Sixteen Hoosier high school valedictorians and salutatorians have enrolled at the University of Southern Indiana for the 1989-90 fall term and will be recipients of the prestigious Presidential Scholarships which guarantee up to $18,400 to cover tuition, books, fees, and room and board during four years at the University.

The scholarships, inaugurated by the USI Foundation in 1988 to attract top students to USI, drew 24 valedictorians and salutatorians from around Indiana the first year. A Presidential Scholarship will allow the recipient up to $4,600 a year and is renewable through four years if the student continues to meet established criteria. An additional qualification has been added for 1989-90 and later recipients, requiring that they score at least 1000 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT).

Dr. David L. Rice, University president, said, "The ability to attract pacesetters each year to USI classrooms has significant impact. Each one of these very capable students will be academic leaders in the classroom, in much the same way that a basketball star provides the spark and the leadership for the basketball team.

"Our alumni track record indicates that USI has a good solid base of students," Dr. Rice said, "and the addition each year of more high school valedictorians and salutatorians will enhance this solid base in all academic areas."

The 1989-90 recipients include:
