SPRING BREAK PROGRAMS FOR HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

While USI students take a break from classes in mid-March, up to 1,000 Tri-State high school students will visit the campus, participating in programs designed to broaden their perspective on the opportunities available to them after high school.

More than half of the students will attend the second annual Tri-State Business Students Conference on Thursday, March 12, sponsored by the School of Business and its Administrative and Decision Sciences and Business Education Department. Following 8 a.m. registration in the Physical Activities Center, the students will be offered a choice in concurrent sessions:

8:45 a.m. - Forum I: Ms. Janie Cates, president of Beau Madame Modeling Agency, "Putting Your Best Foot Forward;" Forum II: Mr. Michael Libs, president of Libs Candy - The Original, and Mr. Greg Holland, owner of Body in Action Aerobic Center, "The Entrepreneur of the '90s;" Forum III: Mr. Jack Malaney, manager of deJongs Department Store, "Five Areas of Retail Employment"

9:45 a.m. - Forum I: Mrs. Sandra Hermann, director, and Mr. Royce Sutton, minority advisor in the USI University Division, "How to Succeed Your First Year in College;" Forum II: Mr. David H. Russell, president of Carnival Shoe Stores, Inc., "Carnival Shoes = Success;" Forum III: Mrs. April Mitchell, producer for Media

Mix Advertising Agency, "Advertising -- The Name of the Game."

The conference will close with lunch and/or a tour of the USI campus. It is being coordinated by Dr. Gregory P. Valentine, director of the Center for Economic Education.

The rest of the Tri-State high school students will attend two programs on Friday, March 13 -- the 15th annual Classical Heritage Day, which begins at 8 a.m. in Forum I, and the High School Chemistry Competition, slated at 8 a.m. in Forum II.

Dr. Daniel C. Scavone, USI professor of history, is coordinator for heritage day and

EVANSVILLE TIES TO BE COMMUNITY OF SCHOLARS THEME

Evansville ties will be the theme for Spring 1992 Community of Scholars programs, with a musician/author slated in March and a Civil War historian in April, according to Dr. Robert L. Reid, vice president for Academic Affairs who is arranging for their visits.

Mr. Willie Ruff, a professor of music at Yale University and jazz musician who primarily plays French horn and bass, will be here Monday and Tuesday, March 16-17. Mr. Alan T. Nolan, a member of the law firm of Ice Donadio & Ryan, Indianapolis, will be here April 9; his latest Civil War history, Lee Considered: General Robert E. Lee and Civil War History, paints a realistic picture of the Southern leader that has drawn both praise and controversy.

WILLIE RUFF RETURNS TO CHILDHOOD HOME . . .

With time on my hands, and a little money hidden away, I was able to throw myself into music again. I had stored the piano Mama had bought me in the landlady's parlor at the rooming house, and she encouraged me to play whenever I felt like it. I

THE "PHYSICS OF TOYS" TO BE PRESENTED AT USI

Dr. Raymond C. Turner, a Clemson University physics professor, will bring his "Physics of Toys" demonstrations to the University of Southern Indiana on March 19, in the continuing effort to "humanize" science and the scientist.

The programs providing students with hands-on participation in problem solving, as opposed to dull lecturing, are among solutions offered in the growing national concern that the fields of science, mathematics, and engineering will experience critical shortages by the year 2000.

The March 19 program is sponsored by the Schools of Science and Engineering Technology, Education and Human Services, and the USI Foundation.

University students and faculty, school children and teachers, parents, and the community are invited to see that "Science can be fun! Children from 8 to 80 will find that the ideas of science don't have to be difficult or boring. Dr. Turner will use ordinary children's toys such as cars and airplanes, balancing men, rolling dolphins, a mystery blow pipe, and others to introduce basic ideas of science."

played my boogie-woogie every day until school started in September.

Evansville's Lincoln High School was an imposing edifice with a music program that was, for me, its strong feature. But in spite of its up-northness, the school was not integrated and lacked many of the advantages the bigger and better-funded white schools in town enjoyed.

The band director, Mr. Porter, was a virtuoso solo cornet player and all-around musician, who'd already heard about the new boy in town who could play a little piano and read drum music. A nice Mississippi lady, Miss Crawford, was the choir director, and a great pianist too. She went out of her way to make me welcome, for she knew how hard it was for a real Southerner to adjust to Evansville. I signed up for every music activity at the school. I became the choir's first tenor, I played snare drum in the marching band, and at recess every day I dashed to the music room to play my boogies and blues on the piano. That always attracted a crowd of girls.

This vignette of Mr. Willie Ruff's life in Evansville in the mid-1940s comes from A Call to Assembly, which was published by Viking in 1991. Now a professor of music at Yale University, he demonstrates that he has as much a flair with the written word as he has with a musical note, spinning a fascinating "Autobiography of a Musical Storyteller."

Mr. Ruff returns to Evansville in mid-March as part of USI's Community of Scholars program designed to broaden educational opportunities beyond the classroom. His visit will be a part of the "Cathedrals" class in a School of Liberal Arts master's degree program; he also will drop in on a Middle School Honors Band rehearsal at 6:30 p.m. Monday, March 16, at Harrison High School and the next day will visit schools in the near-downtown area where he once lived, including Lincoln, the all-black high school he attended that now is an integrated elementary school. He also will visit USI's Gateway Center.

Mr. Ruff grew up around Sheffield, Alabama, coming to Evansville in his early teens to live with his father after the death

USI initiated the effort to recruit young students to science and engineering with a visit in 1991 by Dr. Bassam Z. Shakhashiri, former assistant director of the National Science Foundation who is best known to the public through his televised chemistry demonstrations, and will follow up this year with Dr. Turner.

Two programs are scheduled -- "The Physics of Toys" for teachers and students at 4 p.m. and "Science Can Be Fun With Toys" for parents and children at 7:30 p.m. Both will be presented in Forum I and are open to the public.

Dr. Turner has been at Clemson since 1968, and professor of physics there since 1984. In spite of a full schedule in teaching, advising, research, and consultation, he has devised and become widely known for his "Physics of Toys" presentation, using the toys to demonstrate in more than 75 programs for students and the public that his chosen profession is both worthwhile and fun. He also has presented the toys program in professional and technical meetings throughout the U.S.

TOYS CAN BE FUN!

Toys can be an exciting way to learn about physics. Whether you love physics -- or hate it -- or haven't decided yet which is the case -- this talk is for you. Find out how ordinary children's toys can be used to demonstrate the basic principles of physics. You'll be glad you did!

No Technical Background Necessary!

of his mother. Music had been a part of his life in Alabama and Evansville, but it wasn't until a cousin goaded him into lying about his age to join the Army (he was only 14) that he began serious pursuit of music as a way of life. In the Army he met Mr. Dwiki Mitchell, a pianist who was to become the other half of the longest surviving jazz duo in America. The duo was formed in the '50s when Mr. Ruff and Mr. Mitchell renewed their friendship as they both began playing with the Lionel Hampton Band. Count Basie took a liking for the infant duo and helped them succeed.

The jazz duo worked with and learned from the musical giants of this nation, whether famous or obscure. They are little known outside the inner circles of jazz, but have played across the United States and abroad. Mr. Ruff's dedication to music and teaching is such that, when they took jazz to Russia and China, he added the two languages to the six he already had mastered in order to enhance their listeners' understanding of their music.

Mr. Ruff and Mr. Mitchell were the subjects of the book Willie and Dwiki, written by Mr. William Zinsser, the journalist and author who was USI's 1985 Commencement speaker. Mr. Zinsser's book and Mr.

Ruff's A Call to Assembly include chapters on Mr. Ruff's trip to Venice, accompanied by Mr. Zinsser, where Mr. Ruff experimented with music in St. Mark's to see if he could learn why the acoustics of the ancient church had been so important to music.

That trip is a key element in Mr. Ruff's return to Evansville. He will speak at the March 17 session of the "Cathedrals" class being taught this spring by Mr. Augustine J. Fredrich, chair of the Engineering Technology Department. This class session will be held in St. Mary's Church in downtown Evansville, where the public is invited to join them in hearing Mr. Ruff discuss his Venice trip.

The "Cathedrals" class has 13 credit and 17 noncredit students who are studying the cathedrals of Europe from multiple vantage points -- theology and spirituality, music, and various aspects of design and construction. Mr. Fredrich said the class has been so successful that it will be repeated next spring. The class was to have doubled as a primer for a visit to many of the cathedrals under study, but the European trip probably will be canceled. The recession may be figuring into the lack of registrants for the trip, but also has prompted the travel industry to

NO SMOKING POLICY

It is the policy of the University of Southern Indiana to promote and maintain a clean and healthy environment for students, faculty, staff, and visitors and to comply with the Indiana Clean Indoor Air Law.

In support of the University's continuing commitment to provide a comfortable and healthy environment for students, faculty, staff, and visitors, a smoke-free environment policy will be in effect by May 11, 1992.

The University of Southern Indiana prohibits smoking by students, faculty, staff, and visitors in all University-owned or leased buildings and vehicles. The University expects the cooperation and commitment of all students, faculty, staff, and visitors in maintaining a smoke-free environment.

Students and other campus constituents are responsible for their own behavior and are expected to obey the University policy regarding smoking. Non-compliance with this policy may result in disciplinary action and subject the person to the penalties provided for in the Indiana Clean Indoor Air Law.

extend the deadline to April, if the tour group can be filled.

Mr. Ruff left Evansville in 1946 and was stationed with the Army in Wyoming and Ohio. He earned an equivalency diploma in the Army and became a Lincoln High School graduate. After the Army, the GI Bill was available to give him the education his mother had always insisted upon. He won a scholarship at Yale, where he described himself as a "fly in the buttermilk," a phrase "popular since slavery times as a metaphor for black people moving into all-white situations." There were eight black undergraduates at Yale then, but this didn't prevent Mr. Ruff from finding a place for himself and making the most of the opportunities Yale offered. He earned both bachelor's and master's degrees at Yale, then joined the Lionel Hampton Band. He returned to Yale in 1971 as a teacher and has made it the home base since for the jazz duo's excursions around the world.

will discuss "The Classical Routes of Geography in the Age of Columbus." He expects between 200 and 300 students to attend the program.

Dr. Marie G. Hankins, chair of the USI Physical Sciences Department and coordinator of the chemistry program, said 18 schools will participate this year as the competition continues to grow. The program will feature the American Chemical Society's "Chemistry Olympiad." The five students who score highest will have an opportunity to advance to regional, national, and international competition.

At 1:15 p.m., Dr. Hankins and USI chemistry students will present the demonstrations that illustrate the principles of chemistry while showing the teenagers that chemistry can be fun.

HONORS SYMPOSIUM WINNERS. A four-member team of USI honor students - Mr. Albert S. Duncan, Ms. Patricia A. Godeke, Mrs. Barbara L. Rodenberg, and Ms. Natalie A. Tindle -- won the top award at the eighth annual Honor Student Symposium held February 29.

They captured the top prize with correct answers to such questions as "What positive value of x satisfies the equation $x(3x + 2) = 1$?" and "Vladimir Ilyich Ulyanov is commonly known as?" They ousted four other honor student teams in written and oral competition. Ms. Vivian Y. Jenkins, instructor in psychology, was the faculty sponsor for the winning team.

Other honor symposium participants were Mr. Brian Benjamin, Ms. Carol A. Cairns, Mr. Douglas Chapman, Mr. Ronald W. Dunn, Ms. Martha L. Goolsbay, Ms. Stephanie K. Griffis, Ms. Tina L. Grubb, Ms. Laura M. Hedrick, Mr. Thad M. Immel, Ms. Angela K. Kirsch, Mr. William L. Kunkler, Ms. Mary Beth Leiberling, Ms. Anita F. Lengacher, Ms. Theresa A. Sanchez, Ms. Elizabeth S. Wells, and Ms. Sondra K. Wolf.

Dr. Kevin W. McLaughlin, assistant professor of chemistry, coordinated the 1992 project. He offered "a special thanks to all the faculty members who helped with the project and the USI Foundation, which supported the Honor Student Symposium with a grant." Faculty who served as team sponsors were Dr. David W. Kinsey, associate professor of mathematics; Dr. Guillermo Latorre, assistant professor of Spanish; Dr. Charles L. Price, professor of science education; Ms. Cynthia S. Roberts, instructor in nursing; and Dr. Timothy J. Schibik, assistant professor of economics. Dr. Thomas J. Pickett, assistant professor of physics, served as emcee for the oral examination.

The two top teams were awarded t-shirts and all participants received certificates from Dr. Robert L. Reid, vice president for Academic Affairs.

NAMES IN THE NEWS. Dr. Dal M. Herring, chair of the Communications Department, will be keynote speaker March 6 at the 1992 Ohlone College Contemporary Communications Conference. His topic will be "The First Amendment: Champion or Villain?" More than 400 students from 18 high schools in the San Francisco Bay area will attend this 21st annual journalism conference, in which Dr. Herring also will conduct one of 15 breakout seminars. He will discuss his faculty exchange experience in China in a speech titled "Beijing 1989: the Ultimate Student Solution."

Dr. Herring, a USI professor of journalism, has been invited to speak to newswriting and reporting classes March 12 at the University of Nebraska in Omaha. He will

Dr. Joseph J. Palladino, chair of the Psychology Department and president of the Division on Teaching of the American Psychological Association, will present the Psi Chi Distinguished Lecture at the upcoming meeting of the Eastern Psychological Association in Boston. Psi Chi is the National Honor Society of Psychology. Dr. Palladino's topic will be "Teaching is no Laughing Matter."

THANK YOUs -- A special thanks is extended to all faculty and staff who assisted in gathering information about our employees, students, and alumni who were involved in the plane crash February 6 at the Drury Inn and JoJo's. Your efforts were important and helpful to the staff in University Relations, Student Life, Counseling, and Campus Ministry -- all offices which need to respond whenever a member of the University family is ill or injured. We appreciate your continuing support.

A special thank you also from Mrs. Nancy L. Johnson, director of Alumni Affairs, and Mrs. Jean B. Stayman, coordinator of annual giving, to all USI faculty, staff, and students who generously volunteered their time to work the 1992 USI Annual Fund Phonathon. The phonathan was tremendously successful, resulting in $43,000 in unrestricted pledges, topping the goal by $3,000.

Thanks go to the following faculty and staff -- Dr. Larry W. Arp, Ms. Marna Barnard, Mrs. Diana M. Biggs, Ms. Nancy F. Bizal, Mrs. Dawn G. Connell, Mrs. Ann S. Cooper, Mrs. Cecelia C. Correll, Ms. Libby W. Currier, Mr. John L. Deem, Mr. Marc Duhe, Dr. Philip C. Fisher, Ms. Maureen T. Fitzgerald, Ms. Stephanie R. Fuelling, Mrs. Kathy W. Funke, Mrs. Judy A. Goen, Mrs. Teresa R. GIRL SCOUT CONFERENCE. "Opening Doors, Opening Minds" is the theme of a workshop/conference on women's issues of the '90s, sponsored by the Raintree Girl Scout Council in celebrating the 80th birthday of Girl Scouts of America. The conference will begin at 6:30 p.m. Friday, March 13, in the UC Dining Room with a dinner honoring seven Girl Scout Women of Distinction from 10 southwest Indiana counties. The speaker will be Ms. Daphane Tabor, former GSA national staff member.

Saturday's program begins at 9 a.m. with the keynote address by Dr. Barbara Doherty, president of St. Mary-of-the-Woods College. The workshops will follow in the University Conference Center, including one on "shortchanging girls... shortchanging America," which is based on the study conducted by the American Association of University Women that has attracted national attention recently. Ms. Rita Compton, president of the Indiana AAUW chapter, will conduct this workshop. The public is invited to attend any session of the workshop/conference; the registration fee is $20 for all sessions or $12.50 for Friday, $12.50 for Saturday. The registration deadline is Tuesday, March 10.

SURPLUS ITEMS. The Purchasing Department will take sealed bids until 12 noon Friday, March 6, on a manual typewriter, model Remington, Sperry-Rand. It may be viewed in the Purchasing Office at any time prior to deadline.

Purchasing also has received a surplus stock of Swintec 8000 series typewriter ribbons for chargeback of requesting departments. Please send memo requesting ribbons needed; accounts will be debited through journal voucher. Questions? Call Mrs. Debbie Weigand, Purchasing assistant, extension 1847.

LOST FILM. University Division and Counseling are looking for the film Calling the Shots, which is missing from their joint library. The film deals with alcohol advertising. Please call University Division, extension 1606, if you know where the film is.

WORDPERFECT CLASS. A class on WordPerfect for Windows will be presented Friday, March 13, by The Future Now, the company that created the course. The class will meet from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in FA53. Anyone who is interested in attending and has an interest in a particular topic should contact Mr. Timothy D. Thayer, academic computer analyst, extension 1621.

ROPEWALK SCHOLARSHIPS. The Fourth Annual RopeWalk Writers Retreat will be held May 31-June 5 in New Harmony. Writers interested in receiving a tuition scholarship must forward a manuscript (a maximum of 10 pages of poetry or 20 pages of prose) along with a letter describing your writing background and financial circumstances and the $75 registration fee to Mrs. Linda L. Cleek, associate director of Extended Services, no later than April 27. RopeWalk scholarships are typically in the range of $100 to $200, with the larger awards usually reserved for full-time students. If you have questions, please call extension 1863 or 1630.
