Islamic seminar slated for October 29

The public seminar, "Your Muslim Neighbors: Islam in the American Heartlands", is scheduled for Thursday, October 29, from 6 p.m. - 8 p.m. in the University Center's Carter Hall at the University of Southern Indiana. A panel will discuss various aspects of the topic and will include Dr. Marwan Wafa, professor of decision sciences and associate dean of the USI School of Business; Dr. Zahid Saqib, a family practice physician in Carmi, Illinois and an interfaith commissioner in the Islamic community; and Dr. M. Ishfaq Hussain, a pediatrician at St. Mary's Hospital.

Dr. Munir Quddus, professor of economics and chair of the USI Economics and Finance Department, will introduce the panel and Dr. Charles Barber, professor of political science and chair of the USI Philosophy and Political Science Department, will moderate.
