Two University of Southern Indiana students were recognized for outstanding work as future educators by the Indiana Association of Colleges for Teacher Education (IACETE) at the group's annual recognition banquet April 19 in Carmel, Indiana.

Honored were Laura Hurst Parsons, 6800 Old Boonville Highway Evansville, a graduate of Bosse High School who is an elementary education major, and Jacqueline Aldredge Henderson of 187 Delaware Drive, Vincennes, an Evansville North High School graduate who is a secondary English teaching major. Both completed their college work in December.

Students recognized by IACETE have demonstrated excellence in academic achievement, student teaching, and service activities, and are recommended for the honors by teacher education faculty members at participating colleges and universities. IACETE is a volunteer organization with a goal of promoting the highest quality of teacher education.

Accompanying the USI students to the Carmel banquet were Dr. C. Thomas Pickering, dean of the USI School of Education and Human Services; Dr. Robert E. Mays, chair of the Teacher Education Department and director of Field Experiences; and Dr. Janet Freeman, professor of education and sponsor of the Student Education Association.
