PROGRAM ON INDIA AVAILABLE. Charles Barber, Associate Professor of Political Science, will appear with his Group Study Exchange team at the annual conference of Rotary International District 658 (southern Indiana) in Clarksville, Indiana on May 8. Dr. Barber will speak about education in India.

The six-member GSE team spent six weeks in India, sponsored by the Rotary Foundation. Dr. Barber has prepared a slide presentation with accompanying tape recording for programs, as well as a detailed report for study. During the first summer session, he is offering a course on India designed for the beginning student.

Brief aspects of the trip to India are presented in nine categories below, representing different elements of the ISUE program.

Administration. The heads of colleges are called principals. The branch campus approach is more popular than in the United States.

Allied Health. People stood in long lines to see the health exhibit at Kakinada Medical College. A reward of 1000 rupees is offered if someone is found with small-pox. Mosquito netting is often necessary over one's bed.

Business. Coins are in paisa denominations, with the unit of currency being the rupee. Numerous small businesses line city streets, with most buildings no larger than small, one-car wooden garages. There are large sugar and electronics plants, as well as small roofing tile and engine factories. Businessmen typically treat guests to tea, Coca-Cola, Goldspot, and Limca, plus cookies or crackers.

Education. The 10-2-3 system is followed; high school ends after tenth grade. Although educational opportunities abound, many children are not sent to school. Dr. Barber visited several primary schools and went to thirteen colleges, delivering lectures at four of them.

Humanities. Hindi and English are India's national languages, but state languages vary; e.g., Telugu is Andhra Pradesh's state language. Radio and newspaper communication is available almost everywhere in at least three languages. Television is not used widely yet, however cinema theaters are modern and popular. Influence of the Hindu religion is manifested not only in temples, but also in deference accorded gods, such as Venkateswara, in the home.

Library. College students do not buy many books; instead, they use library reserve books. Nagpur University's librarian gave Dr. Barber a tour; that library and the one at Osmania University in Hyderabad both had fine collections, but with little emphasis on audio-visual techniques.

Science and Math. Over four weeks were spent in Andhra Pradesh, the fifth largest state in area and population (43.5 million), which has the Krishna and Godhavari Rivers, and borders the Bay of Bengal. Among scientific operations visited were ELICO instruments company and a chemicals factory. Much agricultural experimentation is being done, e.g. at Andhra Pradesh Agricultural University and the Maize Research Station.

Social Science. Dr. Barber stayed with nine different families and observed lifestyles in at least twenty-five cities. The joint family, bringing together grandparents, cousins, aunts, and uncles with parents and children, is popular. Dr. Barber saw Mrs. Gandhi, who has led India for ten years, and spoke with various

PROGRAM ON INDIA AVAILABLE, CONTINUED, local government officials. India's centuries of history were evident at Salar Jung Museum, Golconda Fort, Seavagram, and Amaravati. Dr. Barber participated in twenty-five meetings convened by Rotary Clubs, often giving five to ten-minute talks and responding to questions.

Technology. Inheriting British technology, India now emphasizes developing its own technology geared to its labor-intensive situation. Nevertheless, in the numerous factories visited was machinery from such other countries as Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, and Hungary. At Umrer Coal Mines, where a Marion (Ohio) dragline is in use, a larger unit is being constructed by the Soviet Union.

If you wish to read the detailed trip report or think that your class or group might benefit from a program, contact Dr. Barber, Ext. 226, for more information.
