University of Southern Indiana Theatre will open its 2016-17 season with The Glass Menagerie by Tennessee Williams. The production, directed by Elliot Wasserman, professor of theatre, runs October 13-16 in the USI Performance Center located next to University Center East on the USI campus.

Set primarily in the 1930s near the end of the Depression, this classic play concerns the family struggle of its main character, Tom Wingfield, who feels trapped into taking care of his demanding mother Amanda and his distressed and handicapped sister Laura. Tom desperately seeks an escape from his depressing job in a shoe factory so that he can live a life of adventure as a Merchant Mariner and gain experience as a writer. Fearing that she may lose Tom's support, Amanda pressures him to find his own replacement in the form of a marriageable man for Laura. The dramatic outcome of Tom's efforts to both free himself and help his family is the subject of this play, one of the 20th Century's great American masterpieces.

Wasserman will be joined by a design team including USI faculty member Paul Weimer as scenic designer; USI staff member Kevin Gray as sound designer; and USI students Rachel Thomas as lighting designer, John Merritt as costume designer, and Breanna Rutz as production stage manager.

The cast includes USI students Sam Garrison as Tom, Tamarea Kramer as Laura, Ashleigh Dulik as Amanda and Austin Tenbarger as Jim.

Tickets are $7 for USI students, $12 for adults, $10 for USI employees, seniors (60+) and non-USI students. Shows start at 7 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 2 p.m. for the Sunday matinee.
