Can you tell a pediment from a pendil? If not, a course in Beads, Brackets and Bargeboards on October 17 offers an opportunity to learn while spending a Saturday in Historic New Harmony.

Participants will be introduced to architectural styles and components and historic preservation and renovation theories during a leisurely walking tour of the community. A slide presentation and discussion over lunch (not included in the registration fee) will augment the tour, which will be conducted by Julienne Eickhoff, Historic New Harmony tour and promotion coordinator.

The registration for the course, offered through the Office of Continuing Education at the University of Southern Indiana, is $15, or $25 for two persons registering together. Call (812) 464-1863 for information or to register.
