Five employees join staff at USI

For immediate release
July 31, 1995

Five employees have joined the administrative staff at the University of Southern Indiana, including two who have returned to former positions.

Debra S. Goodall of Evansville has returned as manager of Alumni/Development Information Services. A University of Evansville biology graduate, she was microbiology assistant in the IU Medical Center at USI for four years, then switched to computer programming and held the Alumni/Development post from January 1993 to May 1994. She left to join Systems Computer Technology (SCT), working in the Civic Center, and returned to USI in June.

Annie M. Krug of Evansville has resumed responsibilities as director of Special Events. She held the USI position from 1989 to 1991 and in early 1992, was interim managing director for Young Abe Lincoln. She returns to USI from a position as senior development officer with a health systems foundation in Knoxville, Tennessee. She has a B.A. in humanities from Saint Mary of the Woods College.

New employees are:

Julie Dunn Crawford of Evansville, program advisor, Student Life; Crawford has a B.A. in political science and M.A. in education from the University of Louisville. She has been handling the USI student program advisor duties on a parttime basis.

Kelly Riesenbeck Dillon of RR 1, Haubstadt, Indiana, Enrollment Services counselor; formerly of Pikeville, Indiana, she is a USI business and management/marketing graduate. She previously was a sales representative with Kraft Foods.

Merritt Youngs of Equality, Illinois, Enrollment Services counselor; a graduate of California State University at Fresno, she previously was director of sales with Communique Marketing and an account executive with First Cellular of Southern Illinois.
