Openings still are available in several special interest programs being offered by the University of Southern Indiana's Office of Continuing Education this fall, including a new "Outdoor Skills Weekend for Women."

The outdoor class will meet Saturday and Sunday, September 28-29, and will be repeated October 19-20. It will be taught by Joy Fitzgerald, property manager for Peabody Coal, and Rebecca Hinton, publisher of Women's Outdoor Journal, both skilled outdoorswomen. They will cover camping, flat-water canoeing, outdoor cooking, orienteering, and hiking, and lead discussions on safety, hygiene, and basic resource conservation, and a study of wildlife, ecology, and our place in the living world. The $125 registration fee includes all supplies and use of most necessary equipment.

Other fall programs with openings include:

- Beginning Bluegrass/Folk Guitar -- six Wednesdays, starting September 25, registration $68.
- Beginning Calligraphy -- six Thursdays, starting September 26, $48.
