PSYCHOTHERAPIST TO CONDUCT APRIL PROGRAM FOR USI NON-TRADITIONALS

For Immediate Release
April 11, 1994

Janet Wyatt Berkey, psychotherapist who has had 25 years experience in family therapy, will speak at 7 p.m. Friday, April 15, in the next "Coming Together" session for non-traditional (adult) students at the University of Southern Indiana.

Berkey has planned a program to facilitate growth in self-esteem and self-understanding and will speak on "Pathways to change: Learning to make the most out of life." Coffee and conversation will follow the program. Students are invited to bring a guest; call the Enrollment Services Office, 812/464-1765, for information.

Berkey studied at Ohio State and Boston universities and has been in private practice in Evansville since 1972. She also was a family therapist and later clinical supervisor at Family and Children's Service for many years, and now is with Crossroads Educational and Counseling Center. Berkey has taught at USI and is an adjunct faculty member at the University of Evansville.
