The Superintendent of Public Instruction for the State of Indiana, John J. Loughlin, will be on the campus of Indiana State University Evansville Tuesday, October 31, to speak to the Student Education Association and the Young Democrats. He will meet students beginning at 10:00 a.m. through noon, and the public is invited. The meeting will convene in Room 100.

Mr. Loughlin distinguished himself in the 1969 General Assembly, where he served as State Representative, by being named outstanding freshman Democratic representative by his fellow legislators. He was a mathematics teacher for thirteen years in South Bend, Indiana, before assuming civic responsibilities. He holds membership in various national and state education associations.
