University enrollment

| Year        | Total        |
|-------------|--------------|
| 2001 | 9,362 |
| 2000 | 9,012 |
| 1999 | 8,695 |
| 1998 | 8,415 |

Record enrollment trend continues

The University's trend of 3-percent enrollment growth continues this fall. According to figures released Tuesday, September 4, USI's enrollment has risen to 9,362, and the number of first-time freshmen is 2,039.

The majority of students (5,084 or 54 percent) continue to represent Vanderburgh, Posey, Warrick, and Gibson counties. Another 1,117 students are from area counties, and all Indiana counties except one are represented among USI students, who also come from 32 other states and 33 foreign countries.

Mr. Eric Otto, director of Admission, credits the faculty and campus facilities for attracting students.

"As admission counselors visit Indiana high schools they encourage students and parents to visit campus. That visit is so important because students like what they see. The residence halls, the new Recreation and Fitness Center, and other modern facilities attract their interest," he said.

"The students like interaction with faculty during those visits. Often faculty members meet with students to discuss the academic areas of study and correspond with them later about USI programs.

Students like and need that personal attention when they are narrowing college choices."

Other characteristics of USI students include:

■ More students are enrolling full time. This year 6,884 USI students are taking 12 credit hours or more.

■ Females continue to be the dominant gender on campus: 5,660 women and 3,702 men are enrolled.

■ Minority and international students represent 5 percent of the student population. Black students, 328, represent the largest minority population on campus.

■ Adult learners at USI (25 or older) number 2,201, a 5 percent gain.

■ Enrollment in graduate programs increased to 579 students, up 22 percent from last year.

■ USI's population breakdown also includes 1,650 continuing freshmen, 1,595 sophomores, 1,426 juniors, 1,677 seniors, and 396 non-degree students.

This year the University opened O'Bannon Hall, a third student residence companion to Governors and Newman halls. With the apartments available on campus, more than 2,700 students reside at USI.

New center to expand student opportunities

The University celebrated ceremonial groundbreaking for the $23.1 million Science and Education Center, and recognized generous donors contributing major gifts to the new facility Thursday, September 6.

Construction of the 134,000-square-foot center is to conclude in July 2003, assuming no delays. The immense brick and glass structure will be slightly larger than the Liberal Arts Center but slightly smaller than the Health Professions Center, according to Dr. Robert Ruble, associate vice president for Fiscal and Physical Affairs.

"We're overflowing with students. We're glad to have them here, but we need to make sure our facilities keep up with the students we have," he said.

The new center will be comprised of two wings. Portions of the Pott School of Science and Engineering Technology will expand into the W. Paul Torrington Science Wing, adjoining the northwest side of the existing Science Center.

The wing is to be named in recognition of Mr. W. Paul Torrington, a major contributor to the University's science programs.

The Education Wing, connected to the southwest side of the Science Wing, will house the dean's office for the Bower-Suhrheinrich School of Education and Human Services, the Department of Teacher Education, University Division, and Academic Skills.

"What we tried to do was complement the space that was in the existing Science Center to meet the expanding needs we have now and will have in the future," said Dr. Jerome Cain, dean of the Pott School. "Every one of our departments, except Engineering Technology, will get space there."

New facilities in the three-level Science Wing will include faculty and student research labs; physics, geology, mathematics, chemistry, and biology labs; an OSHA-compliant chemical storeroom; and office space.

An indoor well for groundwater monitoring will be located on the lower level. A new greenhouse will be on the roof. Specialized science and math teaching labs also will be available for collaborative use by both the Pott and Bower-Suhrheinrich schools.

"This will mean that we can accommodate the kinds of scientific work that are being done in the 21st century and beyond," Cain observed.

"It's also going to give us the ability to address the needs of the region, state, and nation in science and mathematics education, and allow us to cooperate better than ever before with our colleagues."

The Science Wing's second floor will connect directly with the second level of the existing Science Center. It will link to the Education Wing at a main lobby featuring an expansive three-level atrium around the main staircase.

"The building is going to be a nice addition to the campus," said Mr. Steve Helfrich, director of Facilities, Operations, and Planning. "I think one of the nicest features is going to be the space that's going to be given over to the students for lounging and study when they're waiting for class."

In addition to its instructional areas, the new center will feature a 150-seat auditorium near the main lobby. The Couch/Renner Auditorium will be named in recognition of long-time University supporters, Mrs. Rebecca Nunn Couch and Mrs. Aline Nunn Renner.

The Education Wing, also with three finished levels, will include an unfinished basement designed for future expansion as well. When construction is complete, the Department of Teacher Education will move from its current location in the Forum Wing of the Wright Administration Building to the Education Wing's third level.

"It's going to be great for us. We're looking forward to the additional space," said Dr. Charles Price, chair of the Department of Teacher Education. "We're in a situation where our programs have grown, and we're really excited."

The department's new facilities will include a Professional Development Center, instructional areas, classroom preparation areas, technology labs, and offices.

USI faculty exhibiting artwork

The East/West/North Faculty Art Show, showcasing the talents of art faculty from USI, University of Evansville, and Ivy Tech State College, will be on display at the Evansville Museum of Arts and Science through Sunday, October 21.

An opening reception will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday, September 7. The University community is invited to attend the free event. Anyone planning to attend should call the museum at 425-2406 to register as a guest of the USI Art Department.

The University's exhibiting faculty include Mr. Michael Aakhus, professor of art; Mr. Chuck Armstrong, instructor in graphic design; Mr. C. Matthew Billman, instructor in art; Mr. Eric Braysmith, lecturer in art and English; Mr. Lennie Dowhie, professor of art; Mr. Jim Goodridge, lecturer in art and music; Ms. Mary Hambly, exhibits preparator, New Harmony Gallery of Contemporary Art; Ms. Ann M. Hanat, instructor in photography; Mr. Monty Helm, instructor in art; Mr. David Huebner, lecturer in art and Art Workshop supervisor; Ms. Joan Kempf, assistant professor of graphic design; Ms. Janet Lindholm, lecturer in art and music; Mr. John McNaughton, professor of art; Ms. Nancy Peters, lecturer in art and music; Mrs. Carolyn Roth, special part-time instructor in art and art education; Dr. Joseph Uduehi, assistant professor of art education; and Ms. Katie Waters, professor of art.

The University's new Science and Education Center, depicted in an artist's rendering, is scheduled for completion in July 2003.

"It will give the department, including the faculty and the students, a cohesiveness that we haven't had before," said Dr. Thomas Pickering, dean of the Bower-Suhrheinrich School of Education and Human Services.

"It will give us the physical facilities we need to host meetings and special programs for area teachers in the Department of Teacher Education, and it will enable us to have state-of-the-art educational technology centered in the classrooms and offices."

General-purpose classrooms, tiered lecture classrooms, computer labs, and a seminar room will be located on the second level of the Education Wing.

University Division and Academic Skills, now based in the Orr Center, will move to the wing's lower level. Their new space will include a large tutoring arena, testing areas, offices, an advising arena, and computer labs.

"Any time we can streamline our services to students, and they can be served more effectively and more efficiently, the students themselves are going to profit and prosper by it, and so will the University," said Dr. Charles Harrington, assistant vice president for Academic Affairs.

Although the Pott and Bower-Suhrheinrich schools, University Division, and Academic Skills will be its primary occupants, portions of the new center will be open to the greater University community.

Report from the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs

The following undergraduate petitions have been approved:

University Core Curriculum

■ For C5: Global Communities: SPCH 317 Intercultural Communication – 3 hours.

Undergraduate program deletion

■ Minor in Recreation.

University honoring 25-year employees

The University will celebrate Founders Day, recognizing employees with 25 years of service, at 3 p.m. Monday, September 17, in Carter Hall. A reception will follow the program.

This year's honorees include Mr. Ronald Harvey, senior maintenance mechanic in the Physical Plant; Ms. Donna Laymon, senior administrative assistant in the Physical Plant; Mrs. Sherianne Standley, vice president for Advancement; Mrs. Ruth Waller, director of Intramural and Recreational Sports; and Mr. Michael Whipple, assistant treasurer and director of the Business Office.

Jermakowicz named to USI board

A senior biology/chemistry/German triple major will serve as the new student member of USI's Board of Trustees.

Jermakowicz

Mr. Walter J. Jermakowicz III was appointed to a two-year term by Governor Frank O'Bannon in July. He is the son of Dr. Eva K. Jermakowicz, associate professor of accounting, and the late Dr. Walter W. Jermakowicz, who also taught at USI.

A 1999 graduate of Reitz High School, Jermakowicz also is serving as the 2001-2002 attorney general for the Student Government Association. He has been a leader in other student organizations as well, including the USI chapter of the American Chemical Society. Earlier this year, he was named student liaison to the society's National Task Force on Student Programming.

An outstanding science student, Jermakowicz placed fourth at the 1999 Intel International Science Fair in Philadelphia after winning local and state awards. He has conducted independent research in chemistry and biology at USI, and just completed an 11-week summer fellowship involving research in molecular neurobiology at Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri.

After earning an undergraduate degree at USI, the Evansville resident hopes to enter a program leading to a combined M.D./Ph.D., preparing him to be a practicing physician, research scientist, and medical school professor.

Travel writer to open lecture series

Travel writer and wit Mr. Tim Cahill will open the University's "Encountering Nature" lecture series at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, September 25, in Mitchell Auditorium.

The author of seven books, including Pass the Butterworms: Remote Journeys Oddly Rendered, will be the first speaker in the series featuring people who - from different perspectives and experiences - will explain what it means to "encounter nature."

A founding editor of Outside Magazine, Cahill writes a monthly column and is the publication's editor-at-large. His work also has appeared in The New York Times Book Review, National Geographic, Esquire, Rolling Stone, and Men's Journal.

He is co-author of the Academy Award-nominated documentaries, The Living Sea and Dolphins, as well as the IMAX film, Everest. Cahill resides in Montana.

The "Encountering Nature" series is sponsored by the University Core Curriculum Council, and the USI community is invited to attend the free lectures.

Dr. Robert Boostrom, associate professor of education and member of the lecture planning committee, said the series aims to raise questions, entertain, and bring together students, faculty, and the general public.

"It will illuminate the connections and intersections of different fields of study that combine to create a core curriculum," he added.

The series will continue in January with Mr. Gary Robertson of Marengo Cave. Tales and Scales, a music-telling troupe, will present The Animal that Drank Up Sound in February, and Dr. James Dabbs, Georgia State University professor of psychology, will speak in March. Dabbs has spent 20 years researching hormones and how they influence behavior. Dr. Paul Doss, chair of the Geology and Physics Department, also is set to share his experiences as chief geologist at Yellowstone National Park. His presentation will be scheduled at a later date.

Names in the news

Achievements

"Anti-Globalist Mobilization: Giving IGOs Their Just Deserts," an article by Dr. Charles T. Barber, professor of political science, was published in the most recent issue of the Journal of the Indiana Academy of the Social Sciences.

Dr. Charles Harrington, assistant vice president for Academic Affairs and associate professor of management, presented the invited paper "Diagnosing Student Support Needs for Distance Learning" at the 14th Annual Meeting of the Tennessee Association for Institutional Research held in August in Murfreesboro, Tennessee.

Harrington also was appointed to the Editorial Board of Academic Leader: The Newsletter for Academic Deans and Department Chairpersons (Magna Publishing).

Dr. Stephen Zehr, associate professor and chair of sociology, presented the paper "The Discourse of Ecological Modernization in Policy Deliberations on Global Climate Change" in the Sociology of Science session at the American Sociological Association annual meetings in August in Anaheim, California.

Promotions and transfers

■ Mrs. Ann Hammers, from second-shift custodial worker, Physical Plant, to first-shift custodial worker, Physical Plant.

■ Miss Pamela Lynn, from custodial worker in the satellite building to custodial worker in the Science Center.

■ Ms. Yvonne Mobley, from administrative clerk in the Department of Social Work to administrative clerk in the Office of the Registrar.

In appreciation

"A sincere thank you to USI friends who expressed sympathy in the loss of my husband and my father-in-law."

- Dottie Nurrenbern, Academic Skills lecturer

"The family of Ruth Kissel would like to thank you for the beautiful basket arrangement that was sent in memory of our mother.

"We would also like to thank all of the past and present staff who came to pay their respects to our mom. She loved USI and enjoyed her job in Library Services. She made some long-lasting and wonderful relationships, which she (and we) never forgot.

"Thanks again for your thoughts and prayers during our mother's illness and passing."

- The Ruth Kissel Family: Kelly and Katie Kissel, Kandy and Gary Steinfurth, and Don and Donna Brandenburg

IU archaeologist to discuss Bone Bank Site

Archaeologist Cheryl Ann Munson, research scientist in the IU Department of Anthropology, will present "Rescue Excavations at the Bone Bank Archeological Site, Posey County" at 7 p.m. Friday, September 21, in Forum II.

Munson's illustrated talk will address the accomplishments and challenges of ongoing excavation in Indiana's first rescue project focusing on an endangered archaeological site. She is directing the IU research team investigating the Bone Bank Site in southern Posey County, where a large prehistoric Native-American village once was located.

Situated on the banks of the Wabash River, the Bone Bank Site nearly has been lost to erosion. The village's development around A.D. 1400 coincided with the regional Angel culture's abandonment of the Angel Mounds State Historic Site.

In the 1800s, people witnessing human burials washing away from Bone Bank gave the site its name. For nearly a century, many believed the site had been completely destroyed; however, surveys later indicated small portions remained intact.

Although the cemeteries are gone, the site still is considered one of Indiana's most significant. The goal of excavation is to recover artifacts and food remains from Bone Bank's surviving residential area and refuse dumps.

Excavation at the site began last year. Student volunteers in USI's Introduction to Archaeology class are among those assisting the IU team. Following lab analysis at IU, USI will curate the recovered Bone Bank collections.

The University and the Friends of Angel Mounds are cosponsoring Munson's lecture, which will be presented in conjunction with Indiana Archaeology Week, Monday through Sunday, September 17 through 23.

Indiana's Wabash River Heritage Corridor Program is funding the project through a grant administered by the Four Rivers Resource, Conservation, and Development Area Inc.

Educational institutions, organizations, and individuals have provided additional support.

Chilean poet subject of colloquium

Dr. Teresa Huerta, assistant professor of Spanish, will present "The Subversion of Militarist Discourse in the Prose Writings of Gabriela Mistral," a lecture in the Liberal Arts Colloquium, at 3:30 p.m. Friday, September 28, in Carter Hall D.

Huerta's presentation will explore the Chilean Nobel Prize-winning poet's views on militarism. Mistral (1889-1957) strongly rejected totalitarian regimes and in her prose writings developed an alternative political discourse that subverted the nationalistic rhetoric utilized by the military to justify its intervention in Latin-American governments.

"Mistral's political ideas were brought to my attention a year ago, when I had the opportunity to read a selection of essays containing her political thinking," Huerta said.

"I was impressed by the clarity and relevancy of Mistral's political views which give a better understanding of recent historical events in Chile, my native country."

Huerta holds a Ph.D. in comparative literature from Purdue University. She has been teaching at USI since 1993 and has published articles about Latin-American, Spanish, and Latina literature.

The colloquium is a free lecture series featuring faculty research in the School of Liberal Arts.

Program, group support wellness

"Burnout: How We Set Ourselves Up for It" will be presented from 11:45 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesday, September 19, at Deaconess Cross Pointe.

Online calendars

USI employees and students are invited to enter events on the University's online calendars by visiting usi.edu/webserver/calendar/index.asp and clicking "Add an event to the calendar." The next page requires a user name and password that can be obtained by e-mailing jbelow@usi.edu.

When entering information, be specific about the time, location, and description of the event. Calendar entries should adhere to the style guidelines in the USI "Editor's Manual" that can be found at usi.edu/newsinfo/manual.asp.

Also include information related to costs (if any), target audience, and a contact with an e-mail address or telephone number so interested persons may obtain additional information if desired.

When first using the online calendars, it may be helpful to review some existing entries. New entries are reviewed daily.

Theatre to hold auditions for Oedipus

Open auditions for USI Theatre's production of Sophocles' Oedipus The King will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, September 12 and 13, in the Helen Mallette Studio Theatre.

The Greek classic is a tragic tale of a young man's fate versus his free will as Oedipus attempts to escape his prophesized destiny of marrying his mother and murdering his father.

Under the direction of Mr. Elliot Wasserman, associate professor of theatre, the show will be performed in October at the USI Theatre, 3001 Igleheart Ave.
