USI Trustees Approve Tuition and Fees for Next Two Years

USI trustees set tuition and fees for the next two years at the Board of Trustees meeting on July 7.

Beginning this fall, a full-time, in-state, student at USI will pay $4,303 for the 2005-2006 academic year, an increase of $226 for the year. This is based on a student enrolling for 15 hours in the fall and 15 hours in the spring. The per credit-hour cost is $141.45, and the University Services fee is $30 per semester for students taking eight or more credit hours.

The following year, Indiana resident students will pay $148.65 per credit hour. A full-time student will pay $4,518 for the academic year.

The per-hour fee for graduate students is $205.40 for Indiana residents for 2005-06 and $215.85 for Indiana residents for 2006-07.

President H. Ray Hoops told the board that the increases were necessary for USI to maintain the quality of its academic programs and retain talented faculty and staff. "USI's fees remain the lowest of the public residential universities, which is our commitment to keeping college affordable for students and their families" he said. He encouraged students to persist in reaching their goals of graduating from college.

James Patton, USI director of Student Financial Assistance, tells prospective students that USI has professional counselors who help families focus on financial opportunities and strategies to achieve their goals. He encourages students and parents to discuss options from grants and scholarships to loans. He added that some students opt for work-study, allowing the student to gain work experience and offset college costs. "We try to help families negotiate the complex world of paying for college," he said.

Jessica Easterly, a junior from Evansville, knows about seeking financial assistance. She has used a Stafford loan, earned scholarships, and is a work-study student. She has worked in the Office of International Programs and Services on campus and through USI worked for the Salvation Army day camp and the Boy Scouts of America. She is currently working in the Student Financial Assistance Office on campus.

She encourages students to be persistent and ask questions. She said, "At first, the process seems very complex. But counselors will help you understand the details. The counselors helped me with more than just deadlines. They helped me understand the process." Last year she learned of the award for a child of a disabled veteran. It pays tuition and any mandatory fees up to 124 credit hours.

Easterly has also earned a departmental scholarship and two scholarships not related to USI. An English major who enjoys creative writing, she hopes to earn a doctorate and teach English Composition at the university level.

The trustees also elected a new chair, G. Patrick Hoehn of Jeffersonville, Indiana. Hoehn is president of Cornerstone Group, a real estate development business. A member of the board since 1998, Hoehn has served as vice chair for the Finance/Audit Committee and Construction Committee. He is a former member of the Indiana Commission for Higher Education. Hoehn succeeds J. David Huber of Cannelton.

In other business the board approved the 2005-2006 current operating budget of $70 million. The budget includes $41.2 million for instruction and instruction-related expenses; $5 million for student services; $9.6 million for physical plant; and $13.5 million for administration. Of the $70 million, $39.9 million, or 57 percent, is from state appropriation. The remainder of the budget is comprised of student fees and other income.

The board also approved retirement for Jerry L. Williams, instructor in mathematics, effective May 8, 2005, and early retirement for Ruth N. Hahn, assistant librarian, effective June 30, 2007.

University Notes Q & A: Jon Mark Hall

Jon Mark Hall, director of Athletics, has been married to his wife Patti for 12 years. They have three children: Nathan, 8, Mary Claire, 5, and Garland, 2. Hall has a Bachelor of Arts degree in business administration from Murray State University and a Master of Arts degree in sports administration from The Ohio State University. He has been with USI since the summer of 1995, when he joined as assistant athletics director and men's tennis coach.

What was your first job?

Assisting with tennis clinics at local park in Murray, KY.

What is your most marked characteristic?

Always pacing and moving around.

What is your greatest strength and principal defect?

I try and see the good in everyone and everything (both sides of an issue), in most cases, this is a good quality, but sometimes it can lead to indecisiveness.

What is your dream of happiness?

Pretty simple, I would love to spend more time with my children.

Where would you like to live?

I love Evansville, but the coast of South Carolina is where I would love to be when I retire.

Where would you like to visit?

Australia is somewhere that I have always wanted to visit.

Who are your favorite characters in history?

There are many, but Abraham Lincoln and Jackie Robinson stand out. Their perseverance and strength are very admirable.

Who are your "real life" heroes?

My parents. My Dad passed away at a young age, but he taught me so much about how to live life and respect others. The strength my mom has is a true inspiration to me.

Who are your favorite musicians?

Luther Vandross, James Taylor, and John Mayer.

Who is your favorite writer?

Rick Reilly (senior sportswriter/columnist for Sports Illustrated).

What was the last book that you read and loved?

"Into Thin Air" by Jon Krakauer and "Train" by Pete Dexter.

What was the last song that you heard and loved?

"Daughters" by John Mayer.

What is your hobby and what about it gives you joy?

I haven't had time for one lately, but it when I have time, it is playing tennis. I love the competition and I enjoy the fact that there is no one to blame but yourself.

If you could change one thing about your appearance, what would it be and why?

I'd love to be taller.

If you won the lottery, what would be the first thing you'd buy?

I would put money back for my kids, church and USI (of course). The first thing I would try to buy if I won the lottery would be a golf game.

Who would you invite to lunch if you could invite a famous person, living or dead, and why?

Being a big sports fan, I would love to have lunch with some of the legends of sport such as Babe Ruth, Michael Jordan, Muhammad Ali, and Vince Lombardi.

Nursing instructor's juvenile fiction book explores grief and healing

The heroine of Cindy Goodwin's book is six inches tall, has dragonfly wings, and is the guardian of a forest. "She's a sweet character," Goodwin, instructor in nursing, said. "She grows her own clothes, and shines with different colored lights depending on her mood."

Goodwin's self-published book, Sylphie's Journey, tells the story of Sylphie, a small, fairy-like creature sent to help a grieving child making the transition from girlhood to womanhood. "The girl's mom died, and she's all alone trying to take care of herself and her little brother," Goodwin said.

"The story is about courage, finding connections, letting go, being true to one's heart, and accepting gifts of the spirit as they are given."

Goodwin has had academic articles and poems published, but Sylphie's Journey is her first book. Adults like the book, she said, but it's aimed at 11- and 12-year-old girls.

Goodwin, a nature-lover, hopes the story will make readers aware of their own connection with nature.

A hospice volunteer, she also wants readers to understand how they can help grieving people heal.

"I see a lot of people dealing with grief," she said. "And I love make-believe and fantasy. I love to write, period."

Goodwin will sign copies of her book from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday, August 13, at The Bead Angel, 3033 West Maryland Street, across from The Hilltop Tavern. The book sells for $11.95. Refreshments will be served at the book-signing.

Thirty Years of Service

Editor's note: The next two issues of University Notes will feature a support staff member who is celebrating his or her 30-year service anniversary in 2005. They will be among support staff honored for years of service at an Employee Recognition Banquet from noon to 1 p.m. August 16 in Carter Hall in the University Center.

John R. McPherson, a custodial worker in the Physical Plant, joined the University in 1975, the same year he started following NASCAR racing.

McPherson, the father of six children – three girls and three boys ranging in age from 23 to 34 – was a fan of Dale Earnhardt Sr. until his death in 2001. Now McPherson follows point-leader Jimmy Johnson.

"I watch it every week and every chance I get, I go to a race," he said. He recently traveled to Brooklyn, Michigan, for a race. He's also traveled to Indianapolis and Bristol, Tennessee.

Unlike most of the offices on campus, the Physical Plant has remained in the same location for the past 30 years, though McPherson said the building has been added on to, and the staff has "at least doubled or tripled."

McPherson, a life-long west sider, said his work has not changed much over the years, but with the growth of the University, there is more of it. "I like the job because you get to meet different people. I like the people I work with."

"USI is a nice place to work."

Neil Simon's "The Odd Couple" opens at The New Harmony Theatre July 29

One of the most popular comedies of all time, Neil Simon's "The Odd Couple," opens at The New Harmony Theatre Friday, July 29 – 40 years after its Broadway premiere.

Neil Simon is, after William Shakespeare, the world's most performed playwright. When "The Odd Couple" appeared on Broadway in March of 1965, Simon was already a fairly well-known playwright. But "The Odd Couple," with its unforgettable pair of mismatched roommates, made him a cultural phenomenon, and he subsequently became the most commercially successful playwright in the history of theater.

Prudish neat-freak Felix Ungar finds himself homeless and suicidal after his wife kicks him out. In despair, he seeks help from his slob friend, Oscar Madison. Oscar takes him in, and their mismatched personalities lead to endless one-liners and ridiculous confrontations. Beneath the laughter lies a deep-rooted friendship and, ultimately, Felix's redemption.

Under the direction of Artistic Director Scott LaFeber, the Equity Company includes Matt Landers as Oscar, Jeff Talbot as Felix, Van Zeiler as Speed, Emanuel "Manny" Moreira as Vinnie, Tara Radcliffe as Gwendolyn Pigeon, and Cynthia Leigh Heim as Cecily Pigeon. All but Zeiler and Moreira, both in their second seasons, are making their New Harmony Theatre debuts.

The cast also includes community actors Steve Small and Mark Atchison. Small, as Murray, is in his 14th NHT season, and Atchison, as Roy, is in his fourth.

The roles of Felix and Oscar were first played on Broadway by Art Carney and Walter Matthau. (Matthau was later replaced with Jack Klugman.) In 1968, "The Odd Couple" was made into a movie starring Jack Lemmon as Felix and Matthau as Oscar.

It was later the basis for a 1970-75 ABC prime-time television show of the same name, starring Tony Randall as Felix and Klugman as Oscar. In 1982, another TV show, "The New Odd Couple," featured Evansville native Ron Glass as Felix and Demond Wilson as Oscar.

The comedy was revised by Neil Simon in 1985 for a female cast. It was based on the same story line with characters called Florence Ungar and Olive Madison.

Felix and Oscar remain one of the most memorable pairs of characters in the history of commercial theatre. Matthew Broderick and Nathan Lane will star in a Broadway revival opening in October 2005.

"The Odd Couple" runs July 29-August 14 at The New Harmony Theatre, Murphy Auditorium, 419 Tavern Street, in New Harmony, Indiana. Performances are at 7:30 p.m. Thursdays; 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays; and 2 p.m. Sundays. There will be an additional matinee at 2 p.m. Saturday, August 13. USI employees are eligible to purchase tickets at the group rate, $18. For tickets, call 812/682-3115 or 877/464-0029.

"The Odd Couple" is sponsored by Vectren Corporation, Thomas J. and Marita Dieter, Susan Enlow and Isabella Fine, Alice G. May, Old National Bank, and Betty J. Worthington.

Delta Pi chapter will create information, support network

The membership of Delta Pi, the University's chapter of Sigma Phi Omega National Academic Honor and Professional Society in Gerontology, includes students, faculty, and professionals.

Its first meeting was held at the Carver Community Organization's Adult Day Care Center on June 22, and included a tour of the facility, dinner, and a talk by Oluwole Olusola MD, a geriatric psychiatrist and medical director of Wellington Parc, a long term care facility for Alzheimer's patients in Owensboro, Kentucky.

Iris Phillips, assistant professor of social work and Delta Pi president, said students will benefit from the opportunity to meet with professionals in the field.

"These professionals have a finger on the pulse of what's going on in aging services and aging needs," she said. "My goal is for this to be a network for information and support.

"So many times in working with older adults, people are isolated. It's not a glamorous profession. This network is vital in getting people interested in working with older adults. When students get into the job market, they already will have those connections and resources. Especially in social work, there's a bank of community resources that usually takes years to know and understand. Through this organization, a lot of that can be developed while they are still students."

Delta Pi student members are Glenn A. David, nursing; Kyra L. Krukemeier and Rachelle L. Turner, social work; and Jessica L. Macke, health services.

Faculty members are Renee Dugger, instructor in nursing; Kathy M. Elpers, associate professor of social work; and Phillips. Thomas Pickering, dean of the Bower-Suhrheinrich College of Education and Human Services, and David Cousert, chair of the Social Work Department, also attended.

Community members of the organization are Bruce H. Baker, a USI trustee and owner of a long-term care facility, Newburgh Healthcare Center; Lara Beck, administrator of West Park Rehabilitation Center; James J. Caver, MSW, LCSW; Brenda G. Ellison, business manager of Woodlands Convalescent Center; Fred J. England, administrator of Progressive Care Center, Deaconess Hospital; John T. Gallagher MD, medical director of St. Mary's Senior Health Center; Kenneth F. Graves, long term care administrator at Kinder Healthcare; and Jillian M. Miles, a family case manager.

"I hope having professionals in the chapter moves the experience from a purely academic adventure into the real world, so students learn about issues involved with providing services for older adults," Phillips said.

The next meeting will be held in September at Newburgh Healthcare Center.

Sigma Phi Omega began in 1980 as an academic and professional honor society in gerontology and now includes 88 active chapters with over 5,000 members nationwide. Its purpose is to promote and give recognition to high standards of professional preparation and service in the field of aging.

More information is available at the Association for Gerontology in Higher Education (AGHE) website at www.aghe.org iphillip@usi.edu.

Spelling Eagles win Corporate Spelling Bee

The University's team won the Corporate Spelling Bee to benefit Newspapers In Education (NIE) for the second year in a row.

The team was comprised entirely of members of the Teacher Education Department. They were: Marlaine Chase, associate professor of education, Joyce Hamon, associate professor of education, and Beth Otto, instructor in education.

Newspapers In Education, a program of the Evansville Courier and Press, makes newspapers available to schools in the Tri-state at reduced costs, and also provides materials and workshops for teachers. The focus is on increasing students' reading ability and knowledge of current events.

The Corporate Spelling Bee was held July 7 at the Holiday Inn. The Musing Mardi Gras Graphers from Ivy Tech State College finished second and the Word Sharks from the Evansville Area Reading Council finished third. Nine teams participated in the bee.

In appreciation

"I would like to thank the Computer Center and the entire USI community for their kind words and support regarding the recent loss of my father, Eric Scharf. Being far from home is never easy, especially in times like this; however, it's comforting to know that I'm a part of such a warm, caring community." - Ed Scharf, web developer.

FYI

USI employee training

Extended Services is offering two classes this summer for employees who would like to improve their business writing skills and note-taking abilities.

Taking Meeting Minutes will be led by Lori Saxby, study skills specialist in Academic Skills. The workshop is scheduled for 9 to 11 a.m. Friday, July 29.

Better Written Communication will cover aspects of business writing such as letters, memos, and e-mail. Structure, style, and content organization will be covered, as will e-mail style and etiquette. There will be a short assignment to complete between the two workshop sessions, which will be held from 9 to 11 a.m. Wednesday, August 3, and Friday, August 5. The workshops will be led by Extended Services' Charmaine McDowell and Rebecca Deeg.

The courses were developed primarily for administrative assistants/associates, but any interested USI employee is welcome to enroll. Registration information is available at www.usi.edu/extserv/training/schedule.htm.

Ladies of the Grand Ole Opry; Sam Bush at Lincoln Amphitheatre

Country royalty will pay a visit to Lincoln Amphitheatre when Jeannie Seely, Jan Howard and Helen Cornelius take the stage at 7:30 p.m. Friday, July 22.

Seely is often called "Miss Country Soul," a reference to her deeply moving vocals. Her many hits include "Don't Touch Me" and "Wish I Didn't Have to Miss You" with Jack Greene.

Howard scored her first solo Top Ten hit with "The One You Slip Around With" in 1960. A string of gutsy hits followed, including "Evil On Your Mind" and "Rock Me Back To Little Rock."

Cornelius is known for her solo recordings, including "You Don't Bring Me Flowers," and for the many hits she recorded with Jim Ed Brown, including "I Don't Want to Have to Marry You."

Grammy Award-winning mandolin artist Sam Bush plays Lincoln Amphitheatre on Friday, July 29. He has been called one of acoustic music's greatest innovators, skillfully blending bluegrass, jazz, and other forms to create a sound noted for its "infectious lightheartedness." Bush's picking was featured on the best-selling "O Brother, Where Art Thou" soundtrack and he has been called "one of the best pickers ever to play."

Tickets for both shows are $20. For tickets, call the Lincoln Amphitheatre box office at 800/264-4ABE (4223) or go to www.lincoln-amphitheatre.com.

USI Night with the Otters

USI Night with the Otters will be held Saturday, July 23, at Bosse Field. There will be a picnic dinner of hamburgers, hot dogs, potato salad, baked beans, and sodas from 6 to 7:30 p.m. in the Left Field Tent Area. The baseball game will begin at 7:05 p.m.
