The 20th century transition by artists from being artists in America to becoming American artists and in the 1980s, reaffirming their regional roots, will be explored in a meeting at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, October 2, in the UC350 at the University of Southern Indiana.

The program, "Where We Live: Artist and Environment," will be presented at the USI Society for Arts and Humanities quarterly meeting. It will feature Ms. Kathryn M. Waters, USI assistant professor of art, who will show slides of her work and the work of artists who have influenced her development as a Neo-regionalist painter.

The public is invited. For information, contact the USI English Department, (812) 464-1735.
