Dedicated to
Martha and Rosalie

Introduction

While researching the Deig, Ernst Hahn, Kissel, Mesker and Marx families, I noticed numerous marriages with the Orth family members. My GGGG Aunt, Anna Hahn, married Johann Friedrich Orth. My uncle, Clarence Mesker, married Rosalie Orth. And the connections go on and on.

In the middle of the 2020 pandemic, with doctor's recommendations to stay away from crowds, I decided to continue more specific research on the Orth family. From the comfort of my home, I conducted online research through obituaries, newspaper articles and Ancestry.com, for public information.

This book is a summary of my research through 2020. It is not a complete accounting of everyone in the Orth family. However, it is a decent starting point for those wanting to find Orth ancestors who lived in southern Indiana. There were other Orth families that I could not connect with George Orth, so that information will be in another book. One other group of Orths are the descendants of Peter Orth of Heiligenstein, Pfalz, Bavaria, Germany.

The genealogy report uses the register system. It begins with one source person, George Orth, and moves forward in time by generations. This report includes his descendants (children, children's children, etc.) along with information about each descendant along the way. The style is a narrative for each person, presenting information (names, events, facts, etc.) in sentence and paragraph form. Each descendant in the register report with children (or a child) is assigned a number. If the descendant did not have at least one child, then no family number is assigned. The source person is assigned the number 1. His children, who continue the family line, are assigned numbers, 2, 3,4, etc. Children are listed with Roman lower case numbers. A parenthetical ancestry (a list of direct ancestors) is provided in parenthesis after the descendant's name. This format shows the lineage back to George Orth. Surnames are included if different from the previous generation. Parents of spouses is also included in the narrative and People Index.

Sources of where I found the information are listed at the end of the report and the connecting superscripts are given after the descendant's name. A people index is provided and includes all descendants, spouses of descendants, and parents of descendants' spouses. Surnames are grouped together and each line in each surname group includes a person's first and middle names, along with the identification as a descendant number, spouse, child or parent of a spouse.

According to folklore, the George Orth family came from Aschaffenburg, Bavaria, Germany. I have no documentation to support this claim, other than family insistence. The surname Orth is derived from the High German word "ort," meaning "high point." Marriage records of Posey County, Indiana for Johann, George and Elizabeth show marriages in 1846 to 1848. Possibly, the family immigrated prior to 1846. No passenger ship list was identified for the family. Naturalization records indicate the naturalization of John and George Orth occurred between 1844 and 1853.

The census records of 1860-1920 list the Orth family members as farmers, owning their farms, most often without a mortgage. They settled in Marrs Township, Posey County in Indiana. An atlas of Posey County shows several farms belonging to the Orth families.

Some families were Catholics and others were Protestants. Based on their religion, burials were in certain cemeteries. St. Philip Cemetery in Posey County, Salem United Church of Christ Cemetery in Heusler, Vanderburgh County and Oak Hill Cemetery in Evansville were the more common burial sites in Indiana.

To those that use this book, I wish you success in your family genealogy search.

Ancestral town of Aschaffenburg, Bavaria, Germany

Aschaffenburg (German pronunciation) is a town in northwest Bavaria, Germany. The town of Aschaffenburg is not considered part of the district of Aschaffenburg, but is the administrative seat.

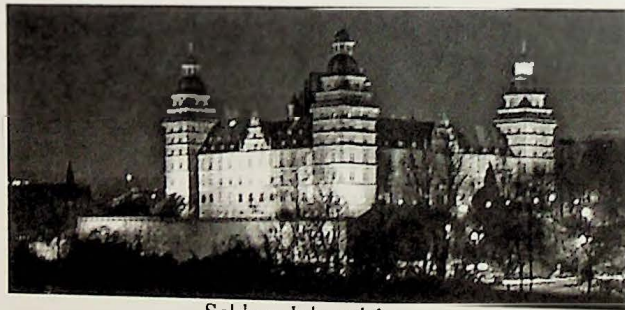

Aschaffenburg belonged to the Archbishopric of Mainz for more than 800 years. The town is located at the westernmost border of Lower Franconia and separated from the central and eastern part of the Regierungsbezirk (administrative region) by the Spessart hills, whereas it opens towards the Rhine-Main plain in the west and north-west. Therefore, the inhabitants speak neither Bavarian nor East Franconian but rather a local version of Rhine Franconian.

The earliest remains of settlements in the area of Aschaffenburg date from the Stone Age.

Aschaffenburg was originally a settlement of the Alamanni. Roman legions were stationed here. In c. 700 AD, the Ravenna Cosmography names two settlements in region: Uburzis (Würzburg) and Ascapha (Aschaffenburg)

In the Middle Ages the town was known as Ascaffaburg, Ascapha or Ascaphaburg.

In 1552, the late-Gothic castle of Johannisburg was destroyed. It was replaced in 1605-14 by the Renaissance Schloss Johannisburg.^[c] The town suffered greatly during the Thirty Years' War.

Aschaffenburg in Germany

The town is located on both sides of the Main in the southwest part of Germany, 41 kilometers (25 mi) southeast of Frankfurt am Main. In the western part of the municipal territory, the smaller Aschaff flows into the Main. The region is also known as Bayerischer Unterrhein ("Bavarian Lower Main"). Aschaffenburg lies in the far northwest of the state of Bavaria, close to the border to the state of Hesse.

In World War II, Aschaffenburg was heavily damaged by Allied area bombing, including Schloss Johannisburg which was completely restored several years later. At the end of World War II, the United States Army occupied military facilities formerly used and controlled by the Wehrmacht. These were converted for use by U.S. military personnel as processing centers for displaced persons at the end of the war.

Aschaffenburg was the location of several United States Army installations throughout the Cold War. Much of the U.S. Army presence in Aschaffenburg ended in 1992 with the ending of the Cold War. The last buildings, which were primarily used for housing, were handed back to the local government in 2007.

Census Records

Source: National Archives and Records Administration

The following snippets from census records offer a window into the Orth family story. The records help construct entire family groups and identify unknown relatives.

Censuses are taken every 10 years, starting in 1790. The majority of the 1890 census was lost in a fire. The most recent census available to the public is the 1940 census.

Census-takers were to visit each household. Beginning in 1850, every free household member was named and families were numbered in order of visitation. Census-takers did not ask people how to spell their names, thus, misspellings are common. Discrepancies do show up as the source of information may have been a child or neighbor, or language barriers may result in miscommunication and inaccurate information. Additionally, mistrust of the government may lead to falsehoods, especially about income or naturalization status.

Evelyn M (Deig) Meisler, age 84, of Evansville, passed away Monday, February 10, 2014 at Deaconess Hospital Main Campus, surrounded by her family.

Evelyn, along with her husband Bill, founded Meisler Cartage in 1963 in the basement of their home with just one truck. From those humble beginnings, and with the help of their two sons, they grew the one company into two, Meisler Trailer Rentals and Walt's Drive-A-Way service. Only in the last couple of years did she truly retire from the business, you always knew where to find her on the first of the month – as she would say "we need to get those statements out". Evelyn was also active in the Vanderburgh County Young Republicans and had worked in the Vanderburgh County Treasurer's Office. She was a member of the VFW Post #1114 Ladies Auxiliary and the Ladies Auxiliary of the Riverbend Association. Evelyn enjoyed cross stitching, watching Football (Peyton Manning and her team the Green Bay Packers), playing Candy Crush on her iPad and putting together puzzles. She also loved playing slot machines, cards and scratching off lottery tickets – luck always seemed to follow her. One of her greatest joys was spending time with her family and seeing her great-grandchildren.

During that time, he rode on the rescue squad - he was proud to say that he was the first on the scene. He also was one of the first members of the EFD dive & rescue squad.
