The 1996 Honor Symposium will be held Saturday, February 17, in the University Conference Center, this year recognizing 25 students who were nominated by their professors to participate in this 12th annual event for the academic elite at the University of Southern Indiana.

The morning's activities are informal, opening with a continental breakfast and words of welcome from USI President H. Ray Hoops; Dr. Robert L. Reid, vice president for Academic Affairs; and Dr. Jennifer J. Williams, assistant professor of computer information systems and Honor Symposium chair.

The students will be divided into teams to compete in an Academic Super Bowl. University professors were invited to submit questions which were culled to produce a list that probes the depth and breadth of learning among the students, who represent all disciplines at USI.

The bowl will culminate in a roundtable discussion among students and participating professors. Lunch will be followed by the presentation to students of Honor Symposium commemorative.

More than 150 students were nominated for the 1996 symposium. Since the event usually is limited to 40 or fewer participants, the symposium committee decided to alter criteria — instead of a 3.5 or better grade point average (on a 4.0 scale) and at least 35 hours of course work completed, this year's participants have a 3.8 GPA or better and have completed at least 100 hours at USI.

(Participation is voluntary; those who have agreed to attend are listed on the opposite side. Many are nontraditional (over age 25) students and both current and hometown addresses are listed.)
