USI COMPUTER COURSES --

HARVARD GRAPHICS ADDED
TO COMPUTER GRAPHICS COURSE;

MULTI-USER/MULTI-TASKING
COURSE HAS OPENINGS

For Immediate Release
March 3, 1989

The popular Harvard Graphics package has been added to "Using Computer Graphics," an all-day course scheduled Wednesday, March 15, by the University of Southern Indiana Office of Continuing Education. The class will gain hands-on experience in creating line graphs, bar and pie charts, etc., using Harvard, IBM Graphing Assistant, Executive Presentation Kit, and ChartStar. The $70 registration fee includes lunch.

Openings still are available in "Concepts of Multi-User/Multi-Tasking Systems" on Saturday, March 18, a course for office managers looking for an economical way to improve access to hardware and software for their organizations. There are no prerequisites for the course, but knowledge of DOS (Disk Operating System) would enhance understanding of concepts to be discussed. The $95 registration fee ($85 for two or more registering together) includes lunch and materials.

Call (812) 464-1863 for information or to register for either class.
