Dr. Jane Thompson Follis, academic skills

coordinator and assistant professor of English at the University of Southern Indiana, received certification recently as a "Developmental Education Specialist" from the Kellogg Institute for the Training and Certification of Developmental Educators.

Kellogg Institute is the only one of its kind in the country offering training and certification to educators who work with academically underprepared college students. Each year, some 50 educators participate in summer training followed by a semester's practicum in which they implement new techniques on their home campuses.

Dr. Follis was one of 27 U. S. educators selected to participate in the Kellogg program during the 1987-88 academic year. The certification is awarded through Kellogg in conjunction with Appalachian State University in Boone, North Carolina.
