,000 or more.

Mr. Ted C. Ziemer, Jr., USI Foundation chairman, announced that gifts to the USI Foundation totaled $2.2 million the past year, the second consecutive year contributions have topped the $2 million mark. President's Associates donors traditionally provide support for student scholarships, faculty research and development, the USI Annual Fund, and a variety of academic and athletic programs.

Crafts exposition:

Historic New Harmony's first annual crafts exposition will feature five contemporary artisans who employ a refined level of traditional skills and experiment with the boundaries of contemporary aesthetics -- Ms. Jane Case Vickers, handmade books sculpted to unusual shapes that tell a story in themselves; Mr. Rodney Stockment, furniture; Ms. R. Breeze Sobek, clay; Mr. John Lovin, blacksmith; and Ms. Rita Davis, fiber. The exposition will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday, September 16-17, at The Athenaeum.

USI Theatre auditions:

Auditions for Charles Dickens A Christmas Carol will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. Thursday, September 14, and Friday, September 15, at the USI Theatre, 3001 Igleheart Avenue. This ever-popular holiday play will be presented November 30-December 20; Mr. Edward Journey will be guest director. Those who audition are required to present a one- to three-minute memorized monologue and to sing a Christmas song, a cappella.

Auditions for children ages 7 to 14 will be held from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Monday, September 18. They are asked to present a memorized one-minute monologue and sing a Christmas song, a cappella.

Call the Theatre Office, extension 1668, to reserve an audition time. Call backs will be notified by telephone; final call backs will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, September 18, at the theatre. The cast list will be posted by 4 p.m. Wednesday, September 20.

Three receive Economic Education awards:

Three southern Indiana people were honored September 11 during presentation of regional 1995 Awards for Excellence by the Center for Economic Education. The program was coordinated by Dr. Gregory P. Valentine, center director.

The Paul Samuelson Enterprise Award for a community leader was presented to Mr. Alan W. Newman, vice president and regional manager of Hilliard Lyons Investment Company, Evansville, recognizing his efforts in promoting the Stock Market Game and the Economics America school program.

Mr. Ronald Etienne, superintendent of schools for the North Spencer School Corporation, received the Lawrence Senesh Award for school administrators, recognizing his efforts in incorporating the Economics America program into North Spencer studies.

The Olin Davis Exemplary Teaching of Economics Award recognized Ms. Elizabeth Culiver, fifth-grade teacher at Hebron Elementary School, Evansville, for her incorporation of economics into her curriculum and the development by her students of the book Cornfield to Concrete: A Look at Green River Road.

Investing workshop:

The Center for Economic Education at USI will present a free workshop, "Investing in the Stock Market (The Stock Market Game)," on Tuesday, September 19, in the University Center dining room. The workshop is open to the public.

Participants will meet from 5:30 to 8 p.m. for risk-free simulation in which they will receive $100,000 in Stock Market Game money to invest. They also will receive materials on "How to read the stock page/quotations," "How to pick stocks for a portfolio," and "Rules and regulations for playing the simulation." Video tapes will be shown and made available for loan to participants. Refreshments will be provided.

Dr. Gregory P. Valentine, center director, will lead the workshop. Investment brokers also will participate. For information and registration materials contact Dr. Valentine at 812/465-1610.

Secretaries to meet:

The first meeting of the Secretaries and Associates Club of USI will be at 11:45 a.m. Thursday, September 21, in UC353, with all clerical/support staff members welcome to attend and to join the club. Dues are $10 a year, payable before the October meeting. Meetings are held the third Thursday of the month.

NEH program:

September 22 is the deadline for nominations for the 1996 National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) Summer Stipends Program which supports projects on American pluralism and identity. USI may nominate three faculty members; nominations are to be submitted to the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs. The stipend is $4,000 for eight weeks of research. Applicants requiring distant travel for research also may apply for a stipend of $4,750. NEH summer stipends allow humanities faculty to devote two months of full-time

84. He has been a leader in many professional and educational organizations on local and national levels. In 1993, he was awarded an honorary membership in the Mexican Academy of Sciences. Dr. Scavone's enthusiasm for history includes an interest in world civilizations that has taken him abroad many times, including five studies in Italy and four in Greece. In 1994, he received USI's National City Bank Distinguished Professor Award.

Dr. Thomas A. Wilhelmus, associate dean of the School of Liberal Arts since 1986, said it has been "a pleasure to participate in the birth of a university. One of the most appealing features is that when you do something, often it is for the first time. If you do it right, you know it will be around for a long time and that others appreciate you for trying." Dr. Wilhelmus is former English Department chair and has served on all University committees. Among his first-time things that lasted are the RopeWalk Writers Retreat at New Harmony, which he has co-directed the last seven years, and the Master in Liberal Studies program he has directed since 1990.

Dr. Wilhelmus received his B.A. from Wabash College and his Ph.D. from Notre Dame in 1972. He has been published frequently in the Hudson Review of New York and is fiction editor of USI's Southern Indiana Review. He has been active with the Evansville Philharmonic, the Indiana Humanities Council, Community Foundation Alliance and Vanderburgh Community Foundation. He and his wife Lynda have two children.

Two July 1 retirees also will be honored - Dr. Glenn L. Kinzie, professor emeritus of education, and Dr. M. Victoria Pohl, professor emeritus of mathematics.

Dr. Kinzie received his bachelor's, master's, and Ed.D. from the University of Nebraska prior to joining the USI faculty. He later took a five-year leave (1973-78) to participate in a nearly $1-million U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare-funded program for desegregation of schools in Evansville and Northwest Indiana. He has been involved with most University committees, including more than 15 years on the promotions committee.

Dr. Kinzie offered a contrast of USI's earlier days to current enrollment growth, recalling how he and other professors would gather up teens in their home neighborhoods (he lives near Bosse High School) and bring them for campus tours as they joined the effort to recruit students. He was a long-time Democratic precinct committeeman and past president of Lakeview Optimists. He and his wife Sally have a son who attends USI periodically.

Dr. Pohl received a B.S. from St. Benedict's College, Ferdinand, and her master's from the University of Notre Dame. She did post-master's work at Marquette and Tulane in New Orleans, and received her Ph.D. from the University of Iowa. She began teaching at St. Theresa Elementary School, Evansville, in 1950 and taught at Mater Dei High School and St. Benedict's College prior to joining the USI faculty in 1970. She continues as an adjunct math teacher.

Dr. Pohl has been involved with many University and professional organizations and in 1994, was named Indiana Teacher of the Year by the Southwest Indiana Council of Math Teachers. In 1975, she started Math-O-Rama for area high school math students, a program of recreational math problems which was merged in 1983 into the USI section of an annual state math contest. Dr. Pohl also is the author of How to Enrich Geometry Using String Designs.

Fulbright reminder:

Applications are being taken through October 12 for student Fulbright and related grants in more than 100 countries. Applicants must be citizens, in good health, and normally must hold a bachelor's degree on the beginning date of the grant (fall 1996). Students may apply for full grants (covering broad study projects), travel-only grants, or teaching assistantships. The teaching assistantships involve assisting regular classroom English teachers in Belgium, France, Germany, Korea and
