You take time to care for what is of value to you. Are community improvement and community service high priorities for you? Connect with Southern Indiana is a new citizenship-building program to be offered at University of Southern Indiana in January 2006. This free nine-month program for eligible individuals will strengthen decision-making skills and raise the level of involvement in community issues. Scholarships are available, and candidates will be chosen from an eight-county area in southern Indiana. Call the Office of Extended Services at USI, 812/464-1863 or go online at www.usi.edu and click on Extended Services and Connect with Southern Indiana. You take time to care for what is value to you. Apply before October 10 to Connect Southern Indiana and learn critical thinking skills to improve your community and yourself. Call 464-1863 today.
