CHILDREN TO BECOME JUNIOR SHERLOCKS IN
USI SPONSORED SUPER SATURDAY
PROGRAM

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
FEBRUARY 21, 1991

Forty-eight junior Sherlocks, aged four to 12, will become detectives for a day in the USI Super Saturday program February 23 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The junior Sherlocks, arranged in age-appropriate groups, will be using and breaking codes, fingerprinting, and learning how to solve mysteries.

According to Ginger Ramsden, USI coordinator of children's programs, "through the activities students will increase sensory skills, and develop critical and creative thinking with logic puzzles. They also will get to consult with a real detective--Mike Ford, a detective with the Evansville Polic Department."

The day-long program will include lunch for the children. They will assemble in the USI Administration Building, Forum III at 9 a.m.
