For Immediate Release
June 24, 1994

A 1988 Mt. Vernon High School graduate has joined the University of Southern Indiana Enrollment Services staff as an admissions counselor in charge of minority programs.

Dirk Johnson, who received a B.S. in public health from Western Kentucky University, is coordinating this summer's ELITE (Encouraging young Leaders to Improve Their Education) program in which 40 Evansville students -- including those in the state's 21st Century Scholar Program -- spend a week on the USI campus (June 26-30) learning the importance of going to college and why a college education is within their reach.

Dirk is the son of Davis and Phyllis Johnson of Sycamore Street in Mt. Vernon.
