New dean listening, learning

The University community is invited to attend a reception welcoming Dr. David Glassman, dean of the School of Liberal Arts, at 5 p.m. Tuesday, September 28, in the University Center's Carter Hall.

Since his arrival on campus a few months ago, Glassman has been vigorously pursuing the project that tops his priority list.

"Listening first is the key to making sound and reasonable change for the future," he explained.

"What I've been doing is listening to people, listening to faculty, listening to students, and listening to chairs talk about what they like about the school and what frustrations they've encountered."

The School of Liberal Arts, he has discovered, is home to "unbelievable talent."

"Much of which," he added, "hasn't been recognized. I hope to expose it to the University and the larger communities."

While the abilities and knowledge of the school's faculty and students head a list of positives, Glassman also discerned a few challenges that need to be addressed, including managing enrollment demands on service-related courses and creating class schedules that balance the needs of the students and the programs developed by the school's departments.

"My reception has been wonderful, simply wonderful," he added. "When I chose to come here, one of the most important aspects of my decision was the collegiality that exists, not just in the School of Liberal Arts but in the entire University community. My perceptions were exactly right."

Glassman's appointment as dean of the School of Liberal Arts was effective July 1. Before joining the University, he was associate dean of the College of Liberal Arts at Texas State University-San Marcos. He holds three degrees in anthropology.

The USI Society for Arts & Humanities and the Alumni Association are hosting the reception. Those planning to attend are encouraged to RSVP by calling 812/464-1930.

Gay rights activist speaking at USI

Chastity Bono, author and gay rights activist, will be featured in the University Core Curriculum's Speaker Series at 7:30 p.m. October 4 in the University Center's Carter Hall.

The theme of this year's series is Human Sexuality, and Bono will address the topic, "Discrimination Against GLBTs in the Media."

Bono is no stranger to the media, having grown up on her parents' television program, The Sonny & Cher Comedy Hour. She came out as a lesbian on the cover of The Advocate magazine in 1995, a few years after being outed without her consent by a national tabloid.

While working as a staff writer for The Advocate, Bono's memorable interview with her mother was one of the highest selling cover stories in the magazine's history.

She also is the author of Family Outing, a collection of coming-out stories, including her own, as well as suggestions, information, and advice for those who wish to come out and for their families, friends, and colleagues.

Bono's memoir, The End of Innocence, published in 2002. The book chronicles her life in the late 1980s and early 90s, a turbulent time when her band Ceremony failed, and her girlfriend fought a losing battle with cancer.

As the former entertainment media director of the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation, a national media watchdog organization, Bono promoted fair, accurate, and inclusive representations of gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender people to combat discrimination in the media.

She also traveled across the country as the National Coming Out Project spokesperson for the Human Rights Campaign, the nation's largest gay and lesbian political organization.

The University Core Curriculum's Speaker Series is free and open to the public. Student sign-out sheets will be available. For more information, contact Dr. John Gottcent, University Core director, 812/464-1750.

Names in the news

Achievements

Dr. Leigh Anne Howard, associate professor and program director of Communication Studies, published "Speaking Theatre/Doing Pedagogy: Re-visiting the Theatre of the Oppressed" in the July 2004 issue of Communication Education.

Susan Metcalf, Instructional Services librarian, presented a two-hour program as part of the Evansville Sheriff's Department Instructor Development course August 26 at the Evansville East Section Police Department. During her presentation, officers had an opportunity to explore Indiana's INSPIRE databases, government Web sites, and online criminal justice resources. Metcalf also provided participating officers with tips for effective searching. Following the successful program, she was invited to make another presentation later in the semester.

Dr. Charles Petranek, professor of sociology, presented a paper and demonstrated his latest social simulation, "Team Spirit," at the annual conference of the International Simulation and Gaming Association September 6-10 in Munich, Germany. The simulation and paper deal with teambuilding and group formation. Petranek has created 16 social simulations for the classroom that are utilized in many universities. The two best known are the "Drinking Game" and "Sex on the Beach." He served on the ISAGA Executive Board representing the North American Simulation and Gaming Association and was again appointed to the editorial board for the journal, Simulation and Gaming.

Nicole Louise Reid, assistant professor of English, read from her novel, In the Breeze of Passing Things, September 18 at the Fall for the Book literary festival at George Mason University in Fairfax, Va.

Dr. Kevin Valadares, assistant professor of health services/administration, had an article, "The Practicality of Employee Empowerment: Supporting a Psychologically Safe Culture," published in the July/September issue of The Health Care Manager.

FYI

Who's Who

Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges, a 71-year-old national program, annually honors outstanding campus leaders for scholastic and community achievements.

USI has some amazing students who deserve to be recognized for achievements while at the University, so take a few moments to nominate students who meet the qualifications of strong scholarship, leadership in both academic and extracurricular activities, citizenship, service to USI, and potential for future achievement.

All nominees must have junior or senior status as of summer 2004. Nomination forms may be returned to the Office Student Development Programs, or a list of nominees and their addresses may be sent to Sandra M. Ziganti, program advisor, Student Development Programs. The nomination deadline is October 4.

Newsletter deadline

Friday, September 24, is the deadline for submitting information for the next online issue of University Notes. Submissions received after the deadline will be published at the discretion of the editorial staff.

Submissions to "Marketplace" may be made via e-mail to Brandi Schwartz, editorial associate in News and Information Services, or by calling 812/465-1192. Other submissions to University Notes may be made by contacting Libby L. Keeling, editor, 812/461-5259.

Handling University cash

Pursuant to the directive of the University President, the only authorized agent to control, account for, and safeguard cash at University of Southern Indiana is the Business Office.

Specifically, this office is responsible for collecting fees and other income, making all fee refunds, invoicing third parties, preparing bank deposits, issuing petty cash disbursements, issuing change funds to authorized units, and assessing student fees.

Under no circumstances is an employee to accept money in the name of the University without properly recording the income with an official University Receipt. A receipt will be issued by the Cashier's Office for all cash received except for cash received by approved satellite operations.

This also includes any payments or plans to receive payments electronically via the World Wide Web. In addition, no University employee or department is to invoice any third party without said invoice being processed first through the Business Office.

Departments that have been approved to accept money are required to issue receipts and make daily deposits. These departments are responsible for maintaining their own receipt subsidiary record on forms that have been approved by the Bursar.

Loss of any funds should be reported IMMEDIATELY to the Cashier's Office and to the University Security Department.

Questions relative to cash control procedures should be addressed to the Bursar, 812/464-1842.
