Piggott receives Nursing Alumni Award

Victoria Piggott, special projects director for the School of Nursing and Health Professions, received the 2004 USI Distinguished Nursing Alumni Award.

The Distinguished Nursing Alumni Award provides recognition to a graduate who has made outstanding achievements in a career or in public service.

Piggott was the first president elected for the Nursing Alumni Society. She has been a huge influence in the development of the Nursing Alumni Scholarship, which will be awarded during the 2005-2006 Honors Week.

Prior to coming to USI, Piggott served as director of Health Care Quality and Education at the Tri-State Business Group on Health. She also has experience as a staff nurse and staff development coordinator.

"She is the major contributor and the reason that we have a USI Nursing Alumni Society," said Nadine Coudret, dean and professor of nursing. "We wanted to have a USI Nursing Alumni Society, but Victoria did more than just think about it, she was the initiator."

Piggott teaches in the health professions program and has served as a clinical instructor for nursing students. She is responsible for the development and coordination of nine School of Nursing and Health Professions continuing education certificate programs, with enrollees from every state and 13 countries.

A 1988 graduate of the Deaconess School of Nursing, Piggott completed a B.S.N. in 1995 and an M.S.N. in 2001 at USI.

She is active in clinical practice and Omicron Phi Chapter of Sigma Theta Tau.

Law partner to deliver Berger Lecture

Robert Corn-Revere, a law partner in the Washington D.C. firm, Davis Wright Tremaine LLP, will be the speaker for the 2004 Berger Lecture at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, November 8, in Carter Hall of the University Center. His lecture will be "Dispatches from the Culture Wars: from Lenny Bruce to Janet Jackson."

Corn-Revere has acquired a reputation for strict adherence to the cause of free speech. He was lead counsel in Mainstream Marketing Services, Inc. v. Federal Trade Commission, challenging the constitutionality of the national "do-not-call" telemarketing regulation.

He has served as counsel in litigation involving the Communications Decency Act, the Child Online Protection Act, Internet content filtering in public libraries, public broadcasting regulations, and export controls on encryption software.

He successfully petitioned Governor George E. Pataki to grant the first posthumous pardon in New York history to the late comedian Lenny Bruce.

He has served as chief counsel of the Federal Communications Commission, co-writer of a textbook on modern mass communications law, has written on First Amendment, Internet and communications-related issues, and is a frequent speaker at professional conferences. He is a member of the editorial advisory board of Pike & Fischer's Internet Law & Regulation and adjunct scholar for Cato Institute in Washington, D.C. He was listed on a 30th anniversary Roll of Honor by the American Library Association Office of Intellectual Freedom and Freedom to Read Foundation.

A native of Mattoon, Illinois, Corn-Revere changed his name, adding the Revere in emulation of Paul Revere, one of the country's best-known sentries in the cause of freedom.

The Berger Lecture is an annual event named in honor of former Evansville civil rights attorney Sydney L. Berger. The lecture presents a topic on civil rights or civil liberties and is sponsored by the English Department this year. The lecture is free and open to the public.

ADHD symposium November 9

"ADHD: Diagnosing it, Treating it, Getting Beyond it," the fourth annual Mental Health Symposium at USI, will be presented from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. November 9 in Carter Hall.

Craig Kunins, M.D., will provide the keynote address, "Suggestions for Maximizing Treatment of ADHD," and "CoMorbid Conditions." Kunins is a board-certified child and adolescent psychiatrist with the Center for Attention, Mood and Behavior, located in St. Petersburg, Florida.

The symposium also will offer information on recognizing symptoms of ADHD, cite DSM4 criteria for diagnosis of ADHD, and identify critical periods for the onset of ADHD. It will include a mental health fair featuring various community agencies and symposium sponsors.

The Mental Health Association in Vanderburgh/Warrick Counties, the USI Social Work Department, the USI School of Nursing, and the Indiana University School of Medicine Evansville Center are presenting the symposium.

Continuing education credit is available. Registration, $40 adults, $5 students, is due by Friday, November 5. For information or registration, call Extended Services, 812/464-7061.

RopeWalk featuring award-winning author

The fall 2004 RopeWalk Reading Series will feature writer Kevin Brockmeier at 7 p.m. Thursday, November 4, in Kleymeyer Hall in the Liberal Arts Center.

Brockmeier is the author of The Truth About Celia, deemed "lyrical, magical, achingly bittersweet" by Newsday. "The mesmerizing whisper of Brockmeier's prose [turns] skeptical readers into believers. The gentle, rolling pulse of these sentences make elegiac epiphanies out of Christopher's grief-borne stream-of-consciousness.

"For evoking this bleak estate with unflinching accuracy and honesty, Kevin Brockmeier deserves our praise."

His story, "The Green Children," from The Truth About Celia, has been selected The Year's Best Fantasy and Horror, and his story, "Space," from Things That Fall from the Sky has been selected for The Best American Short Stories.

The Arkansas resident also is the author of the children's novel, City of Names, and he has two books scheduled for publication in 2005: a novel, The Brief History of the Dead; and a children's novel, Grooves: A Kind of Mystery.

Brockmeier has received the Chicago Tribune's Nelson Algren Award, an Italo Calvino Short Fiction Award, a James Michener-Paul Engle Fellowship, two O. Henry Awards, and an NEA grant.

Presented by USI's School of Liberal Arts, readings in the series are free and open to the public. For more information, call Jim McGarragh, assistant professor of English, 812/461-5381.

School of Liberal Arts hosting film series

German nostalgia for the Cold War, a nervous romantic comedy, the icy corporate world in France, and Czechs aging to their own beat will all be explored in USI's "Friday Night in the Forum" film series.

Sponsored by the School of Liberal Arts, the series brings films to the big screen in their original 35mm and widescreen formats, and in their original languages with subtitles.

Each free film will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in USI's Forum I with an informal discussion to follow.

"Friday Night in the Forum"

November 5 - Goodbye Lenin (Germany 2003). Writer/Director: Wolfgang Becker. An offbeat comedy set in the recently reunified Germany of 1990. A young man's East German Communist mother awakens from a long coma. Knowing the slightest shock could kill her, he attempts to convince her the Berlin Wall is still standing and Communism still rules East Germany.

November 12 - Annie Hall (USA 1977). Writer/Director/Actor: Woody Allen. An Oscar-winner for Best Picture/Director/Actress/Screenplay, and often copied by Allen himself, Annie Hall is one of the movies that made the now much-maligned Allen a filmmaker known worldwide. It is one of the first American movies to combine serious personal psychoanalytical introspection with slapstick comedy, intellectual comedy, and a heartfelt semi-tragic "nervous" romance.

November 19 - Demonlover (France 2002). Writer/Director: Olivier Assayas. "Confrontational, provocative, and daring," Demonlover is a dark and fascinating look at the new international economy of brutality. The "nasty corporate thriller" focuses on the numbed Diane, whose cold ambition is only small time compared to the world of corporate conspiracies.

December 3 - Autumn Spring (Czech Republic 2002). Director: Vladimir Michalek. Vlastimil Brodsky stars in a tragic-comic story of a mischievous elderly man who keeps himself "youthful" by continually concocting and playing elaborate practical jokes - even to his own detriment. In a poignant real-life twist, Autumn Spring is the last film made by the great Czech actor before he took his own life.
