Greek events this month to benefit Cystic Fibrosis and Special Olympics

Live music, dancing, and raising money for philanthropies are all included in Greek events this month at University of Southern Indiana.

Delta Phi Epsilon will be sponsoring its second Toga Bash to benefit the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation November 7 from 8 p.m. to midnight at McDonald West Recreation Room on USI campus.

The night will include a performance by Element-110, the music of DJ Canon, and a raffle including gift certificates and more.

Awards will be given to the fraternity and sorority that raise the most money for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. The event is open to the public, and admission is $5. A toga is recommended. For more information call Sarah Pollard, vice president of programming for Delta Phi Epsilon, at 812/499-1010.

Alpha Sigma Alpha will be hosting Big Man on Campus to benefit Special Olympics November 22 from 8 to midnight at Carter Hall in the University Center.

The honor of Big Man on Campus is bestowed to the fraternity that raises the most money for Special Olympics. The night will include performances by bands Euphony and Bubba Wiener and a DJ. The event is open to the public, and the admission price will be announced at a later date. For more information call Christina Back, philanthropy chair for Alpha Sigma Alpha, at 812/468-2209.
