

Plans for ISUE's new library are rapidly taking shape. The new building, which is to be located south of the present classroom building, will be three stories in height and contain, in addition to the library itself, classrooms, offices, and a new faculty lounge. The faculty lounge and most of the classrooms will occupy the ground (or basement) floor; the library and library staff offices will take up the top two floors.

Faculty Council Supports Student Book Fund Drive

The following motion was passed by the Faculty Council on February 9, 1970: "The Faculty Council commends the Student Union for its Library Service Day (February 20) project. The Council further recommends that this project be considered a University sanctioned event, for which the following motion previously passed by the Council applies: Students who expect to be absent from class should confer with their instructor prior to the absence. Students who miss classes are not excused from their obligations to their instructor. The faculty is expected to give students an opportunity to meet class obligations based upon an evaluation of the student's reason for absence. A confirmed participation in a sanctioned University event is to be considered a valid reason for a student absence."

What this means is that any student who is willing to devote his time to the Library Fund Drive will be exempt from attending classes February 20. However, those students who plan to miss classes in order to help with the campaign must submit their names to the Dean's Office prior to noon, February 18.

Dr. Small Aids Ed. Program

The Education Department has announced an opportunity for students to gain experience in a teaching situation on a part time basis. A program in cooperation with five area elementary schools is available for sixty students to work in the field of Developmental and Remedial Reading.

There are still positions open for ISUE students who want to acquire some early exposure in the field of education. Students, who will be under the supervision of a teacher, will be assigned to one of the five schools for two hours a week.

The intent of the program was explained by Dr. Small, head of guidance and testing. "In addition to providing more individual attention to these elementary students, ISUE students who participate in this program will benefit from the exposure to practical work in the field of Education, prior to the formal teaching assignment that is necessary for the fulfillment of degree requirements."

Thursday, January 29, the staff of the Shield acquired new office space. The newspaper office is located in Room 64, within the education departmental offices.

The new office is equipped with a desk, a large work table, and two new typewriters on loan from the Business department. It is hoped that the newspaper office will consolidate the staff and provide a place for staff members to work.

The mess at Registration was untangled this semester through thorough planning and hard work on behalf of the Registrar and his staff. Members of the faculty are shown at the advisement table in room 126.

LSD AT ISUE Campus Feb. 20

Friday, February 20, has been designated Library Service Day by an action of the Faculty Council. Any student who desires may substitute class attendance with work for the Student Book Fund Drive. All student organizations are being mobilized to canvass the surrounding communities for contributions.

ISUE's student Book Fund Drive, sponsored by the ISUE Foundation in conjunction with the Evansville Jaycees, is gaining momentum as student organizations on campus compete with each other for the twenty-five dollar gift certificate that will be awarded to the organization with the highest rate of contributions per organization member.

Al Cook of the Student Book Fund Drive, has set a goal of twenty-five thousand dollars for the campaign. For each individual contribution to the Library Fund the Donor's name will be inscribed in the book as a founder of the University Library.

Students who collect donations to the Library should submit them to Miss Pam Woods in Dean Rice's office. For any additional information contact Pam Woods or Al Cook, Room 185.

Notice To Student Organizations

As the number of student organizations grows, it is important that the members of the campus community are informed of activities which involve ISUE students. One convenient vehicle for the display of organizational activities is the student newspaper.

In the remaining issues of the Shield for this year, a section of the paper will be reserved for the publication of organizational activities.

Any organization wishing to publicize any meeting or event needs only to notify one of the staff members in the Shield office, Room 64, or leave a message in the Shield office.

Reduced Auto Insurance Rates

One of the costliest aspects of operating an automobile is the cost of insurance. Recently automobile insurance companies announced that there would be a considerable reduction for policy costs for students who maintain a B average in College.

Students whose academic grade point average for previous semesters has been a B average should raise questions with their insurance agent as to whether their particular company provides such a reduction. One company reported a savings of approximately $150 per year in premiums for students who maintain an B average in College during their freshman and sophomore years.

Student Senate Elections Set

Elections Scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday
February 18 and 19.

At a meeting of the Student Senate, February 9, a motion was made and carried to hold elections for those seats that have been vacated since the fall. By a 7 to 2 vote the Student Senate decided to hold elections for three seniors, one junior, and two freshmen.

Petitions are available for those students who want to run in the election in Mrs. Volkman's office, Room 117A. Petitions must be completed by Monday, February 16.

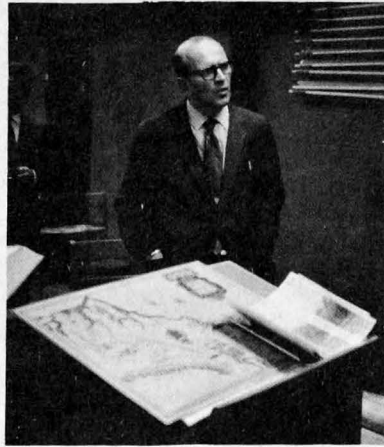

Balloting for the new Student Senators will take place in the Hallway between the Administrative and Classroom buildings, February 18 and 19, from 11 to 1. Those who are elected will serve until the Student Senate elections for the year 1970-71 in May.

ISUE History Club Hears Dr. Snively

Wednesday evening, February 4, the ISUE History Club sponsored its first speaker for the semester. Dr. Dan Snively, a retired Vice President of Mead Johnson, spoke on "Roanoke, America's Finest Riddle."

Dr. Snively told the members of the History Club about his theories regarding Sir Walter Raleigh's lost colony.

Dr. Snively has been extensively published and his thorough field research shows the strictest attention to the most minute details. Along with his 79 published articles and busy lecture schedule, Dr. Snively has written a book concerning Ohio River pirates.

Business National Interviews BΣE

Mr. Frank Brye, Executive Secretary-Treasurer of Alpha Kappa Psi, the United States' leading professional business fraternity, met with ISUE's Beta Sigma Epsilon Fraternity Wednesday, December 28, to discuss the possibility of accepting BΣE into their organization. Mr. Paul Lowe, President of the Hoosier's Alumni Chapter was also on the agenda.

Mr. Brye explained a few of the many benefits of belonging to such an organization, among them were: an Employer Recruiting Seminary, where the nation's leading companies talk to college juniors about how to apply for employment; and a list of personnel people in the Evansville area who belong to Alpha Kappa Psi.

After the discussion, the BΣE members voted to start the petitioning process which will be studied at length by the National Board of Advisors. They will then vote on the Chapter and if the vote is favorable they will send an installation team from I.U., S.I.U. and Murray State to officially perform the ceremony.

ISA Meeting

Chuck Gebuhr called the January 18 meeting of the I. S. A. to order at 1:30 p.m. in the I.U.-Indianapolis Medical Center.

As a result of bad weather, there was insufficient attendance for a quorum. The group discussed the following topics: Student Rights-Code of Conduct, Admission of non-state schools, and viewed the film "Brainstorming."

Chuck Gebuhr scheduled the next meeting for February 15 at 1:30 p.m. in the Medical Center at Indiana University.

"...ancient seers dared to assert... dimly glimpsed the mind-splitting concept that words are as vital to men as blood, bone and sinew... the grandeur, the mystery, the utility and the elusiveness of man's most important tools: words."

Rev. Webb Garrison

Evansville Press

Saturday, Jan. 31, 1970

Vietnam is no longer the hot issue it was. Doves and hawks alike are somewhat mollified and "pollution" is now the "in" word. We are being exhorted to re-beautify America, to stop littering the streets, parks and highways, to tidy up the lakes, rivers and ocean fronts; to demand strict laws regulating industrial wastes and car exhausts. Americans seem to have been born for causes, and if intensity of effort equals the amount of results, we will soon be enjoying the benefits, esthetic and practical, of less pollution in our total environment.

I am in favor of such a campaign and always have been, even when it wasn't a popular cause, and I'm wondering whether we ought not to consider clean speech as a part of clean air. Not that I have anything against four letter or one syllable words; for no, I am not horrified and, yes, I am for free speech and against censorship. There are times when those words are really the only ones that will do, because they are plain, direct and for some people, the only words that are understandable. One who is concerned with the state of soul of an uneducated person will not say, if he has any hope for conversion, "Harry, you have succumbed to the blandishments of Lucifer; you will be consigned to the conflagration of the netherworld." No, soul-saver will simply say, "Harry, you're being damned to hell." In another instance, "excrement" will not be used, but *, or * or * will be used because "excrement" has no meaning for the illiterate.

Conversely here is an example when a four letter word is not used well. "Every damn time I started that g... damn car, the damn accelerator got stuck and I damn near took off like a g... damn jack rabbit." The very first thing that is immediately apparent is the speaker's limited vocabulary. The word "damn" is used no less than five times and always as an adjective. Does such an ordinary circumstance call for such forceful words? Paradoxically when a momentous occasion does arise, speech from that kind of person comes to a virtual standstill, an habitual four letter word user unable to command any other words. "Damn" and "hell" are truly awesome words when used in a Biblical sense, and relatively meaningless when used otherwise.

The shorter terms for bodily functions and for certain aspects of sex and sexual activity are comparatively harmless and even sometimes funny, but what purpose is their use say, in general conversation or in a card game? It would seem that the logical use of those particular four letter words would depend a great deal on whether or not they are employed in private conversation and in definite context. A private conversation is just that. It means that the voice is so controlled that the conversation does not become public. The ribald, bawdy and earthy language that may be quite appropriate in a home, or behind closed door office, or mingled with the clatter of machinery, or in a classroom is not necessarily a model for public use.

It is quite possibly true that if we hear something repeatedly, we become calloused to it. Perhaps this has happened to a lot of ears. The ears no longer jar to the sharp impact of four letter words. But for those who still possess a keen audio faculty, the words are not only offensive but tiring and monotonous. The following will illustrate. It took place outside a supermarket while I waited to have my groceries loaded in the car.

"Did you see Jerry's wheels?"

"Yeah, 67 Chevy."

"He told me what he's going to do with it."

"Yeah, he told me too."

"I told him he's fulla ****."

"Why? I did it to my car."

"Anybody knows that's a  idea."

"Why is it a  idea?"

"It just is."

"I got scientific proof."

"You got * proof."

"I thought you were a friend of mine."

"I am."

"What kind of a  friend are you?"

"Who you calling a *****?"

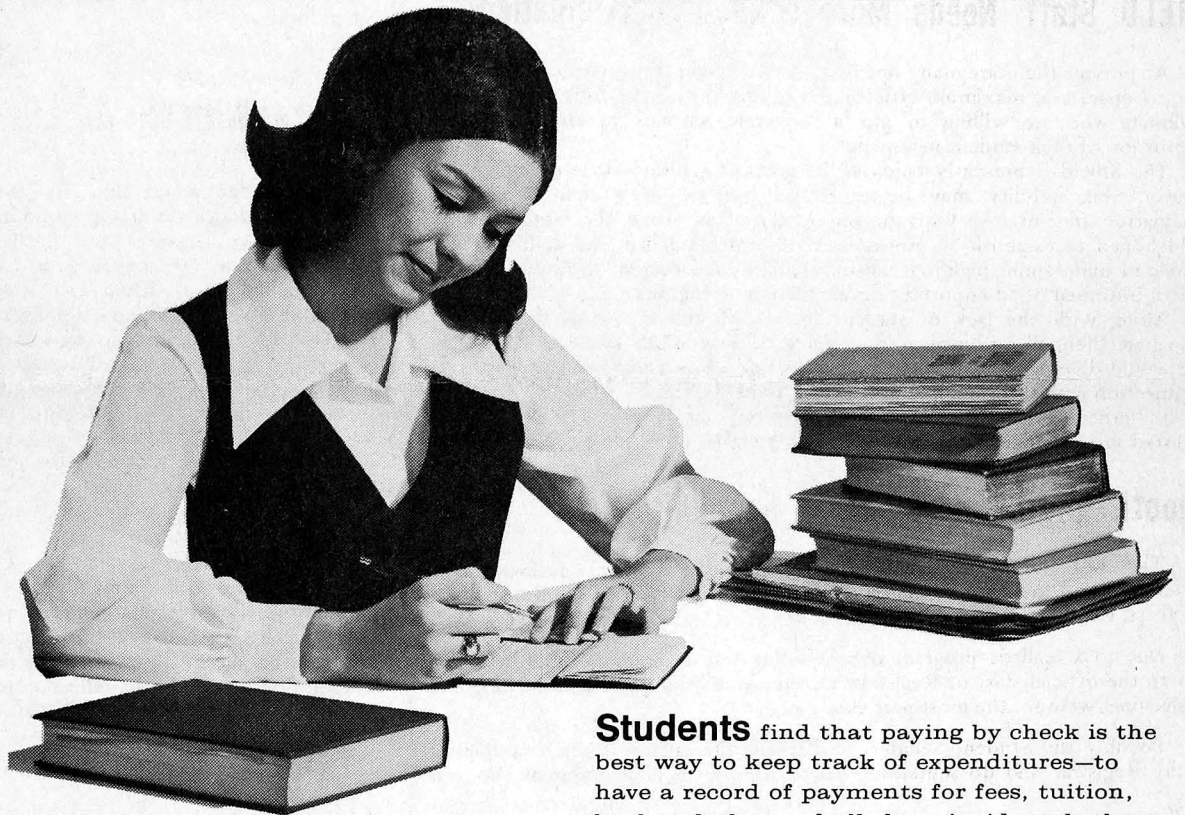

"You, y' ****"

"Well, * YOU!"

I suppose that there may be some mitigating reasons for the above — extreme youth, plus a heady sense of independence, plus the equivalent of a sixth grade I.Q. that would prompt such a meaningless exchange.

What reasons could there possibly be for people not so young with a high school or college education to resort to similar conversation? Restricting certain words to certain times and places does not mean that one is hypocritical, or that one does not have the courage of one's convictions, or that euphemisms are the better choice. It does mean a discernment and an awareness that the same words used interminably eventually loses the listener.

The distaff side is not excepted. I have never believed that imitation is necessarily the sincerest form of flattery. Too many women in their obvious quest to be regarded as equals to men surely have quaffed too deeply of the dregs of the speech barrel. Coarse vulgar speech never made a male a man, and if a woman believes she must equate herself with men, she cont. on page 6

Editorial Policy

In order to clarify the editorial policy of the Shield, the following statement should be considered with any editorial that appears in the Shield.

In an effort to create a forum for the mature and articulate discussion of topics relevant to our college community, the Shield will from time to time publish editorial comment that is the opinion of the editorial staff or a member of our reporting staff. This commentary will be clearly identifiable by its placement on the editorial page. This means that all other portions of the paper will be dedicated to the purpose of objectively informing our readership of activities and developments that play a significant role in ISUE campus affairs.

SHIELD Staff Needs More Student Participation.

At present there are many openings on the Shield for interested people. In order to operate at maximum efficiency, the Shield must be fully staffed with individuals who are willing to put a moderate amount of effort into the composition of their student newspaper.

The Shield is presently enjoying its greatest stability since its inception. However, this stability may be shortlived because of a lack of student participation and interest. With the acquisition of an office, the Editors of the Shield hoped to establish an atmosphere of professionalism and dedication to the idea of maintaining high journalistic standards and keeping the student body of ISUE informed of all important developments on campus.

Along with the lack of student interest in the affairs of the student newspaper, there is a conspicuous absence of journalism students. Common sense would dictate that the logical place to find a journalism student would be in connection with the Shield. However this is not the case.

In order to make our position perfectly clear; any student who is interested should make an effort to contact a member of the Shield staff.

Smooth Registration Rates Recognition

The staff of the Shield would like to extend its congratulations to Mr. John Deem and the entire staff of the Registrar's Office. For the first time in two years, Registration was smooth and quick.

Due to a realistic program of scheduling and the hard work of everyone prior to the official start of Registration, the three hour periods of waiting and massive lines were for the most part eliminated.

Possibly the Student Senate could follow the organizational example set by the Registrar and do something besides dicker the remainder of the year away.

SHIELD Supports Student Book Fund Drive

It is impossible to stress the importance of a complete library facility to the development of this campus. We are often tempted to moan and groan about the exclusion of students from the university building process. But for once, a group of students have the opportunity within their grasp to provide one of the fundamental building blocks for the foundation of this University. Every student who is registered at ISUE for the second semester should have in his possession the very tools for this important work.

If every student could just realize the significance of his role in obtaining money for books for the new Library, we could supply our Library with the books it needs to function the way it should.

It would be nice to find a benefactor who would donate the required funds, but this would not be as meaningful as full student participation. If only half of this student body came in with only three donations of ten dollars this Book drive could easily reach its goal of twenty-five thousand dollars.

It should only take a minimum of effort to obtain three pledges from neighbors, relatives, former and present employers, and parents. Go to the places in the city where you do a lot of business. In the course of a routine day each student should encounter at least three individuals who would be happy to make a contribution to the cause of higher learning and educational opportunity.

There are only nine days left for this Student Book Fund Drive, and we of the Shield wholeheartedly support this cause with our time and money. This is a chance for the students of ISUE to make a name for themselves.

Student "Beef's" About Noise in the Library

TO THE EDITOR:

During the entire semester at the new ISUE campus we have been hearing how small and cramped is our student lounge. Most of the complaining has been because of a lack of chair space. I personally felt that it was more than adequate, but then it was brought to my attention that what I thought to be the student and faculty combined lounge was, in fact, our library! Which is to say that our library, which is supposedly a place of study, has all the earmarks of a small children's recreational area including adult sponsors who contribute their share of the noisy activities.

Just from my own personal observation during finals week, I think that all these inconsiderate people should be given A's in the noise and "jaw-jacking" course held at the library. It is disgusting that students who would like to study find it hard to use the library for that purpose. It would seem that we should be mature enough by the time we get to college to respect the rights of others. Why not start then by making the library a place of study instead of a room of tables with immature children conducting experiments in distraction. It was mentioned at mid-term time that the grades of many students were terribly low. Could these grades be improved, to some degree, if more studying was taking place in the library?

I make this plea to students and faculty alike. Let's stop the noise. I sincerely hope that the administration (and the librarian who talks so loudly over the phone) will find enough backbone and discipline to return the library to a place of study.

It would seem rather ridiculous, if not just plain stupid, to go ahead with the planning and construction of a $2.2 million structure, when there is presently some question as to its ultimate use. That would be a mighty expensive student lounge!

Respectfully yours,
C. Merrill McMahan

We Agree With You

To the Editor:

As a student who is sincerely interested in every aspect of ISUE, especially the student paper, I was disappointed in the recent issue of THE SHIELD.

The news coverage of the December 17th issue was undoubtedly questionable. For, actually there was only one story in the entire issue which could possibly be classified as "news". The remainder of the copy rather, consisted of no more than one opinionated complaint following another.

And the most important fact is that any student who does not attend this university and who is not well aware of the various problems of THE SHIELD would find it impossible to interpret the coverage of this issue. As a matter of fact, many students who do attend this university were completely baffled as to the relevance of such material.

It is not the duty of any student publication to justify its actions through its news coverage. It is the duty, however, of a student paper to report accurate and unbiased coverage (exclusive of editorial content) that is of concern to the student body.

"Bickering" with members of the faculty, student body, and even the staff itself through means of the press is only derogatory to the paper, the paper staff, and the university which the paper represents.

The old saying "don't knock it till you have tried it" cannot be hurled at me; for I, too, am aware of the many problems of producing and supervising the production of a completely voluntary publication. But even I feel it necessary to suggest that the staff of THE SHIELD review its journalistic standards and then seriously abide by them.

Sharon Wright
Student

We felt that this letter was of enough significance to print again. Although this letter appeared in our last issue, we feel that it is to the benefit of our readership if they gain another opportunity to read it.

We wholeheartedly concur with everything that Miss Wright said and hope that we will never again lose sight of the purposes of a campus newspaper.

BASS-ACKWARDS

BY
NIXON

I am sure that many of you have read of my recent accident, for I have received many get-well cards. Well, I am sorry to inform you of this, but it was not I who had the accident. It was Randy Rader.

It seems that due to my recent absence many people believed I was near death from a tragic automobile accident or drafted. I was involved in neither. I was merely exercising the right of any irresponsible young American to simply goof off.

I am glad to be back and I hope that you are glad to have me back. If you are not I will spend many lonely hours sobbing in my bedroom. To say the least, I will be totally crushed.

Did everyone have a merry Christmas? I did, for I was pleasantly awakened by my mother at 6:05 a.m. by her screaming: "fire."

Usually I am rather slow at getting out of bed, but this particular morning I made a special effort to be the first one out.

Moments later, while I was watching Christmas go up in a blaze of glory, I noticed that I had no shoes or socks on. Since it was snowing my feet became extremely uncomfortable. I then began seeking refuge in a neighbor's house.

After my feet began to thaw out, I began to wonder where the fire trucks were. After they arrived I found out that, due to approximately three inches of fresh snow, they encountered great difficulty in driving up the hill that I live on.

I am very grateful to the firemen who were instrumental in the saving of my house. By the way, my house was torn down and another is being erected in its place.

Due to my recent lack of dates, I am soliciting all interested, good-looking girls who would like to go out with me. My phone number is 422-2773; call anytime (Girls Only).

Did you know that Pam Woods has blue eyes? She does, and they are extremely pretty. I asked her out, but she told me that she is old enough to be my mother. How old is she anyway?

I am having a contest! Guess who the Fearsome Four of ISUE are and win a fabulous, expensive, and super-colossal prize. Just find out who belongs to these names: 1) Bear 2) Bull 3) Ram 4) Ape. Sorry, this contest is void where prohibited by law.

Does anyone know what my very first column was written about? If you do, well aren't you the lucky one.

My first column was written about Waldo Walnut, a table on which newspapers were set at the old school.

Waldo is no longer with us; he has gone to that old Saw Mill in the sky. He was 243 years old at his time of death. I know he will be missed by all.

A breathless peace has engulfed the entire Kingdom of Camelot ISUE. There is talk of Camelot ISUE gaining her independence from the Vikings of the north in just a few short years.

The Vikings have been skillfully helping King David guide Camelot into a position of potential leadership in the entire "Peace, make babies not war!" This has become a popular cry around campus lately. It seems that these few words have gained the full support of the ENTIRE student body, even mine! However, there does seem to be a great deal of opposition to these words by the parents of girls, especially fathers. Why? Certainly the action these words refer to is much safer and much more fun than fighting in VietNam, unless the girl's father has a shotgun.

GO, GO, GO, GO OUT AND GET MONEY AND BOOKS FOR THE ISUE BOOK FUND DRIVE!!!!

I have another guessing game! It is called "Spartan Faculty Member of the Week." The winner will receive another fabulous prize from me. I will even give you a list of initials to choose from. They are: J. F., F. D., D. R., J. R., K. C., M. decision is final, void where prohibited by law if there is no way the law can be broken or ignored.

A new concept of study is being taken hold of by the students of ISUE this semester. This concept is called studying and going to class.

It has been tested at various universities for a number of years and has proven itself very helpful to the students in raising their grade point average.

Any student wanting further information about this new program of study should contact Tom Cohoon. His phone number is 425-4847.

A TIP ON DIAMONDS

... from an experienced diamond setter

Oscar R. (Ottie) Droste
Manufacturing Jeweler
and Owner of
DROSTE'S JEWELRY SHOPPE
4535 First Avenue
(Meadows Bowling Building)

Hello,

Are you planning to buy a diamond sometime in the near future but are not sure whether you could shop wisely for this "mystical" gem? If so, I would like to take this opportunity to invite you to come in and talk to me.

As a diamond setter and retail jeweler, I believe it is to our mutual advantage to educate you about DIAMONDS. Have you ever wanted to know the answer to one or more of the following questions?

- (1) Why does one diamond weighing one carat sell for $199 and another diamond of comparable size sell for a much, much higher price? What determines the price of diamonds?
- (2) What qualities should I look for in a diamond? Is one quality more important than another?
- (3) How can I get my money's worth in the diamond I select?

I have been a manufacturing jeweler for almost fifteen years and have set thousands of diamonds. This experience qualifies me to answer the above questions for you. Complementing my personal experience is the GIA "GEMOLITE"* diamond scope. This intricate piece of equipment is designed specifically to let the prospective diamond customer SEE his diamond while I explain each detail.

I WOULD LIKE TO HAVE YOU BUY YOUR DIAMOND FROM ME. BUT, if you are still undecided after talking to me, your time will not have been wasted. You will have gained the knowledge to shop other jewelry stores with confidence. You will know what to look for and how much your money should buy.

An "educated" shopper will be a smart shopper. It is here that I hope to win you as a customer. For the smart shopper will soon discover that DROSTE'S JEWELRY SHOPPE has the most going for it...and you.

Sincerely,

will not use the means which makes a male less than a man.

I don't believe that one can validly say, "Times are different now." When were they not different? Each period of time, each year, each month, each day is different from the last and yet the same. There is still the same injustice, the same anger, the same humiliations, the same frustrations, and if obscenities of speech could have changed them from previous times, they would surely have been accomplished by this time. Telling it like it is - disregarding the grammatical furor the phrase arouses - acquires (and always has required) an especially delt choice and skillful use of words. Shocking conditions will trigger shocking language from those who experience those conditions and who know no other words. But well-meaning but misguided people who take the words from their source try to establish an empathy and thereby make a mockery of a perfectly legitimate obscenity. If every one then mouths the same crudities, who will be left with powerful, coherent voices to help change the conditions?

Obscenities are cheap to the point of no value and no impact, and if one has an even slightly better vocabulary, he will not discard it and thereby insult and downgrade those with whom he has aligned himself in a common cause.

Maybe we should try to imagine an Orwellian scene. There is a law that one may speak only for ten minutes out of every hour for social purposes, and another ten minutes for all other purposes. That's pretty bad news, but it would eliminate a lot of garbage words.

ISUE Student Wins Award At Purdue

On January 10, Stanley Campbell was awarded a red ribbon for a plaster sculpture at the 4-H Rural Youth State Convention.

Campbell, a full time Art major and native of Wadesville, Indiana, represented the Posey County Rural Youth at the convention which took place in the Purdue University Student Union Building.
